REICHSTAG BACKS UP LUTHER'S PROGRAM; STORM OVER TARIFF

Socialist Motion for a Vote of Lack of Confidence Is Defeated, 214 to 129.

VOTE ON FLAG IS SOUGHT

Schiele Also Suggests Abrogation of the Law for the Protection of the Republic.

BERLIN, May 20.—The Socialists today brought forward their motion for a vote of lack of confidence in the Government, based on the latter's tender toward the Right parties and on the protective tariff proposals submitted by it yesterday to the National Council. The motion was rejected by a vote of 214 to 129. Twenty-five members refrained from voting.

During the Reichstag debate preceding the vote the Socialist spokesman, Herr Landsberg, declared that the Government did not inspire confidence because its conciliatory foreign policy initiated by Chancellor Luther and Foreign Minister Stresemann was incompatible with the strong governmental tendency toward the Right. Referring to yesterday's Reichstag speech by Count Westarp, the noted Right leader, Herr Landsberg asked:

"How can the world be expected to trust the foreign policy of the Government when the most important orator in the strongest Government party is diametrically opposed to the Foreign Minister?"

Herr Landsberg also announced:

"We Socialists have no confidence in a plutocratic Government favoring a usurious bread tariff. Toward such a Government we feel only distrust and hostility."

Tariff Proposals Raise Storm.

The Government's tariff proposals form the main subject of political discussion here today. Submitted yesterday to the Reichsrat, or National Council, by Chancellor Luther, Economics Minister Neuhaus and Food Minister Count Kanitz, they constitute, according to the governmental view, an attempt to meet the imperative necessity for Germany to improve her economic condition in order to meet the burdens imposed by the Dawes plan. Already sharp opposition to the proposals have been aroused in many quarters. The proposed high duties on grain, which is one of the most striking features of the Government project, have aroused a storm of protest.

The Communists and Socialists see in this absolute proof that the Government is under the domination of the grain-growing Junkers, who, they charge, are again launched upon a campaign of grinding down the poor for their own selfish interests.

Another feature of the Government proposals, the high tariff on automobiles and tractors, is also arousing strong criticism from certain quarters. Regarding automobiles, for instance, the Government's critics point out that it might be far better to meet German demands for cheap cars by letting down the barriers against their importation than to seek by means of an artificial tariff to protect German automobile manufacturers, who are so hopelessly behind foreign competitors that they will not catch up for many years, during which the Germans will be forced either to forego autos or pay far more than the world market price.

Condemn Levy on Foodstuffs.

The Socialist Party has followed up its motion for a vote of lack of confidence in the Government by officially taking a hostile stand today against the Government's proposed tariff, especially against the clauses dealing with foodstuffs. At a meeting of the Socialists' directing committee a resolution was adopted protesting against "the new attack by big capitalists and landed proprietors." The Socialists declare that the Government's proposals, if they become law, will mean starvation for the German masses, decreased possibility of exportation, increased unemployment and greater tax burdens. Therefore, continues the manifesto, the Socialist slogan must be "Down with the Government's rightward tendency! Down with the usurious bread tariff!"

The Socialists are not alone in disapproval of the tariff proposals. The organ of the Democratic Party also expresses much apprehension as to the consequences if the proposals are passed, and the Communists are infuriated by the Government project. The Communist organ, the Welt am Abend, declares that the proposed high tariff on automobiles and tractors, as well as that on grain, are simply "premiums on the laziness of the German producers."

The Communists argue that it is futile to try to protect the German automobile and tractor industry and the German grain growers against foreign competition by a protective tariff, since in the long run this tariff will not suffice to protect them and will simply mean unnecessarily high prices to the German consumers. The Communist anger is also great at the proposed tariff on potatoes "the food of the poor."

The Government tariff proposals may be summed up according to Welt am Abend, thus:

Wesleyan Alumni Warned Commencement Will Be 'Dry'

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., May 20.—Wesleyan has deemed the difficulties pertaining to the enforcement of the liquor laws of enough importance to be one of the principal subjects of a special notice sent to all alumni regarding the approaching installation of its new President, Dr. James Lukens McConaughy.

In the notice is a quotation from The Yale Alumni Weekly which urges returning alumni to cooperate with the college authorities in upholding liquor law enforcement.

It says unwise action of alumni at commencement may serve to undo the Faculty's work of a whole year with the undergraduates.

The pamphlet further reminds the alumni that disregard of the law would be most embarrassing at a time when many guests were present to take part in the installation ceremonies.

MUSSOLINI PLEDGES WAR DEBT PAYMENT

WANTS LONG MORATORIUM

He Also Demands in Return More Than Favored Nation Treatment.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES

ROME, May 20.—"The Italian Government recognizes its war debts," said Premier Mussolini in a general review of the Cabinet's foreign policy before the Senate today, "and intends that Italy shall make good its liabilities to the last cent permitted by its present and future economic situation."

This statement was received with loud cheers by the entire Senate.

"When the greatness of the sacrifices we sustained in the war and the smallness of our national resources are taken into account, however, it is evident that creditor States should grant us in return something more than a most-favored-nation clause. If we are required to pay we must be placed in condition to be able to pay. It is equally evident that we must have a moratorium to consolidate our financial position, as then we will be in a position to begin payments immediately.

"The moratorium, in addition, will have to be a long one. It would indeed be painful if we should find our former allies wishing to place us in conditions of inferiority with respect to conquered nations."

Premier Mussolini's statements bear out forecasts made in these dispatches that the Italian Government will stick to its policy that war debts must be paid, despite opinions to the contrary expressed as recently as last Sunday by Senator Tittoni, President of the Senate, at Viterbo. In this the Government follows the lead given by an overwhelming majority of Italian business men, who realize that debt repudiation would deal a severe blow to Italian industry, which can be advanced only by meeting foreign obligations to the fullest extent permitted by the country's internal economic situation. Speeches of Senators during the recent discussion of the budget and the applause with which Mussolini's words were welcomed today clearly show a majority of the Senators share this opinion.

Sees Hindenburg as Stabilizer.

A great portion of Mussolini's speech dealt with Germany and Russia. His remarks about Germany tended chiefly to allay fears aroused in Italy by Hindenburg's election.

"The Government is not alarmed," he said, "by 15,000,000 Germans voting for the Field Marshal. Indeed, we immediately sent him congratulations. Hindenburg did not reach the Presidency through revolution but through the freely expressed will of the German people. I believe, in fact, that Hindenburg's election will prove a stabilizing influence in post-war Germany."

The Premier then disclosed that he had yesterday received a new French project with regard to Germany but he did not indicate its nature. He said, however:

"The Italian Government is favorable to admitting Germany to the League of Nations provided that at least a five-power guarantee agreement is applied. It is possible that other guarantees will become necessary, for we must bear in mind the safety not only of our frontiers but also of the Rhine frontier.

"I cannot at this point help but re-

FEARS EXPOSURE, SO TELLS

BUT WILL NOT KEEP CHILD

Now Infant Will Be a Waif Again and Mrs. Geisen-Volk Faces New Charge.

The young wife of a well-to-do manufacturer has confessed to the District Attorney that she bought a baby from Mrs. Helen Auguste Geisen-Volk for $75 and, by taking the few-days-old infant beside her in a bed in Mrs. Geisen-Volk's infantorium, deceived her husband into believing it was their own.

For eight months the deception was carried on and both husband and wife grew to love the child. But the "baby farm" investigation was getting closer and closer to the exposure of her plot and finally the wife, Mrs. Nat Bass, fearing the police would get the facts and make them public to her undoing, confessed to her husband.

Bass, a manufacturer of boys' clothing, who lives at 1,302 Avenue K, Brooklyn, found his affection for young "Nat" suddenly turned to such dislike that he could not bear the infant in his home. His wife's tears, her protestations that she was devoted to the child as if it were her own, all were useless. Bass forgave her deception, but could not overcome his conviction that their life together must not "be founded on a lie," and he would not keep the child. So far the authorities have been unable to learn whose child it is, and unless arrangements afoot last night are changed the Children's Society will get it today.

Will Prosecute "Baby Farmer."

What Mrs. Bass's confession will mean to the proprietor of the infantorium where the plot of false motherhood was carried out according to the confession was made plain last night in a formal statement from District Attorney Banton, in which he declared that Mrs. Geisen-Volk would be prosecuted for perpetrating the substitution.

According to the story Mrs. Bass told yesterday to Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora and Assistant District Attorney William P. Ryan, the couple were living at 317 Riverside Drive when Mrs. Geisen-Volk telephoned to Bass that Mrs. Bass had met with a slight accident which would necessitate her becoming a patient in the infantorium immediately. On Sept. 16, eleven days later, the manufacturer was called to the place, where his wife smilingly informed him that the infant lying beside her was their son.

Mr. Bass told the prosecutors that his wife's announcement brought him much joy and that thereafter he loved the infant with the utmost devotion until Mrs. Bass on last Saturday night confessed to him that little Nat Martin Bass, as they had named him, was not their son. He ordered his wife to send the child away, and it was then that she pleaded with him that she loved the baby and never would have made the admission had she known that her husband would lose his affection for the little fellow.

Child's Identity Not Known.

It was because of their divergent views as to what to do with the infant that the couple called on Mr. Ryan, who had been investigating the activities of Mrs. Geisen-Volk and her infantorium. Up to last night Mr. Ryan had been unable to establish the identity of the child which Mrs. Bass and Mrs. Geisen-Volk had palmed off as Bass's son.

Mr. Ryan said he had developed evidence that Mrs. Florentine Vosahlo, a midwife, of 158 West Twenty-fourth Street had been induced by Mrs. Geisen-Volk on Sept. 16 last to sign a report that Mrs. Bass had given birth to the boy and that Bass was the father. This report was filed with the Health Department.

Mrs. Vosahlo readily admitted, Mr Ryan said, that she had signed the report when she was called to the infantorium by Mrs. Geisen-Volk, saw the infant lying beside Mrs. Bass and was told she had arrived too late and a physician had attended the mother.

A birth certificate was issued to Mrs. Bass by the Health Department on the

The production of "His Queen," which opened at the Hudson Theatre on Monday night, May 11, was suspended last night after the appearance of a delegate from the Actor's Equity Association who ordered the members of the cast to leave the show because of the absence of a financial guarantee for their salaries.

In the afternoon a similar request from the Equity deputy was ignored, upon representations from Miss Francine Larrimore, star of the show, that she would be responsible for the salaries. Later the Equity deputy ignored this offer by Miss Larrimore and insisted upon a suspension of activities.

Oliver Morosco, producer of the show, said last night that the difficulties were caused by the impossibility of communication with Anderson T. Herd, whom he characterized as a prominent real estate promoter, who was now in Florida. Mr. Morosco said that he intended to reopen the show soon without outside assistance.

Miss Larrimore, at her home, confirmed the report that no attention had been paid to her offer to continue the show under her own guarantee of salaries for the actors involved. She was very doubtful, she said, that the show would resume its performances.

Just as it was time for the show to start last night Percy Moore, stage manager of the production, appeared before the curtain and informed those present that there would be no show, telling them that their money would be returned at the box office. Their was a fair attendance, but box-office patronage was very unsatisfactory. Recent nightly receipts of the piece, according to Broadway gossip, were less than $100.

The salary list of "His Queen" was substantially lower than it is now and well within the bond of $2,500 put at Equity's disposal to guaranty salary payments until after the out-of-town opening of "Queen Mab," as the play was then known, in Washington. At that time Miss Larrimore and Robert Warwick, the featured players, were added to the cast at an expense that put the salary list far beyond the original estimate.

It was said that Mr. Morosco had offered to put a share of the moving-picture rights to the play at the disposal of Equity, but that there was no adequate guarantee of either the value or the sale of these rights.

POLICE FIGHT BANDIT; BYSTANDER KILLED

FUGITIVE FELLED BY PISTOL

An unidentified man was shot and killed on the south side of Fourteenth Street, near Third Avenue, shortly after 10 o'clock last night in a pistol battle between a bandit concealed behind a taxicab in front of Tammany Hall and a uniformed policeman and seven detectives. The bandit was captured by a detective, who crept up behind him and knocked him down with his pistol after the robber had fired his last bullet.

With the reports of the pistols men and women on both sides of the street sought safety in neighboring stores and hallways, and it was not until the policeman and the detectives had dragged the bandit to the sidewalk in front of Tammany Hall that a storekeeper across the street, who had ventured to the entrance of his establishment, discovered a man lying dead, the victim of one of the bullets fired in the encounter.

The dead man appeared to be about 28 years old. He had light hair and hazel eyes, and was dressed in a dark suit with light stripes, and wore a straw hat, the lining of which indicated it had been purchased in Brooklyn; a white shirt, a black-striped tie and tan shoes.

On the small finger of his left hand the slain man wore a girl's signet ring with the letter "E" on it. He also wore gold cuff links inscribed "Al." The letter "L" was on a brass belt buckle.

When the bandit was taken to the East Twenty-second Street Station he said he was Raymond McCormick, 20 years old, a laborer, of 64 Gouverneur Street. After questioning McCormick the police began a search for his confederate in the hold-up of a drug store at 146 Third Avenue, which preceded the shooting.

McCormick, the police said, admitted having taken part in the robbery. He was said to have told the detectives that his confederate was a stranger whom he had met only a short time before they committed the robbery. He said he had introduced himself merely as "Maxie."

According to the police, McCormick said that when they were walking up Third Avenue toward Fourteenth Street shortly before 10 o'clock they saw a pistol sticking out of the steel crosswork in an elevated column. They took the pistol and McCormick said that "Maxie" suggested that they "stick up some place."

James Manella, 27 years old, was behind the counter in the Star Pharmacy, owned by his father, Fabrio, at the Third Avenue address, about 10:10 o'clock, when McCormick, whom Manella identified at the station, entered the store with a man about his own age. McCormick, Manella said, stood with his confederate in front of the cigar counter near the entrance, which is on the west side of the avenue, a few doors south of Fifteenth Street.

Frank Mollof, 17 years old, a clerk in the store, was seated on the opposite side of the place, near another counter. McCormick, Manella said, ordered two ten cent cigars, and when he stooped down to get them he was told by McCormick to put up his hands and walk into a back room.

Rob and Lock Them in Closet.

When he stood up Manella said he found himself facing a pistol held by McCormick. The second bandit stepped over to the counter where the young clerk was seated, and, holding his hand on his right hip pocket, ordered the youth to follow Manella. When the victims reached the rear room they were ordered to stand facing the back wall. Then, they declared, McCormick relieved the boy of $2 and took $4 in money, a gold watch with a Masonic charm and a diamond ring from Manella.

McCormick, according to Manella, then ordered him to enter a closet with the clerk. Just then the two victims heard the cash register bell ring. McCormick, they said, went to join his confederate, who had started to rob the register of the day's receipts, amounting to $125.

McCormick had reached the doorway between the store and the rear room when Manella began to push open the door of the closet.

"Stay back in that closet for fifteen minutes," he said McCormick commanded. "I'm going to stand here until

SOUTHBOUND TRIP SLOWER

The 150 Miles Up the Hudson River Is Made in Two Hours and Forty Minutes.

The speedboat Teaser, owned by Richard F. Hoyt, member of the firm of Hayden, Stone & Co., 25 Broad street, beat the time of the Twentieth Century Limited twice yesterday for the distance between New York and Albany. She made the trip from the Columbia Yacht Club, Eighty-sixth Street and the Hudson River, to the Albany Yacht Club in two hours and forty minutes, and the return trip, over the same course, from Albany to New York in three hours and five minutes. Rough water forced the slower speed on the return trip. The time of the Twentieth Century is three hours and thirteen minutes.

Yesterday's record, which because of the presence of Charles F. Chapman, official observer for the American Power Boat Association, is expected to be accepted as official, sets a mark for Gar Wood, world's motor-boat champion, to shoot at if he races the Limited to New York on May 25, as he has announced.

Averaged 52 Miles an Hour.

George J. Mead, chief engineer of the Wright Aeronautical Company, piloted the Teaser, which carried in addition to Observer Chapman two others, Captain C. Christiansen, in charge of Mr. Hoyt's yachts, who acted as mechanic, and Theodore Carlisle of the Wright Company, who was assistant mechanic. For the round trip 275 gallons of high-test gasoline was used.

This is the first try-out of any important motor boat which is likely to be seen at the Gold Cup regatta, the climax of the boating season, at Manhasset Bay, Aug. 26 to 30. The Teaser was equipped with a Wright "Typhoon" 600-horsepower engine.

The trip north started at 7:55 o'clock. The average speed was fifty-two miles an hour. The return trip averaged forty-five miles an hour. A time record of the two trips is appended, the principal points along the river and the time they were passed being noted:

	A.M.	P.M.
New York	7:55	4:40
Spuyten Duyvil	8:03	4:31
Nyack	8:19	4:46
Bear Mountain Bridge	8:40	3:35
West Point	8:45	3:27
Poughkeepsie	9:12	2:56
Kingsbridge	9:30	2:38
Albany	10:35	1:35

The river distance from New York to Albany is estimated to be 150 miles and the rail distance from Grand Central Station is 145 miles.

Gar Wood, who is holder of the world speed record for motor boats, will arrive in Albany this week with his speedboats, Baby Gar IV., the Baby Gar V. and the Cigarette Jr., the boats to be outfitted in Albany in preparation for the race down the Hudson.

Built to Commute In.

The Teaser was built by the Nevins Shipyards at City Island to allow Mr. Hoyt to commute between Marion, Mass., and Manhattan. She has an overall length of 39 feet 10½ inches and a beam of 7 feet 8 inches. She is one of the highest power displacement motor boats of the runabout type afloat. Wood's boats are powered with Liberty motors, generating about 500 horsepower.

The trip to Albany was made in faster time, Mr. Mead explained, because rough water was not encountered. The engine was making 2,100 revolutions a minute all the way to Albany. On the return trip the same rate of revolutions was maintained until Newburgh was reached, when the motor was throttled down to 1,000 revolutions per minute because of rough water.

Mr. Mead said on his return to Albany that he did not believe that Mr. Hoyt, owner of the Teaser, would enter her in competition with Gar Wood's boats when the latter makes his race down the river, although an effort undoubtedly would be made to better the Teaser's time.

Gar Wood will drive the Baby Gar IV., his brother, George Wood, will drive Baby Gar V. and L. Gordon Hamersley will drive the Cigarette Jr. The three boats will be put in the water on Saturday, while Sunday will be spent in tuning them up. Mr. Chapman will be official timer and referee in one of the Wood boats.

The Wood boats will be in full view

Express Fear in Affidavit That $1,500,000 Property Will Be Dissipated.

CRITICIZE SALARY OUTLAY

ATTACK PARSONAGE PLAN

Charges that the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, is an "unsafe person" to have sole control of the church property, and that his handling of the church finances threatens the dissipation and loss of the $1,500,000 property, are contained in the complaint and supporting affidavits made by the five trustees of the church who have taken the Calvary civil war into court.

The five trustees on Tuesday obtained from Supreme Court Justice Richard P. Lydon a temporary injunction restraining Dr. Straton, Supreme Court Justice William Harman Black, President of the Board of Trustees, and the other members of the Board of Trustees and the Board of Deacons, from expelling the five insurgents and restraining Dr. Straton from exercising the power of a trustee. They have petitioned the court to prevent the pro-Straton group from mortgaging the church property in West Fifty-seventh Street, across from Carnegie Hall, to put up a twenty-story combination church and hotel, and have asked the appointment of a receiver to handle the "temporalities" or property of the church. The case will be argued on Monday before Supreme Court Justice Charles L. Guy.

Affidavits and complaint became public yesterday. The most detailed charges are contained in an affidavit signed by all five anti-Straton trustees—William A. M. Martin, who is also treasurer of the church; Albinius B. Miller, Secretary; Robert B. Bushee, who was removed as counsel for the church at a recent corporate meeting; William B. Peck and Benjamin J. Miller.

Suggestion for a Parsonage.

This affidavit reveals several financial secrets of the church as basis for the contention that Dr. Straton's actions have jeopardized the church property. It says that Dr. Straton has bought a house in East Seventy-seventh Street, between Madison and Park Avenues, for $35,000, of which $20,000 remains on mortgage. It adds that the pastor suggested at a meeting of the Finance Committee on March 20 that if the church took over the property as a parsonage, assuming the mortgage and paying him his equity, he could get along on his $9,000 annual salary. Although the Finance Committee recommended this action to the trustees, the affidavit says, the trustees as now constituted have not and will not approve it.

The affidavit alleges that 66⅔ per cent. of the budget for church expenses in 1924 was for salaries and that in the budget for the last eight months of 1925 72½ per cent. was provided for salaries. In the first month of the operation of the new budget, it adds, salaries were 80 per cent. of expenditures.

Out of $5,365.43 received in benevolence envelopes of the church during 1924, the affidavit says, more than $3,000 was paid out in salaries for persons classified as mission workers for the church. Under Dr. Straton, it charges, Calvary Church is rapidly losing its position as a large giver for Baptist missionary enterprises. From May 1 to Dec. 31, 1925, it adds, more than $10,000 is provided for church salaries, against $2,666.67 for foreign missions and $1,333.34 for home missions.

The affidavit charges that Dr. Straton has forced out of the church a large proportion of the most substantial and valued members, especially those who, in the past, contributed largely to benevolence and upkeep. Many assistants and missionaries, it adds, have resigned after brief services rather than work with Dr. Straton.

Another part of the affidavit says that

DROPS THIRTEEN STORIES

Son When Told of Father's Act Restrained From Following—Crowd Blocks Traffic.

A bankrupt diamond broker quietly left a meeting of irate creditors in a lawyer's office in the Knickerbocker Building, Broadway and Forty-second Street, last night, went to the roof and jumped. He fell thirteen stories and was instantly killed. He struck the skylight in the two-story extension used by the Terminal Barber Shop. Witnesses said that his son tried to leap out of the window to the body, on being informed of his father's death. A large crowd gathered outside the building, and blocked traffic on Forty-second Street.

The broker was Morris Sieger, 55 years old, of 868 East Tremont Avenue, the Bronx. With his son, Simon, he conducted a business under the name of Morris Sieger & Son at 95 Nassau Street. His son said that when the firm failed several months ago for over $200,000, the family was left practically penniless. They had to give up their home, he said.

The father went to live with a friend at the Tremont Avenue address, while the mother took up her residence with another friend in Manhattan. The son went to live with a third friend. The son said that Sieger's spirit was broken by the failure.

The meeting of creditors was held in the offices of Rosenthal & Altman on the eleventh floor of the Knickerbocker Building. It was a stormy one, according to the police. Some of the creditors asserted that Sieger had withheld assets. They threatened to bring the case to the District Attorney.

A few moments after the threat, about 6 o'clock, Sieger quietly slipped out the door. He climbed to the roof, and leaped from the east side of the building.

When the body struck the skylight, which was at the bottom of an air shaft and opened on a corner of the hairdressing parlor in the barber shop, several persons saw it from offices above. They hurried to the elevator starter, George Browning, and told him.

The starter climbed out on the roof of the extension. Reaching the skylight, he recognized the body as that of Sieger, whom he had known. He went up to the law office.

The creditors meanwhile had thrashed out their differences with the son and reached an agreement. The son signed it and then looked for the father to append his signature. When he noticed his father's absence he looked for him in several neighboring offices. He was still searching when the starter found him and told him of Sieger's death.

At first he was incredulous. Then Browning took him to a window and showed him the body on the skylight. The son became hysterical. He tried to leap out the window, according to witnesses. Browning and several others had to seize him.

Although the leap had not been visible to people on the street, word of the death soon reached them, and the passing crowds stood in front of the building. The arrival of the ambulance brought more people and the crowd stretched across the curb. It blocked traffic. Policemen had to keep more than 1,000 people back when the body was taken from the building.

BRYAN TURNS DOWN CANDIDATE FAVORED BY FUNDAMENTALISTS

Startles His Militant Associates With Ultimatum Against Dr. McAfee.

CAUCUS ENDORSES LATTER

SESSIONS WILL OPEN TODAY

Momentous Questions, Including Action on New York Presbytery, to Be Settled.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 20.—William J. Bryan, Vice Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, which will open its 137th annual meeting here tomorrow, delivered a virtual ultimatum to his militant Fundamentalist associates late this afternoon, when he announced that he favored the candidacy of Dr. W. O. Thompson, President of Ohio State University, as Moderator at the election tomorrow.

Refraining from attendance at the caucus of extreme Fundamentalists, where he was expected this afternoon, Mr. Bryan announced his choice at 4:30 o'clock just before entering a meeting of the general council. Word soon spread through the lobbies of the Hotel Deshler, headquarters of the Presbyterians, that the Commoner had cast his lot against Dr. Lapsley E. McAfee, of Berkeley, Cal., who was until then regarded as a strong Fundamentalist candidate, untinged with liberalism.

Late tonight the caucus of militant Fundamentalists unanimously decided to nominate Dr. McAfee, rejecting the ultimatum of Mr. Bryan. The meeting was enthusiastic, and the commissioners left the caucus room saying they were confident Dr. McAfee would be elected Moderator tomorrow.

When questioned concerning Mr. Bryan's selection of Dr. Thompson as his candidate, one of the Fundamentalists said, "We will convince him by midnight."

He was told that Mr. Bryan had gone to bed, having announced he was "dead beat."

Commissioners from the Pacific Coast said they were certain Dr. McAfee would be elected. They asserted that the Fundamentalists in the caucus were the same who put through the election of Dr. McCartney last year. Dr. Walter D. Buchanan of New York took an active part in the caucus.

Supporters of Dr. Charles R. Erdman, of Princeton Theological Seminary, received Mr. Bryan's announcement with joy, asserting that his opposition would measurably aid their candidate. Although calling himself a conservative, Dr. Erdman, because of his refusal to adopt extreme measures against the liberal element of the Presbyterian Church, is supported by the liberals and Modernists, as well as the liberal conservatives, who also call themselves pacifist Fundamentalists. Dr. Erdman said today that he stood for no particular group or clique in the Church but desired to guard the doctrines of the Church according to constitutional methods.

Mr. Bryan's announcement was received with surprise by the extreme Fundamentalists, and there were some who predicted a split in their ranks which would aid Dr. Erdman unless they agreed with Mr. Bryan's choice.

The militant Fundamentalists were at that time against Dr. Thompson, whose views, they felt, were rather similar to those of Dr. Erdman. Dr. Thompson is credited with being in favor of peaceful methods in trying to solve the problems that disturb the Church, while the extreme Fundamentalists, led by Dr. Clarence Macartney of Philadelphia, the Moderator, believe in purging the Church of all those suspected of modernism.

Momentous Issues Raised.

The General Assembly is expected to be the most momentous in many years, and questions will be decided, according to Moderator Macartney, which affect the very foundation of the Presbyterian Church.

A demand has been made to exscind or excommunicate the Presbytery of New York because it is charged with admitting students to ordination who do not subscribe to the doctrines of the Church and because of its alleged delay in complying with the action of last year's General Assembly in the case of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick. The Baptist visiting preacher was permitted to remain at the First Presbyterian Church several months after the decision of the General Assembly in his case. The casting out of the Presbytery of New York has been demanded by the Presbytery of Chester, Pa., in an overture to the General Assembly.

Although Dr. Fosdick has asked the First Presbyterian Church to refrain from raising his case as an issue in the General Assembly, the issue will come up, as the church has asked the General Assembly to vindicate its loyalty.

In the opinion of some Commissioners who discussed the Chester overture today, ousting of the Presbytery of New York would be disastrous and would cause a split in the Church.

"Conservative men have as yet given little expression of opinion concerning the overture of the Presbytery of Chester asking for the exscinding of the Presbytery of New York," said Moderator Macartney. "Should this extreme measure be taken, it would be only as a last resort and when all hope of amendment on the part of the Presbytery of New York had been abandoned."

To Dr. Macartney, a militant Fundamentalist, there is only one great issue in the General Assembly, and that is "the loyalty of the Presbyterian Church to evangelical Christianity." He pointed

Deaths from homicide in American cities during 1924 reached the highest rate on record, with New York showing a slight increase, although its record is low for cities of more than 500,000 population.

The deaths from homicide in New York, which with the figures on other cities are given in an article by Frederick L. Hoffman, consulting statistician of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, published in The Spectator, an insurance journal, are 6.4 per 100,000 of population for 1924, or altogether 387 persons. In 1923 the figures were 5.2 per 100,000.

The average for the seventy-seven cities covered in the survey is 9.9 homicides per 100,000 population, making New York's record 3.5 less than the average for the country.

The records of other large cities are: Philadelphia, 7.6, a decrease of 1.8; Chicago, 17.5, an increase of 3.9; Boston, 5.1, an increase of .8; Pittsburg, 12.1, a decrease of 1.6; Newark, 6.3, a decrease of 1.0; St. Louis, 21.7, a decrease of 4.4; Cincinnati, 15.3, a decrease of 2.8; San Francisco, 8.0, a decrease of 1.9; Los Angeles, 14.2, an increase of .9.

The highest death by homicide rate recorded is given to Jacksonville, Fla., which had 58.8 per 100,000, but which was a decrease of 2.9 from the year previous. The lowest record went to Concord, N. H.; Malden, Mass.; Newton, Mass., and Lawrence, Mass., which reported no homicides at all during the year.

New York State's record included: Auburn, 2.7; Rochester, 3.3, and Syracuse, 4.3, all decreases.

New Jersey's included: Bayonne, 8.1, increase of 7.9; Camden, 6.3, an increase of 2.9; Elizabeth, 5.7, a decrease of .1; Jersey City, 2.6, an increase of .3; Passaic, 7.2, an increase; Paterson, 2.1, a decrease of 1.5, and Somerville, 5.0, an increase of 4.0.

TOPEKA, Kan., May 20 (AP).—Former Governor Jonathan M. Davis of Kansas was acquitted tonight by a jury of charges of conspiracy to solicit bribes for pardons during his term of office.

Four ballots were taken by the jury. On the first two the vote was 10 to 2 for acquittal. Only on juror voted for conviction on the third ballot, the entire deliberations lasting three hours.

When the jury made its report, the audience applauded tumultuously. Governor Davis dashed into the private chamber of District Judge James A. McClure as soon as he was able to break away from friends in the courtroom. "Thank you, Judge," he said, grasping the Jurist's hand. "Congratulate my wife—this is her victory," declared the former Governor when a friend patted him on the shoulder.

Mr. Davis made this brief statement to the Associated Press: "It's the kind of vindication I expected and deserved." Then he rushed from the court house, saying he would rest. Another criminal action remains pending against him and his son Russell.

The earlier session of the court was taken up by arguments of attorneys and Judge James A. McClure's instructions to the jury.

The specific charge against Mr. Davis was that, while Governor of Kansas, he conspired with Carl J. Peterson, State Bank Commissioner, to ask money for issuing a pardon to Walter Crundy, a convicted Hutchinson banker.

In summing up Attorney General C. B. Griffith demanded a penitentiary sentence, while the jury was asked by the defense to acquit "this good-hearted and honest man."

"This man and his family," declared the Attorney General, shaking his finger at Mr. Davis, "don't mean anything. But this law suit means everything. You, gentlemen of the jury, must decide whether the men, whom you elect to public office shall debauch their trust. The crime which this man committed is a stab at the heart of your Government. That crime is more serious than murder in the first degree."

A few minutes before Mr. Davis had wiped a tear from his eye as the chief defense council, Colonel A. M. Harvey, besought the jurors to return a verdict of not guilty.

out that this issue would come up with the proposal of the minority of the Presbytery of New York, who filed complaints against the Presbytery for licensing certain men who refuse "to affirm essential doctrines of our Church."

The Moderator said there was also a complaint against the Synod of New York for upholding the Presbytery of New York in one of these cases. The cases will go before the Permanent Judicial Commission for trial and that body will report to the General Assembly.

Fundamentalists Discuss Candidates.

Until noon today the strongest candidate of the extreme Fundamentalists against Dr. Erdman was Dr. William L. McEwan of Pittsburgh, but word was received from Dr. McEwan that he could not accept the nomination because of ill health. In casting about for another candidate the extreme Fundamentalists considered Dr. Thompson and Dr. McAfee. Dr. Thompson is 70 years old and has just resigned as President of Ohio State University. The teaching of evolution is not barred in the State institution and this was said to be one of the reasons why extreme Fundamentalists opposed Dr. Thompson's nomination.

From Dr. McEwan the favor of the extreme Fundamentalists turned to Dr. McAfee. The Fundamentalists were jubilant when they learned of the difficulty of their opponents in finding a nominee.

Early in the afternoon Dr. McAfee was said still to be favored by the Macartney following. However, Mr. Bryan, who had previously declined to name his choice, met reporters at 4:30 o'clock, and, holding up five fingers, said just five words:

"I shall support Dr. Thompson."

Dr. Erdman was defeated for the office of Moderator last year by eighteen votes. His friends said today that the extreme Fundamentalist faction, headed by Mr. Bryan, Dr. Macarthey and Professor J. Gresham Machen of the Princeton Theological Seminary, misrepresented Dr. Erdman as a Modernist in spite of his orthodoxy. Dr. Erdman explained his own attitude today, as follows:

"I am a conservative in my views. I have always belonged to the great conservative body which forms the majority in the Presbyterian Church. I belong to no particular group or clique, but stand for the constitution of the Church. That means loyalty to our Church doctrine as well as to our form of government. Positively, I stand in this position.

"We must guard the doctrine of the Church, but we must do so by constitutional methods and by the law of the Church. I believe all differences will be settled if the parties abide by the law. The constitution is adequate enough to meet the problems that arise.

Would Bar Public Heresy Charges.

"Nor am I tolerant of heresy. But I believe that all charges of heresy should be taken before our Church courts and that men should not be accused of heresy in public, in the press, or in speech. They should only be convicted on evidence. In all our dealings we should show the spirit of charity. Therefore, I am a conservative and a constitutionalist.

"Still more important, I am eager for an advance movement in the work of the Church along such lines as evangelism and missions. There are those who feel that we should halt our work until we have first purged the Church, until we have removed all persons suspected of heresy. These men use the following illustration: They say that when a man is sick he may need an operation. He can do no work. After the operation he will work better. Therefore, they would practically stop the work of evangelism and missions until they separated from the Church those men whose beliefs are under suspicion.

"In opposition to that I would say that I really believe in Church discipline, but not in division. I believe in a united Church and in devotion to our work at home and abroad. In a word, my general platform is that of purity and peace and progress in the Presbyterian Church."

Dr. Erdman added that along these lines he would be glad to work with any group of men in the Church.

The General Council adopted today a resolution giving a minority of the Judicial Commission the same right to present its report to the General Assembly as the majority. Hitherto the majority report alone has been presented. Last year a minority of the commission was unable to present a report on the Fosdick case, in which it demanded drastic action against the Presbytery of New York.

The resolution was adopted today, when Mr. Bryan made a strong plea for the rights of minorities, arguing that the General Assembly was liable to err in its decisions and that it had two or even three opinions before it, more information would be available upon which a decision could be taken.

The Presbytery of Union has presented an overture that the Board of Christian Education be directed to withhold aid from students for the ministry who use tobacco.

METHODIST BISHOPS DENOUNCE LUXURIES

CHICAGO, May 20 (AP).—A plea to the membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church to forego habits of luxurious personal expenditure and "show themselves willing in the day of God's power" has been made by the Board of Bishops of the Church.

"Who today feels the burden of the Lord?" said the appeal. "Who will share it with Him? Who is willing to bear in his Body the marks of the Lord Jesus?

"Worldliness abounds, wickedness has organized and is boldly defiant. A crass materialism is manifest in our social, commercial and political life," the Board of Bishops continued.

"But we do not despair. There is a sovereign remedy. Let the Church lay hold of the living Christ to regenerate the individual, the community, the nations. There is no occasion for pessimism. The world is not to grow worse, but better. The gospel has not lost its efficiency. It is still the power of God unto salvation. Christ is to reign in human lives until judgment, justice and good-will are established in all the earth.

"Christ alone can save the world, but even Christ cannot save the world alone. Will the Church respond to the challenge and meet the crying need of the hour?

"The centenary was a great forward movement. But the pace has slackened. Our whole missionary enterprise is imperiled. Another out means disaster. The call is for personal consecration, for a new devotion to the complete program of our Lord.

"One of the two Spring conferences which reports a notable increase in its gifts to our benevolences has accepted an honestly practical tithing as a Christian privilege and duty. This might easily be repeated all over the Church.

"We therefore appeal to our people everywhere to become stewards of the manifold grace of God. We urge stewardship, not as a temporary financial expedient, but as a settled scriptural policy and a high privilege. It should include time, talent and blessing. There is no other way which will so surely bring to the Church an enriched spiritual life and to the community a genuine revival of religion."

May Advise Higher Glove Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Tariff Commission is expected to send to President Coolidge soon a recommendation for a 50 per cent. increase in the tariff on cotton gloves. It is intimated that a similar recommendation may be made regarding the duty on straw hats. The commission has practically completed an inquiry into the production costs of these two articles compared with costs in countries exporting them to the United States.

COSTS OF RIFF WAR WORRY PAINLEVE

PREMIER CONSULTS PETAIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 20.—Marshal Petain, who is the head of the French Army, had a long interview today with Premier Painleve on the general situation and the effect on the army strength of France should the Moroccan campaign be severe and prolonged.

It is now an open subject of discussion in Paris that Abd-el-Krim's attack has caused an alteration of the whole general political outlook of first-rate importance. It is almost a month since the fighting began and it is becoming every day more and more fully realised that the native tribes, who were last year victorious over the Spaniards, are not going to be disposed of in the restricted area in which the French are confined without a long and costly campaign.

Coming at the moment when peace compact negotiations with Germany have opened most inauspiciously with Dr. Stresemann's claim for full German liberty and revision of the treaty stipulations concerning the eastern frontier, it is at least a misfortune of very real magnitude, it is felt, that the military strength of France should be in danger of depletion through the necessity of sending so many men to Morocco.

Financing Causes Anxiety.

Further, the financial aspect of the Riffian campaign is causing great uneasiness. For the transport of men and supplies the French have to employ foreign tonnage. A considerable amount of the army purchases have to be made abroad in countries where the exchange is high, and added to that is the cost of maintaining the army, even though largely composed of native troops, in the torrid climate of Northern Africa through the Summer months in a district which is cut off from the seaboard and extremely difficult of access.

These two features of the campaign—its cost in man power and its cost in money—are becoming a matter of very serious concern to the Government, and it is little comfort to declare that the position is none of French seeking, but has been forced on them by the failure of the Spaniards to keep control of their part of Morocco and by the invasion by the Riffs of the French zone, with the consequent uprising among some formerly well-disposed tribes.

Though the complication of France's external situation is more important than the possible results of the campaign, the more immediate problem is probably the political consequences it will have internally. The revolt among the Socialists has taken almost a definitely hostile turn. Premier Painleve's declaration last night on the character and cost of the war was made in an effort to halt the growing revolt among his more extreme supporters. It is still hoped that he rift between the two wings of the Left parties may be avoided, and the Government is seeking by every means to prevent it by advancing the argument that a split would open the way for the reactionary parties to take control, though in the minority.

Socialists Would Control Policy.

The Socialists are, however, tied by dogma and past declarations to opposition to character Riff war, and their attitude is that the Government has during the parliamentary recess embarked on undertaking which they wish to control.

When the Chamber meets again on Monday they will be ready with interpellations, and it is on the answer which Premier Painleve can make that the fate of the Left union will depend. The Socialists have derived encouragement from the recent municipal elections and are inclined even more than formerly to dictate the policy of the Government.

Between their demands and the defense of Morocco against the Riff invaders M. Painleve will have to steer a difficult course. It is a course which for him as an advanced Liberal is especially difficult and complicated, and it is due to the attitude of Germany and the anxiety about the financial situation, as hard as any Prime Minister has ever had to face.

Outposts Get Supplies

The Mountain Warfare in Morocco today was chiefly confined to replenishing the supplies of the various frontline posts. Each of these operations necessitated advance and flank guards up the steep hillsides and over a broad area in order to rid the neighborhood of lurking Riffian warriors, who cannot be prevented from stealing up in the dark of night to boulders or low trees from whence they can snipe at convoys or garrisons of outposts.

The principal of such operations today occurred at Bibane, where the water and the food supply had to be renewed. The operation was an entire success, due to the combined advance of the supplies from the valley and a sortie of the defenders toward them.

The French object is now to complete a chain of strong blockhouses, surrounded by trenches and barbed wire, controlling each valley crossing their border. But to do this they must await the arrival of all the troops sent. Meanwhile the forces are obliged to do double duty, driving the enemy out of one valley one day and out of another the next. These continuous marches are fatiguing, due to the nature of infantry equipment and the necessity of continually supplying the troops, while the Riffians live on next to nothing and keep one jump ahead of the French.

This is the reason why the operations are slow and even seem to show regression in some spots, but heavy losses are being daily inflicted on the enemy, due to machine guns, airplane bombs and more rarely artillery.

It is possible now to discount reports that the Riffians are using airplanes, although they have exhibited few to their soldiers to boost their morale, but which cannot fly, due to lack of various parts. Their artillery is very poor and composed of three batteries, and with scanty ammunition, which often does not explode, due to the Riffians' lack of acquaintance with the operation of fuses.

A Canadian official who returned to Paris today from Morocco says that German machine guns have been captured by the French, and that the Riffians have a large supply of these, according to reports from the front. Thus the Riffians only have the ubiquitous riflemen to count on, and, due to the nature of the terrain, it will take many times their numbers to keep them out.

Abd-el-Krim Increases Forces.

PARIS, May 20 (AP).—Late reports from the zone of activities in Morocco say that the forces of Abd-el-Krim, the rebel leader, on the Ouergha front, which were estimated at 20,000 men when the first drive began, have been largely increased.

The belief prevails in military circles here that Abd-el-Krim is making ready for a hard push toward Ouezzan, while at the same time accentuating the propaganda which is going on not only among the pacified tribes in the French zone but in Algeria, Egypt and India, and even France.

The attempt of the rebel leader to transform his movement into a holy war is believed to have failed, because he is at the head of a mass of Berber tribesmen, who have no sympathies with the Mussulmans. The Communist forces in France, however, are declared to have actively enlisted in Abd-el-Krim's cause and are endeavoring to develop sentiment hostile to further action in the Riff region by the French forces. Their action is said to be supported by the extreme Socialists, who are alleged in political circles here to have chosen this pretext to attack the Cabinet.

Abd-el-Krim, whose brother was in Paris a few months ago trying vainly to get in touch with the Government, is said to be fully aware of this possibility and is believed to be strengthening his forces all he can for a drive just about the time the Chamber of Deputies convenes next Monday so as to increase the embarrassment of the Government.

Marshal Lyautey, the French Commander-in-Chief in Morocco, is said in official circles here to have received orders to remain on the defensive and to refrain from overstepping the boundary line and attacking Riffians outside the French zone.

ALICANTE, Spain, May 20 (AP).—Abd-el-Krim is commanding in person the movement against the French in Morocco, according to passengers arriving from Oran, Algeria. The Riffian chief is also preaching Communist doctrine among the tribes and promising rich booty if they join his forces. The spread of communism has provoked frequent incidents of late, compelling the authorities to adopt extreme precautionary measures.

EL ARAISH, Morocco, May 20 (AP).—Advices from Fez, headquarters of the French operations against the Moors, say there are persistent reports that General Count de Chambrun, who is in supreme command of the French fighting forces during the Riffian invasion of French territory, has been relieved of his command.

Official View of Situation.

FEZ, Morocco, May 20 (AP).—"General Colombat's forces revictualed the Bibane position Tuesday after a brilliant engagement," says an official communication issued here today.

"Our troops started toward Tenaro as soon as the fog lifted. The left flank guard marched on the village of Beni Kiffen and the right on Khitoun. The movement was supported by artillery posted at Tafrant and Fezelbala. From the bottom of the Hope our troops had to drive back numerous groups of the enemy, who contested the ground inch by inch. There even was hand-to-hand fighting in the covered and camouflaged trenches.

"The highly efficient support of our artillery and aviators enabled us to reach our objective at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The operation reflected the greatest honor on our troops, who carried very difficult wooded and well-organized ground against a tenacious enemy.

"On the western front the situation is stationary. Enemy reinforcements, notably 400 Riffians, have reached the eastern extremity of this sector. There is no particular change in the situation in the centre. The enemy has been observed to be assembling on the upper Guergha and infiltrations toward Immatour are increasing. Colonel Freydenberg's group was at Gara des Messiat on the 19th.

"On the east the situation is unchanged. There are persistent rumors of an attack on Oued Ooouan."

MADRID, May 20 (AP).—Louis Malvey, who was recently sent to Madrid by the French Government to confer with the Spanish Government regarding the Moroccan situation, bade farewell to General Primo de Rivera, head of the Military Directory, this evening. He will return to Paris tomorrow. Both Malvey and Primo de Rivera admitted having discussed the Moroccan question, but denied that they touched on political matters.

Recent Paris dispatches connected M. Malvey's mission to Spain with a desire of France to carry her war in Morocco into that part of the Spanish zone which has been in the hands of the rebels since the Spanish retreat from Xauen. The dispatches referred to the fact that the French Government required the consent of Spain before entering the Spanish zone.

TELLS HOW ABD-EL-KRIM CAPTURED RAISULI

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TANGIER, May 20.—A native of Raisuli's stronghold in the Beni tribelands, describing to me today the famous chieftain's capture by Abd-el-Krim's contingents on Jan. 27, informs me of two incidents which remained unreported. Hariro, Abd-el-Krim's lieutenant, who commanded the Riff force, sent a letter to Raisuli two days before the attack began. He demanded that Raisuli should declare himself a true Moslem by joining Krim's war against the Spaniards or die as an infidel and friend of the Christian enemy.

This letter Hariro entrusted to the Kaid of Beni, who had suffered imprisonment at the hands of Raisuli. In revenge the Kaid secreted the missive, which often he had delivered it and as there was no reply Raisuli was attacked and captured.

On Hariro asking him why he had not answered the letter, Raisuli stated he had never received it. Had he done so he said he would have joined Krim and this bloodshed would have been avoided.

The Kaid interrogated, finally confessed having concealed the letter. He was immediately shot at Hariro's orders by a squad of Riffs for having caused the shedding of Moslem blood at a moment when a holy war was in progress against the Spaniards.

Next day when Raisuli was being carried away a captive on a rough litter borne shoulder high by the Riffs he raised himself and, turning to a crowd of tribesmen who stood watching his departure, he cried:

"Laugh at the fall of Raisuli. Rejoice at his humiliation, but the day is coming when you would give all you possess to have him back again. It will be too late then. It is too late now. I go forth to die."

PROHIBITION ROW IN BERLIN.

Police Quell Disorders in Church When "Wet" Opposes "Dry."

BERLIN, May 20 (AP).—Police aid had to be summoned to quell a row in the Trinity Evangelical Church, which developed last night during a meeting called as a prohibition demonstration.

After the meeting was opened Alderman Harper rose, demanded to know the names of those who had arranged the demonstration, and asked for the privilege of the floor so as to present the arguments of the opposition.

When the privilege of the house was denied him the church was thrown into an uproar which, even the singing of Luther's "Einfeste Burg" could not stem.

Wisconsin Assembly Favors Beer Vote; Asks Repeal by States of 18th Amendment

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, May 20.—Wet forces in Wisconsin scored decisive victories in the State Assembly today when majorities approved two resolutions, one petitioning President Coolidge to call a constitutional convention to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment and the other calling for a State-wide referendum on 2.75 per cent. beer in 1926.

The beer measure, already adopted by the Senate, was passed, 51 to 34, after a heated fight on the floor, when the drys, advocating milk as a substitute for beer, were shouted down.

When Assemblyman Carl Koening suggested milk as a substitute for beer several other members caused a flurry by shouting:

"We want beer."

An amendment offered by E. F. Pahl, Milwaukee Assemblyman, attaching a clause to the measure that beer, if it should be legalized, be sold only for home consumption, was adopted. Mr. Pahl said any loophole for the saloon should be avoided.

The big fight in the Assembly centred on this resolution. The drys attempted to cripple it with an amendment that the question be submitted at the April election rather than in the Fall, but they were beaten at every turn.

Political consideration figured in the vote on the beer referendum. This was evident when several drys who are backers of Governor Blaine for the Senate supported the resolution on the theory that a vote on the merits of prohibition will aid the Governor in the fight against Senator Lenroot.

For the same reason a number of wets opposed the resolution, feeling that Senator Lenroot, a dry, would be placed in an embarrassing position if the referendum gets tied up with the Senatorial campaign.

Assemblyman George Meggers, father of the resolution calling upon the President to summon a constitutional convention to modify the Eighteenth Amendment, declared that lawlessness and crime are on the increase under prohibition, which he termed a "colossal failure."

The Assembly's vote was 48 to 38 in adopting this resolution.

Dry leaders point out tonight that the referendum on the beer question will have no effect upon the national and State prohibition laws. The referendum will be the first test vote on the issue in the United States since the Eighteenth Amendment was adopted.

REPORTS NINE SHIPS NOW IN RUM FLEET

Coast Guard Captain Says Two Have Returned After Retreat From Blockade.

TURNING AGAIN TO CANADA

Bootleggers Are Said to Have Landed 1,000 Cases of Scotch at Huntington, L. I.

Captain W. V. E. Jacobs, commandant of the New York Division of the Coast Guard, announced yesterday afternoon that the latest reports from patrol boats of the dry navy showed there were nine vessels in the rum fleet that still hovers off the New York and New Jersey coast.

He said that two of the nine had arrived since Tuesday and had dropped anchor off the eastern end of Long Island. These two ships, he said, had sailed away from rum row a week ago as a result of the blockade. Why they had returned he did not know.

The revenue cutters Seminole and Gresham and the destroyers Cunningham and Porter put in at Coast Guard base No. 2, at Stapleton, S. I., yesterday, after fifteen days at sea between New York Harbor and Cape May. They reported that on their trip up the coast from the vicinity of Atlantic City they saw only four liquor ships, one of which was the only rum boat they discerned on the old New York Rum Row.

This ship was about forty miles off Sandy Hook and was a Dutch steamer which has been swinging out to sea for 100 or 200 miles and back to the twelve-mile limit every few days since the blockade began. She is closely guarded by the revenue cutter Manhattan and four seventy-five-foot patrol boats, which she cannot shake off.

According to the crews of the returned revenue cutters and destroyers, there is no longer such a thing as rum row and a trip out to sea on a Coast Guard boat resolves itself simply into eating, fishing and standing watch.

The CG-184, a 75-foot patrol boat, returned to Staten Island reporting that it had picked out the body of a man who had been dead about six months at 9 A. M. Monday five miles southeast of Fire Island. On wireless instructions from New York, the Coast Guard crew buried the body at sea. The body had been mutilated, and could not be identified. The mutilation, according to the Coast Guard, might have been caused by a ship striking the body.

That the success of the Coast Guard blockade has forced bootlegging syndicates to turn to Canada again for the source of their Scotch whisky supply was indicated by a report from Huntington, on the north shore of Long Island. It said that more than 1,000 cases of whisky had been landed in Huntington and Cold Spring Harbors over the last week-end, presumably after having been conveyed on trucks down from the Canadian border and ferried across Long Island Sound from Connecticut.

Mulhouse Wins in Liquor Case.

MARSEILLES, France, May 20.—The Commercial Tribune rejected today the claim of the Morue Française Company against the owners of the steamer Mulhouse for the payment of the value of 36,000 cases of liquor taken by hi-jackers from the Mulhouse off the United States coast last Summer. In addition, the Court ordered the plaintiff company to pay the costs of the litigation.

SUING TRUSTEES SAY STRATON IS 'UNSAFE'

the five anti-Straton trustees have been informed that Justice Black, Ely R. Callaway and P. A. Carter, pro-Straton trustees, are relatives of either Dr. Straton or his wife. It charges that the pastor is trying to remove the five anti-Stratonites and replace them with "pliant tools" who will do his wishes. After Mr. Peck was elected as a trustee early this year, according to the affidavit, Dr. Straton voted at a trustees' meeting on May 11, and was allowed to do so by Justice Black over protests from other trustees that the pastor was not a member of the board, in an unsuccessful attempt to rescind the election of Mr. Peck.

George Leask, who went to Calvary Collegiate Church of the Covenant when the latter church was consolidated with Calvary Church in 1918, is the author of another anti-Straton affidavit. Mr. Leask charges that after becoming a trustee of Calvary Church he was defeated for re-election in 1921 because he was not in sympathy with Dr. Straton, who, according to the affidavit, "will brook no opposition." The affidavit adds that Mr. Leask was suspended in 1923 by the Board of Deacons in "secret conclave."

Mr. Leask alleges that Calvary Church has spent all of the $105,000 it received from the sale of Collegiate Church property at 326 West Thirty-third Street except $20,731.28, which was added to the endowment fund, and that it has "dissipated" the larger part of the money. He also says he has been informed that at the present rate of expenditures in connection with the church budget there will be a deficit this year of between $7,000 and $10,000, although the church receives $12,000 or more a year from the endowment brought to it by the Collegiate Church and about $2,200 a year from other invested endowment funds. He asserts that the church has incurred bank loans of $4,000 since Feb. and that none of this has been spent for repairs or improvements of church property.

The plaintiffs also are using an affidavit sworn to in 1920 by the late Rev. Dr. Robert Stuart MacArthur, former pastor of Calvary Church, to show that he pledged to those who gave money for the building of the church on its present site that a mortgage would never be placed on it.

The complaint sets forth that the plaintiffs constitute five of the nine trustees, that the church property in West Fifty-seventh Street is worth more than $1,000,000 and is free and clear of encumbrances, that the church has $88,000 of endowment funds invested, and that it owns business property valued at $250,000 on Bleecker Street, formerly owned by the Collegiate Church. This combined property, worth about $1,500,000, and accumulated over seventy-five years, the complaint says, the trustees are seeking to protect.

"Subjecting this property to the hazard of large mortgages for the purpose of building a combined hotel and church," the complaint says, "is placing the property in jeopardy and diverting it to uses not contemplated by the donors."

The complaint charges that the acts and contemplated acts of the defendants in connection with the building plan are illegal and in bad faith.

It is set forth in the complaint that a proposition was presented to a corporate meeting of the church last January to lease the Fifty-seventh Street property to a firm of real estate operators and builders for ninety-nine years, and was referred to the Board of Trustees to work out the details. It says that Dr. Straton strongly urged approval of the lease, providing for the erection of a combination church and hotel costing $3,100,000, payment of $40,000 a year ground rent to the church during demolition and construction, and $70,000 a year after completion of the building for the balance of the first twenty-one years of the lease, and providing that the church execute a bond and mortgage to cover the cost of the structure, less $500,000.

The Plan Condemned.

The complaint says the board referred the project to Mr. Busbee as counsel, who on April 8 reported to a corporate meeting, strongly condemning the plan as a dangerous one for the church to enter and as a breach of trust on the part of the present church membership to those who gave money for the erection of the present building at a cost of $500,000 as a result of Dr. MacArthur's pledge that no mortgage should ever be placed on the property.

According to the complaint, Justice Black then demanded that Mr. Busbee resign as counsel, adding "that if he did not they would throw him out." Mr. Busbee failing to resign, the complaint says, the corporate meeting on Justice Black's motion removed him and appointed W. B. Pierce as counsel. The complaint adds that the building proposition was referred to Mr. Pierce, who at a corporate meeting on May 5 reported against the acceptance of the proposition in its present form. The corporate meeting then appointed a new committee, the complaint adds, consisting of Justice Black and four deacons, to investigate the matter and bring in a new proposition. The complaint alleges that Justice Black said they would allow no one on the committee who was not in favor of the building project.

The complaint asserts that all the plaintiffs are threatened with expulsion from the church membership because of their opposition to Dr. Straton. It asserts that Mr. Peck was elected to the Board of Trustees in accordance with regular procedure on April 6 last; that he has been an active member of the church for thirty-seven years; that he is in good and regular standing, and that no charges have ever been filed against him. It says that the action of the corporate body on May 5 in declaring Mr. Peck's election as trustee null and void was in itself null and void, and that the Board of Trustees subsequently upheld Mr. Peck's right to sit as a trustee.

A complete list of defendants named in the complaint is: Dr. Straton, as pastor and ex-officio member of various committees and boards; Justice Black, Mr. Carter, Mr. Callaway and Thomas Kelley, trustees, and Alva Briggs, J. M. Gilliam, John A. Kelley, Alfred E. Smith, Leonard E. Wilson, Adolf Mindewall, K. Barnes, Felix Davis, L. B. Haines, G. C. Hoffman and H. A. Van Opstall, deacons.

Justice Black yesterday retained Frank P. Walsh as counsel. Dr. Straton will be represented by Alfred E. Smith, one of the Calvary Church Deacons (not the Governor or the Governor's son), and the church will be represented by Mr. Pierce. These attorneys for the defense will present affidavits to the Court on Monday denying the charges in the affidavits and complaint of the anti-Stratonites, and will be prepared to argue before Justice Guy that the case should be thrown out of court.

It is understood that the defense will maintain, among other things, that the church is on an even keel financially, that it paid all its expenses last year, and that it has no debts. The defense also is expected to argue that the very trustees who have brought the present action already have control of the "temporalities" of the church, as they are a majority of the Board of Trustees. It is also anticipated that the defense will point out that a receivership might cost the church several hundred thousands of dollars in fees and expenses.

Pro-Stratonites said they had realized some time ago that the only chance the "dissenters" had was to seek delay on the building project by court action, and that the defense was well prepared. The pro-Straton group also pointed out that the church membership in the corporate meetings had supported Dr. Straton by a vote of 4 to 1.

ONTARIO PREPARED FOR BIG BEER RUSH

Twelve Windsor Hotels Have Supplies Laid In for Opening at 7 A. M. Today.

DETROIT FERRIES FACE JAM

Arkansan Wires Reservation—Wayne B. Wheeler Calls the Beverage "Weak."

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., May 20.—Beer kegs were rolling into the basements of twelve Windsor (Ont.) hotels today to welcome the thousands who are expected to jam the ferries from Detroit when 4.4 per cent. beer becomes legal tomorrow in Ontario.

Meanwhile billboards advertising the new beverage have sprung up all over Windsor. Trucks, gayly decorated with British flags and bearing advertisements of the beer, paraded down Windsor's thoroughfares. A holiday atmosphere has also invaded the border cities.

The beer will remain in bottles and barrels until 7 A. M. At this hour the first bottle can will pop. No beer, however, will be served at bars. Customers must be seated at tables.

The beer deliveries were started today because it was feared enough would not be on hand to care for the demand if the breweries were to wait until 12:01 A. M. Both the Walkerville and British-American breweries had enough on hand to take care of a small army, their officials stated.

A permit was expected at the American Club, a newly established organization sponsored by Albert Dewey Welta American Vice Consul in Windsor. The club holds a year's lease on a $75,000 residence.

Captain Fred J. Simpson of the Detroit-Windsor Ferry Company, was expecting the Detroit River to become as well known as the Jordan, the Rubicon or the Styx. He said the ferry lines could handle more than 200,000 passengers a day.

Manager Roberts of the Prince Edward Hotel, in Windsor, declared he had received one reservation from as far as Arkansas. He was hopeful of Detroit and Windsor becoming the gateway of "the great American inland desert." The hotel has facilities and equipment to care for 1,500 drinking men at a time.

The Prince Edward is planning to charge 25 cents for a bottle and 15 cents for a twelve-ounce schooner. Other hotels are planning on 25 cents for a bottle, but have not definitely decided on the cost per schuper. The brewery price is $15 a half barrel.

BUFFALO, May 20 (AP).—Thirsty Americans will be disappointed in the new Ontario 4.4 beer, which goes on sale tomorrow, said Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, on his arrival here tonight. "The new Canadian beverage is weak when judged by American standards, he said, as in American terms its alcoholic content is about 2.3 per cent.

Anticipation of a rush of American visitors to Canada tomorrow, was greater across the Niagara River today than among Buffalo officialdom.

While the one standard hotel in Fort Erie and the two establishments in Bridgeburg, Buffalo's Canadian counterpart, were making ready for the expected invasion, the American customs force here and Buffalo police authorities were little concerned.

One extra policeman has been detailed to the American side of the international bridge. No extra customs men will be on duty, however.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 20.—Up to noon today not one permit for the sale of 4.4 per cent. beer had been received in this city, according to License Inspector Frank Miller, who has made a survey. Unless the precious necessary documents arrive this afternoon hotel owners will not be able to turn on the tap at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning as scheduled.

Two local hotel owners who applied for permits had their applications returned to them, as one or two questions had not been answered correctly. Ten hotels have applied for permits.

It is likely that the beer will be sold at all Queen Victoria Park concessions, as they are operated by the Government through the Park Commission. There will be little chance for the sale of beer at other places on the river road, the most traveled road by motor tourists.

TORONTO, May 20 (AP).—With haste and expectancy the Province of Ontario today completed preparations for the morrow when 4.4 beer may be dispensed in hotels under Government license and supervision.

Hostelries rushed to complete their renovation of long neglected taprooms, moving out brass rails and bars to comply with regulations that the beverages may be served only at tables. Breweries began shipments yesterday, working night and day to distribute enough for all.

The price per glass has not been settled. Toronto hotelmen are expecting to charge 10 cents for ten ounces, but in Ottawa, where Quebec competition is felt, some innkeepers will ask but 5 cents.

Expect Beer Runners on St. Lawrence

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., May 20 (AP).—Federal officials combatting the liquor traffic in this territory believe that beer runners operating along the northern frontier will shift the scene of their greatest activity soon after legal sale of 4.4 beer in Ontario is begun. The land route will be supplanted by the St. Lawrence River route, in their opinion.

Instead of transporting beer from the Province of Quebec across the border by land near Rouses Point and at other places between there and Malone, beer runners would be able to obtain cargoes in Ontario and transport them only a mile, by water in getting them into the United States, it was pointed out.

Heretofore beer runners have faced the greatest danger of capture between Rouses Point or Plattsburgh and Ogdensburg. The water route, particularly under cover of darkness, eliminates many of the hazards.

of the Twentieth Century Limited all the way down the Hudson and will get a flying start from under the Albany railroad bridge just as the train passes overhead. The start will be at 6:23 o'clock in the morning.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 20.—Radio engineers have completed arrangements to broadcast from an airplane the race between Gar Wood's speed boats and the Twentieth Century Express along the Hudson River between Albany and New York on Monday. Announcers with radio telephone and telegraph transmitters in the giant Sikorsky airplane will report the race mile after mile to WGY at Schenectady and WJZ at New York, whence the story will be re-broadcast.

WGY will handle signals while the plane is north of Poughkeepsie and WJZ will take up the task below that city. Interconnecting land wires will permit both stations to broadcast a continuous story. Should conditions be unfavorable the operator in the plane will use the telegraph transmitter.

my partner gets away and if you attempt to come out of there in that time, I'll begin to shoot."

For a few minutes Manella and the clerk could hear the robbers discussing the total of their loot. Then he heard both men hurry to the door. Before they had slammed it behind them Manella had burst open the door of the closet and started in pursuit of the robbers.

"Police! A hold-up!" Manella shouted as he ran into the throng of persons passing in front of the store, in his pursuit of the bandits, who had gone in the direction of Fourteenth Street. Manella almost caught up with them as they turned the corner west into the side street in the direction of Tammany Hall. The bandits slipped in and out of the crowd which was coming toward Third Avenue, but Manella managed to keep trace of them. When they neared Tammany Hall the bandits saw Policeman Herbert Faust of the East Twenty-second Street Station leisurely walking toward them.

Manella saw the policeman, too, and as the bandits darted to the street in the direction of Union Square, behind a line of taxicabs parked in front of Tammany Hall, the druggist ran up to the policeman and said: "Those two fellows hiding behind those machines have just stuck me up in my store."

Faust ran toward the men, but before he could pull his pistol from his holster one of them, said to have been McCormick, fired two shots at him as the other bandit fled. A stream of men and women returning to their homes from near-by motion picture theatres and stores ran in all directions to get out of range, leaving the policeman a clear target for the gunman, who was using one of the taxicabs as a shield.

Plainclothes Policemen James Kelly, Joseph Wind and James McMackin of the Special Service Division, happened to be driving east in an automobile when the shooting began. Kelly, who was driving the car, drove to within a few feet of the gunman and he and Wind and McMackin opened fire. Detectives Walter McCaddin, Timothy Luddy, Charles Kane and another detective of the East Twenty-second Street Station were dining in a near-by restaurant when the shooting began.

They ran through the vanishing crowd to Faust, who motioned to them to shoot the gunman behind the taxicab. Luddy, Kane and the fourth detective then joined the three plainclothes policemen and Faust in the fusillade on the bandit, while McCaddin, noticing that the gunman's attention was centered on them and the three policemen in the automobile, slipped around the taxicab to the rear of McCormick and, with the butt of his pistol, knocked him unconscious.

Uniformed and other policemen came hurrying up from all directions and lines of policemen were formed across the street east and west of Tammany Hall when Policeman Faust and the druggist told the detectives that there was another bandit to be accounted for. Faust thought that one of the first bullets he fired had struck this robber, but in the excitement of the battle he got away.

Examination of the wound which caused the death of the unidentified man indicated that it had been made by a pistol of small calibre. The police said that the empty pistol which fell from McCormick's hand when he was knocked down by Detective McCaddin was a .25 calibre. McCormick was reported to have admitted at the station that $41.80 found in his pockets was part of the loot obtained in the drug store hold-up.

WARNS OF DANGERS IN PANIC ON SUBWAY

MAYOR ORDERS AN INQUIRY

Wants to Know if Inflammable Materials Are Kept in Tunnels—Five Injured Still in Bellevue.

An appeal to subway riders to remain calm and not give way to panic in case of a short circuit such as occurred in the Lexington Avenue subway Tuesday morning, when more than 100 persons were injured, was made yesterday by the Transit Commission through Commissioner Le Roy T. Harkness. The transit companies have been requested to place notices in all cars cautioning passengers to restrain themselves in cases of emergency.

At the same time Mayor Hylan wrote to Fire Commissioner Thomas J. Drennan to inspect the subways to ascertain whether there were any accumulations of inflammable materials in the subways. Corporation Counsel George F. Nicholson issued a statement warning the Transit Commission that it should compel the B.-M. T. to scrap the last of its wooden subway cars.

"Danger of panic," reads the statement of Commissioner Harkness, "is the one thing in transit operation that causes the greatest concern to the operating officials of the railroads as well as to the Transit Commission.

"Elaborate safeguards are thrown about transit operation to prevent accidents, and when from time to time accidents do unavoidably happen the operating people are trained to take care of them. But panic is something that they cannot control. Deplorable as yesterday's accident was, the results of that panic are hardly a circumstance to what we can conceive of happening when a crowded trailload of passengers becomes terror-stricken and gets out of all control.

Warns of Peril in Panics.

"Yesterday's accident, with a very few exceptions, resulted in minor injuries. That experience and the lesson it teaches indicate the much more serious consequence that might befall from a similar panic in other situations; as, for example, in one of the deep tunnels, such as those under the rivers. In view of this I feel justified in asking officially for the aid of the press in giving the public full information in the hope that it will counteract the present tendency to panic."

The statement then explains the cause of Tuesday's accident, and points out that "the short circuit did no damage to either the passengers or the cars. The injuries all came from the panic."

Explaining what normally occurs in case of a short circuit the statement says that at intervals of 400 feet in the subway there are switches and telephones, marked by a blue light, where the power can be shut off and that if the motorman of the train in the accident had not been caught in the jam of terrified passengers, he could have run to the nearest switch and turned off the power, cut out the car involved in the short circuit, asked for the power to be turned on again and started the train on its way again possibly within five minutes.

"There are numerous short circuits in the subways with their attendant flash and report, and normally they are handled in just this way," the statement says, explaining that train crews were under specific instruction as to what to do in emergencies of that kind.

"I do not wish to minimize appreciation of the fact that a short circuit in a crowded train underground would scare anybody, even momentarily," Mr. Harkness said, "but I do want to point out and, if possible, to have the public understand that these short circuits in themselves are not dangerous. I cannot urge too strongly that in the case of accidents the safe course for everybody is to keep cool and keep still."

Mayor Orders Inquiry.

City of New York,
Office of the Mayor,
May 20, 1925.

Thomas J. Drennan, Esq., Fire Commissioner.

Dear Commissioner—Had it not been for the effective work of Acting Chief of Department Joseph B. Martin, the panic caused by the fire yesterday morning in the Lexington Avenue subway at Forty-first Street and Park Avenue might have resulted in a terrible loss of life.

Still another fire occurred in the subway at 5:50 P. M. last night in the station at Spring and Lafayette Streets. This fire originated in an unwarranted storage of combustible material such as wooden ties, wooden barrels, grease and other deposits on the platform. Only the prompt action of the Fire Department extinguished this fire before it assumed serious proportions.

The duty rests upon the State Transit Commission to prevent the existence of conditions which are dangerous to the public safety in connection with the operation of trains in this city. The condition at Spring and Lafayette Streets should not have been permitted to exist. It could only have existed because of the neglect or indifference of McAneny, Harkness and O'Ryan.

I direct you to cause a thorough investigation to be made and ascertain wherever any condition exists similar to that which existed at Spring and Lafayette Streets and is the result of the neglect of the State Transit Commission, so that some action may be taken to compel this commission to perform its full duty for the protection of the public.

I was amazed to learn that A. H. Merritt, Superintendent of Traffic for the Interborough, was insolent in his language and attitude toward Acting Chief Martin. Chief Martin reports Merritt as saying, "I did not send for you or the Fire Department; we don't want you here; we can get along very nicely without you." Mr. Merritt's response to the questioning of Acting Chief Martin as to why trains were in operation in the Lexington Avenue subway when hundreds of people were blindly groping in the dark along the tracks, met the flippant answer, "Well, nothing happened, did it?"

Such an attitude is intolerable in any one charged with the duty of protecting the public. If McAneny, Harkness and O'Ryan will not cooperate with the Fire Department in furtherance of the public safety, perhaps they at least may be prevailed upon to direct Mr. Merritt and other private traction officials to treat with decency and fairness members of the Fire Department who are using every endeavor to protect the lives of people endangered by neglect or lack of vigilance on the part of the traction companies.

Very truly yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN,
Mayor.

Nicholson Assails I. R. T.

Corporation Counsel Nicholson cited a statement by Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, as disclosing that the car in which the short circuit occurred had not been overhauled for three months, and asserted that the period between overhauling "shows how the Interborough is skimping on necessary work for safe operation of the city's railroads."

"I wish to observe," Mr. Nicholson's statement continues, "that we have here a striking object lesson to the Transit Commission—that is, that immediate action should be taken in removing all wooden cars from subway operation. I am referring now to the B.-M. T., which is still continuing 147 wooden or semi-wooden cars on the Centre Street loop. A short circuit on any one of these might have serious results.

"Let the Transit Commission take action to see that all equipment is maintained in safe condition and particularly that all wooden or semi-wooden cars are taken forthwith from subway operation."

Five of the nine persons taken to Bellevue Hospital suffering from injuries received in the panic were still in the hospital yesterday.

At the time of the unveiling of the Sherman bust a salute will be fired by a detachment of artillery, while from above five airplanes from Mitchel Field under the command of Major Hensley, commandant of that field, will dip their planes in salute to his memory. They will also drop flowers. At this time Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall will deliver an address at the colonnade of the Hall of Fame in honor of General Sherman. A phonofilm address in honor of Asa Gray by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard, will also be made.

Night Air Mail Line Promised in Six Weeks; Will Help New York-Chicago Business

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Closer air mail communication between New York and Chicago will be an assured fact within six weeks, according to Rudolph I. Brauer, Superintendent of the Railway Mail Division in the Chicago district.

Over an air trail emblazoned by specially constructed powerful searchlights to prevent the fliers losing their way approximately half a ton of letters will be carried nightly, leaving Chicago at 6 P. M. and arriving in New York the following morning in time for the first delivery. A similar nightly flight will be made from New York to Chicago starting at 10 o'clock and arriving in Chicago in time for the mail to be on the business man's desk at the opening of business next day.

The definite announcement was made by Mr. Brauer after Carl F. Egge, General Superintendent of the Air Mail Service, had visited Chicago on a tour of inspection of all air mail fields along the New York-Chicago route.

The new service was decided upon after a complete survey of all businesses by Benjamin F. Meyers, assistant traffic manager of the air mail service in Chicago, had convinced the Postmaster General that such a "night line" would become one of the most important factors governing the business relations of the two cities.

The air mail at present is of no practical use to Chicagoans who desire speed in their New York correspondence. It leaves Chicago at 6 o'clock in the morning, arrives at New York the same evening after the close of business and therefore is not delivered until the following morning, so that business men who use the air mail to New York actually lose time and the Twentieth Century, accordingly, is used instead.

Under the new system Chicago business men may wait until the close of business to write their letters, mail them in time to catch the 6 o'clock plane and have them delivered in New York the next morning—or just as quickly as a letter mailed at the same time in Chicago to a Chicago address.

This will enable business houses here to receive answers inside of one business day, brokers can fill orders inside of thirty-six hours, and save thousands of dollars a year on interest. Radical changes in the banking systems of the two cities are expected to save millions of dollars monthly to Chicago bankers. It will allow Chicago merchants to give almost instantaneous service on orders to New York which ordinarily take four days and it will in many instances do away with the "private wire" service maintained by many business houses between Chicago and New York.

TRIES TO SAVE CHUM AND BOTH DROWN

Boy of 14, Unable to Swim, Dives When Playmate, 5, Falls Off a Raft.

HAD LAUNCHED A "SHIP"

Prank in the East River Has Fatal Ending — Neighborhood's Children Mourn.

Joseph Baroch, 14 years old, couldn't swim. But he wouldn't shirk the responsibility which he felt for the safety of his five-year-old playmate, Emanuel Lopez, who lived in the same tenement house at 21 Columbia Place, Brooklyn, and so when Emanuel toppled from a raft on which they were playing into the East River off Joralemon Street yesterday afternoon Joseph unhesitatingly plunged in after him. Both were drowned.

Usually at night time Columbia Street resounds with the cries of children at play. But last night, although nearly 200 children gathered in front of No. 21, they conversed in whispers and pointed small fingers at two plain white crêpes which hung on either side of the doorway.

Both boys were popular in the neighborhood. It never occurred to any one in Columbia Place that this friendship between them was unusual. "Manny" was such a manly little fellow that the older boys looked on him as an equal. Joseph attended Public School 78 at 174 Pacific Street. "Manny" hadn't started to school yet.

So every afternoon the little fellow would sit on the tenement stoop waiting for Joe to come home. Sometimes there were errands to be done for Mrs. Baroch and they didn't get a chance to visit their favorite playground on the docks. The other boys always noticed their absence. Joe could thrill them with stories of pirates and buried treasures and strange adventures in foreign lands.

But yesterday Joe was among the first ones home from school. Manny was waiting for him because there were matters of great importance to be attended to. They planned to launch their "ship." For weeks they had been gathering up driftwood along the waterfront and concealing it in an unfrequented spot under a dock which was known to them as "the cave." When the supply was deemed adequate they fastened these fragments together into a raft. Late Monday they finished the raft and yesterday they launched it.

Manny, seated forward, was playing captain and Joe was shoving off when the heard other boys who had been watching from the dock cry out. Turning about, Joe saw that the younger boy had fallen into the water.

A three-foot length of heavy manila cord which served as a hawser lay coiled in sailor fashion on the deck of the raft. Joe seized it and hurled one end to Manny. The child grabbed for it, missed and disappeared. Then Joe dived in after him. Both disappeared.

Laborers on a dock near by recovered the bodies. Joe's arms were still clasped about the younger boy.

Meanwhile some one had run to the home of the two boys and notified their parents. Joe's father, who works nights as a waiter, was at home, Manny's father, an iceman, had just finished work for the day. The two fathers ran to the dock, where they found that a pulmotor from the Brooklyn Union Gas Company was being used in vain on the bodies.

DID NOT GREET HINDENBURG

Chamberlain Says It Is Not Customary to Congratulate Presidents.

LONDON, May 20 (AP).—Speculation as to whether the British Government sent a message of congratulation to President von Hindenburg of Germany on his inauguration ended today when Foreign Secretary Austen Chamberlain, replying to a question in the House of Commons, said congratulations had not been sent.

He explained that "it is not the practice of his Majesty's Government to send out felicitations to the President of a foreign country."

When other questioners intimated that the British Government had felicitated former President Ebert of Germany when he took office and wanted to know why a similar procedure had not been followed in the case of von Hindenburg, Mr. Chamberlain replied he did not know what happened upon the occasion of President Ebert's inauguration. He admitted, however, that on special occasions, "for one reason or another," exceptions have been made.

SUES ACTRESS FOR RENT.

Lydig Hoyt Says Thelma Morgan Converse Owes $2,150 on Lease.

Mrs. Thelma Morgan Converse, film actress, who divorced James V. Converse in Los Angeles last month, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday by Lydig Hoyt for $2,150 rent of an apartment on the sixth floor of 136 East Sixty-seventh Street, under a two-year lease made in 1923.

The complaint alleges that Mrs. Converse, who is a sister of Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, failed to pay for the period from April, 1924, to the present month, amounting to $4,500, but that after she had abandoned the apartment it was relet during the period of the lease for $2,400, which is deducted from the claim.

SOLDIER IS SUICIDE AT REVEILLE CALL

CORPORAL FINDS HIM DEAD

Revolver on Floor and Bullet in Head Tell Part of Story—Rest He Took With Him.

Private Townsend Himes of Company D, Eighteenth Infantry, didn't turn out for réveille yesterday morning. Six other privates in his squad thought he was "gold-bricking," and told him so. The corporal was sulky and mentioned kitchen police.

First call sounded on the parade ground. Ouside in the company street were heard a shuffling of feet and an occasional sharp click as a rifle breech snapped shut. Himes knew the sounds. He had heard them at Fort Hamilton every morning for a year, ever since he went there as a recruit. Now the bugles were playing the réveille march. Next would come assembly and then the commands, "Fall in," "Call the Roll," &c.

There it was—Assembly.

"Fall in," ordered the Frist Sergeant; then, as the company snapped to attention, "Call the roll." Nearly two hundred soldiers answered to their names in a dozen different keys. "Report," ordered the First Sergeant, and the corporals responded. Squad after squad the answer came back, "—nth Squad present or accounted for," until it came to the corporal of Himes's squad.

Then from the barracks came the crack of a pistol. The First Sergeant faced about. The company commander looked worried. In the line the privates exchanged significant glances—stealthily.

An extra corporal in the file closers was ordered to fall out and investigate the shot. Himes's corporal was told to report. "—nth squad one private absent," came the reply. The roll-call was finished, a barracks door slammed and the corporal sent to investigate saluted the company commander.

"What is it, corporal?"

"Sir, Private Himes has shot himself."

This time the company commander went to the barracks, followed by the First Sergeant. Himes lay on his cot with a bullet wound in the right temple. He was dead. A .45 service revolver was found on the floor near by. On Tuesday Himes had been on guard, and as he was assigned to "chase prisoners" aldearms had been issued him. He didn't turn them in Tuesday night as he should have done.

Others members of the squad were questioned by the company commander. Could they give any reason?

One recalled that Himes's mother had died a year ago. Another that his sister had died six months ago. His father had visited him only the night before to tell the young soldier of the death of his grandfather. The grandfather will be buried on Friday. Himes was 21 years old and lived at 383 Clinton Street, Brooklyn. He will receive a military funeral.

SEEKS BAN ON WRITINGS BY CABINET MINISTERS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 20.—The question of whether Cabinet Ministers, while in office, are justified in contributing articles to newspapers upon public affairs is to be raised in the House of Commons Monday by a Labor member.

Lord Birkenhead's activities as a press contributor are to be cited particularly. He lately has been writing a series of articles on the English divorce law and other subjects. His conduct recalls that during the reign of the late Labor Government criticism was expressed of articles by Mr. Snowden, its Chancellor of the Exchequer, whose articles appeared in a New York Socialist newspaper a year ago.

It has become, of course, a common thing for ex-ministers to write for newspapers and even for ex-Prime Ministers, since Lloyd George set the fashion. When the Baldwin Government was formed, however, its Ministers agreed not to contribute articles to newspapers. There apparently has been a difference of opinion whether this applied to all articles or merely to articles dealing with current politics but most Ministers interpreted the agreement as a general embargo and their view was strongly supported by the majority of the members of the Conservative party. The fact remains that it is certainly a far cry since the days when even the proceedings of Parliament were not allowed to be reported in the English press.

EXPLORER ANDREWS WRITES OF PERILS

The difficulties which beset the path of Roy Chapman Andrews, leader of the third Asiatic Expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, and his party of scientists, who are exploring the Desert of Gobi in Central Asia, are graphically described by Mr. Andrews in a letter sent to friends in this city just before he left Peking.

His letter is dated April 29 and was mailed after he had started across the desert. Early this month an Associated Press dispatch relayed from Urga to Moscow stated that the unsettled conditions in the country through which the expedition would move had abated somewhat and, since the Peking Government refused to assume responsibility in case of bandit attacks, the party was well armed. The expedition consists of fifteen white men, a native adviser, a number of native servants and carriers, 150 camels and seven motor cars.

In his letter Mr. Andrews said that the entire staff arrived in Peking on April 4 and prepared to leave for the great plateau on April 16.

He described the difficulties that arose during the months of preparation in the Winter and said that there had been endless civil war.

Chinese Politics in Chaos.

"I have never seen Chinese politics in such complete chaos," Mr. Andrews wrote. "Just what will come out of it all no one can prophesy, except that more war this Summer is almost certain.

"At times I wondered if the preparations for the expedition ever could be completed. Transportation of all kinds was well-nigh paralyzed and it was not a question of how quickly and how cheaply a thing could be done, but rather whether it could be done at all.

"Food was at a premium in Peking and when I attempted to buy two tons of flour, a ton of rice and other supplies in proportion for the expedition, dealers simply shrugged their shoulders and laughed. But by watching for lulls in the successive storms and taking advantage of every opportunity, no matter how slight, the food and equipment were assembled and transported to Kalgan."

(Kalgan, the expedition's starting point, is about 100 miles northwest of Peking. It was almost completely swept away by floods early this year and Mr. Andrews was forced to spend considerable time in refitting the expedition.)

"The Chinese soldiers had confiscated every cart, camel and mule for 100 miles beyond Kalgan," Mr. Andrews's letter continued, "but I sent word to old Merin, our caravan leader, to drive our camels far out into the desert. He did so, and the soldiers never found him.

Kalgan Looted by Soldiers.

"The day before I intended to ship our supplies to Kalgan we had word the city had been looted by soldiers. Their punishment was swift and wholesale. The looters had gathered at the top of the pass waiting to see what would happen. Word was sent to them that their sins would be forgiven and they would be sent home if they would surrender. About 500 of them came into Kalgan and gave up their arms. The men were put into box cars and told that within a few hours the train would start for Peking. Instead of that they were taken out a dozen at a time, searched, and if loot was found on them they were marched to the stone bridge in the centre of the town and shot. At the end of the day 450 bodies lay in the dry river bed. This is only one example of what has been going on in China almost continually since last October.

"Our caravan of 150 camels left on Feb. 20 for their long march of 1,000 miles into the very heart of the Gobi. They are to await our coming at the spot where we found the dinosaur eggs in 1923.

"Four thousand gallons of gasoline and food enough to maintain the forty men of the expedition for six months is what they are carrying. It was necessary for them to pass through a brigand-infested country, but Merin was to send back word if they were attacked. We have had no message, so presume that he is safe. Nevertheless all of us will feel much happier when we see the American flag at his camp in the desert.

"Our scientific staff will travel in five Dodge cars and two Fulton trucks. We should cover the 1,000 miles in about three weeks. Our progress will be slow because our topographers will map every foot of the way beginning at Kalgan. In any case it will be very much worth while, for this will be the only accurate map of Mongolia, a country more than half as large as the United States of America.

Plans Another "Egg Hunt."

"The first extensive work will be done at the dinosaur egg beds. We will have another 'egg hunt' and then move on to Chagan Nor (White Lake), at the base of the Eastern Altai Mountains. This was our furthest western point in preceding years.

"While the men are carrying on their scientific work there I will cut through the mountains on a scouting expedition, for I want to penetrate into the region south of the Altais, which is virtually unexplored. I studied it from the top of a mountain in 1922 and it looks very interesting, but difficult of access.

"We will work west for Chagan Nor, along the northern base of the Altais as well as to the south. This will bring us to the home of the wild camels and the wild horses, and I hope that we can bring back specimens of both for the Asiatic Hall.

"We will pay less attention to the old rocks this year and hunt for fossils in the younger strata which might give us traces of human evolution. But please remember that it is a good deal like hunting for a needle in a haystack and that we can promise nothing. You may be sure of one thing—that every man of us will do his best."

TO EXPLORE VIRGINIA CAVES.

Dr. Reeds Will Head Trip to Endless Caverns in Shenandoah Valley.

Headed by Dr. Chester A. Reeds of the Department of Geology of the American Museum of Natural History, a party of members of the Explorers' Club will leave on Saturday on a trip to the Endless Caverns in the Shenandoah Valley, near New Market, Va.

The caverns were discovered in 1879. They were partly explored, and one section was opened to the public in 1920. They are believed to be several million years old, and the object of the present expedition is to visit the unexplored sections and locate the sources of the cave streams.

Besides Dr. Reeds the party will include David L. Brainard, Henry Collins Walsh, founder of the Explorers' Club; H. D. Ashton, the big game photographer, who recently made the trip to Porto Rico on the naval dirigible Los Angeles, and Merle la Voy, known as an explorer of Alaska and the Solomon Islands.

Dr. Reeds spent four days in the caverns last January, and this time expects to penetrate beyond the one and a half miles that already have been explored.

TAFT SAYS BUSINESS MUST SPUR PUBLIC

NEW HOME IS DEDICATED

President Grant Urges Tax Reduction as One of the Problems to Be Tackled.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP).—Chief Justice Taft, who, as Chief Executive, suggested formation of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, made his first public address in four years tonight at the dedication of the organization's new headquarters building.

Pressing the need for an informed and intelligent public opinion, Justice Taft called upon the business men to take part in its development.

"The greater the opportunity there may be to inform the public of the questions requiring settlement, and the facts upon which those questions should be decided, the wiser its expression," he said. "One of the difficulties in securing its useful aid in the direction of government is the lethargy of the ordinary citizen, and his indisposition to develop an interest in the important general questions presented, and to use the information available to him and exert the needed mental effort to make decisions and formulate his views.

"It isn't enough to have intelligent men in our citizenship. It isn't enough to spread education as far as we can. We must also arouse the active interest of those who must be the individual units of the many whose united views are public opinion. This is the greatest of the functions of your association."

Praises Organization's Work.

Turning to the organization's work for the reform and improvement of business conduct, the Chief Justice declared:

"I am confident that with your marvelous growth, the sound principles upon which you have established your association and the great opportunities that present themselves for usefulness, the future of this organization will show it to be one of the real non-official factors in the progress of our country.

"You have united together, in a common and effective purpose, the great body of intelligent and active business men of the United States, and you have furnished for the people of this country an instrument for the effective organization of public opinion that is and will continue to be of the highest benefit."

Dedication of the building, described as the "Home of American Business," formed one of the outstanding events on the program of the organization's thirteenth annual convention, which was formally opened today. The invocation was spoken by Bishop Thomas F. Gailor of Tennessee, President of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and the speakers, in addition to Chief Justice Taft, included Richard F. Grant, President of the National Chamber; Harry A. Wheeler of Chicago, Chairman of the Building Committee, who was its first President, and Charles Nagel of St. Louis, Secretary of Commerce and Labor during the Taft Administration.

Any law that requires continuous enforcement and does not have the backing of the people will fail, Mr. Nagel asserted. Holding that conduct must provide the remedy for unwise laws rather than speech, he declared the chamber should be more interested in molding conduct than in writing its views upon the statute books.

Problems of Business Outlined.

Problems confronting business, demanding solution by business men, and which cannot be solved "on the broad principle of Government interference, either with State's rights or with business," were outlined by Mr. Grant.

Adjustment of international economic questions, further tax reduction and elimination of hidden taxes, improvement of banking and credit machinery of the country, and cooperation between business and agriculture were listed by Mr. Grant as among the most urgent affairs requiring the assistance of business interests.

Each of these subjects, Mr. Grant declared, demands close study, and if left to a decision by the locality or group most affected would "most likely be settled in a manner which would not take into consideration the welfare of the whole country." When any particular group is dissatisfied with a situation, he said, "there is too much of a tendency to rush to Congress demanding a new law."

"Curing the ills of the world by statute does not work," he declared.

Discussing the "tendency of increasing centralization of Government in Washington," Mr. Grant declared this "is meeting with increasing distrust on the part of the public." Observing that steps had been taken to curb the power of various commissions, or to eliminate them, he warned against going "too far to the other extreme."

Seventeen Directors Are Nominated.

Meetings of groups interested in various phases of commerce and industry were held by the delegates and were addressed by leaders in many lines. Cooperative farming was explained by Robert W. Bingham of Louisville, Ky., who declared that a standard cooperative law now was on the statute books of thirty-seven States.

Morris Knowles, city planner, of Pittsburgh declared that rents are still relatively higher than the cost of living and that there still is a greater demand for houses than the supply. Rents last March, he said, were 82 per cent. above the pre-war level.

Pierre Jay, Chairman of the New York Federal Reserve Board; Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland banker, and George A. Renney, Vice President of the International Harvester Company, explained the benefits of the Federal Reserve Board.

Seventeen directors of the National Chamber, nine for Chambers of Commerce and eight for trade associations, were nominated today.

Those for the chambers were: Stanley H. Bullard, Bridgeport, Conn.; Philip H. Gadsden, Philadelphia; John W. Arrington, Greenville, S. C.; Frank Kell, Wichita Falls, Texas; J. G. Leigh, Little Rock, Ark.; Max W. Bab, Milwaukee, Mis.; Edwin T. Meredith, Des Moines, Iowa; Dwight B. Heard, Tacoma, Wash.

Those nominated for their respective trade associations were: For civic development, Charles W. Lonsdale, Kansas City, Mo.; for domestic distribution, James P. Orr, Cincinnati, Ohio; for manufacture (fabricated production), A. J. Brosseau, New York; for finance, John G. Lonsdale, St. Louis, Mo.; for foreign commerce, Paul Shoup, San Francisco; for insurance, Harry A. Smith, Hartford, Conn.; for natural resources production, Milton E. Marcuse, Richmond, Va.; and for transportation and communication, A. L. Humphrey, Pittsburgh.

DEFENDS COAST TRADE LAW.

Shipping Board Urges Americans at Belgium to Oppose Any Change.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP).—A resolution was adopted by the Shipping Board today requesting American delegates to the International Chamber of Commerce meeting at Brussels next month to oppose any discussions looking to changing American coastwise laws so as to admit foreign vessels to the coastwise trade of this country.

The resolution declared continuance and effective enforcement of the coastwise laws, "essential to the existence of an American merchant marine and for our national defense"; and added that the question was a domestic one, "the discussion of which is not within the jurisdiction of the proposed Brussels conference."

The Brussels meeting, commissioners said, has on its program two resolutions dealing with "flag discriminations," which might open the door to consideration of coastwise laws unless steps were taken to prevent it.

MACHADO SWORN IN AS CUBAN PRESIDENT

ANNOUNCES HIS CABINET

Carlos de la Rosa Takes Office as the Vice President in the Senate Chamber.

HAVANA, May 20 (AP).—Gerardo Machado today became Cuba's fifth President when he took the oath of office in the reception room of the Presidential Palace before assembled foreign diplomatic missions, members of the Supreme Court, ex-President Alfredo Zayas and prominent men in political and financial circles.

A great crowd gathered, filling the streets and open spaces all around the Palace. When the President appeared on the balcony to greet the people his campaign logan, "A pie" ("On foot"), greeted him.

The Cuban national anthem was sung by 2,000 school children, led by the General Staff band, and a salute of twenty-one guns was fired. The Mexican cruiser Anahuac joined in the salute.

State, Carlos Manuel de Cespedes (Liberal).
Justice, Dr. Jesus Maria Barraqué (Liberal).
War and Marine, Rafael Iturralde (Popular).
Interior, Rogerio Zayas Bazan (Liberal).
Education, Guillermo Fernandez Mascaro (Popular).
Sanitation, Daniel Gispert (Popular).
Treasury, Enrique Hernandez Cartaya (Liberal).
Agriculture, Commerce and Labor, Andres Pereira (Popular).
Public Works, Carlos Miguel de Cespedes (Liberal).
Presidency, Virato Gutierrez (Liberal).

Carlos de la Rosa took the oath as Vice President of Cuba in the Senate Chamber at 9:45 A. M., Havana time.

Congress, in joint session, was present at the Vice Presidential inauguration. About twenty special missions from foreign countries, and the diplomatic corps, with many prominent people, crowded the gallery.

Aaron Saenz, Mexican Foreign Minister and head of that country's mission to the ceremonies, was the senior foreign representative present. The United States was represented by Ambassador Enoch H. Crowder, First Secretary C. C. Jordan and other members of the staff.

DEMANDS AN INQUIRY INTO MANGIN'S DEATH

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 20.—When General Mangin died the charge was made by several Nationalist newspapers, notably the Liberté, that he had been poisoned at a banquet which he attended on the eve of his death. Though the charge seemed at the time fantastic, it is being repeated, and Camille Aymard, director of La Liberté, tonight devotes the leading column of the paper to an account of the last hours of the General in proof of his contention.

M. Aymard demands a judicial inquiry and seeks to throw responsibility for Mangin's death on Communists and indirectly on Premier Painlevé's Government.

It would be cowardly and almost complicity, he writes, if Mangin's friends now allow the truth to be cloaked. It appears from all evidence, he says, that General Mangin was poisoned, and gives the following account of the General's illness in support of that charge:

"Two days before the General died he was present at a public luncheon. When he returned home, about 2 o'clock, he complained of burning pains in his stomach. To ease the pain he sat clasping his side. As he was due at the Horse Show, he asked his wife's maid to help him into his uniform, and while he dressed he spoke incoherently and foolishly in a manner quite unlike his usual cool and reserved self. About 5 o'clock he returned home and immediately collapsed in a chair, groaning with pain. Mme. Mangin went to get a calming drink, and while she was absent he tore his tunic off, and in his agony of suffering lacerated his body to such an extent he was found bleeding.

"During the two nights and days which followed before he died the General's sufferings were terrible."

None of these symptoms, says M. Aymard, corresponds with the doctors' diagnosis of a "violent case of uremia coupled with appendicitis."

M. Aymard goes on to suggest that "those who know the doctrines of the Moscow terrorists and the careful preparation of Bolshevist crimes know that when the hour approaches which they have fixed for the destruction of a country's disciples, Zinovieff has always begun by the removal of great leaders who, by their courage and their firmness and prestige would be most capable of crushing a riot or revolt."

M. Aymard demands at once a judicial inquiry into the General's death and summons the Government, which he charges has failed to do justice to General Mangin's memory, to begin at once a search for the truth.

ARGENTINA APPOINTS ENVOY TO THE LEAGUE

Naming of Permanent Representative Presages Participation After 4 Years' Aloofness.

GENEVA, May 20.—The Argentine Government has notified the Secretary General of the League of Nations that it has appointed Julian Enciso, First Secretary of the Embassy, as permanent representative in the League. The decision was taken, the notification says, because of the necessity of the Argentine Ministry of Foreign Affairs obtaining by an intermediary occupied exclusively with these questions detailed and complete information on all activities of the League of Nations, of the Secretariat and of the International Labor Bureau.

This decision of the Argentine Government seems to indicate that Argentina is coming back to the League. From the first assembly until January of thisyear Argentina maintained a frozen silence in regard to the League. Then she sent a check for some $200,000 to cover her allotment of the League's expenses during the past four years.

To the Traffic in Arms Conference Argentina sent her first delegation to Geneva since 1920, but gave them only powers of observation.

BOROUGH PRESIDENT HALTS HYLAN PRAISE

NEW BLOW TO CANDIDACY

Party Chiefs Get More Signs of Decline of Mayor's Strength — League Asks Him to Quit.

More evidence that Hylan sentiment among Democrats in high places in the Mayor's home borough is not what it used to be was afforded yesterday when an attempt to stage a Hylan demonstration in the Borough Hall was sternly checked by Borough President Joseph A. Guider, who is a political lieutenant of John H. McCooey, the Democratic leader of Kings.

The incident created a decided impression in political circles, where it was coupled with other recent indications that Mayor Hylan's strength with the Democratic organization in Brooklyn is on the wane. Last week there was the launching of a Mayoralty boom for Arthur S. Somers, McCooey's friend from boyhood days and President of the Democratic organization club in the Eighteenth Assembly district of Kings, where the Democratic chieftain lives and is the leader. Also there was McCooey's declaration early this week at the dinner of the Coney Island Chamber of Commerce that while Mr. Hylan had made a good Mayor there was "other timber."

In connection with what occurred yesterday it was recalled also by politicians that at a meeting of the Board of Estimate last Friday Borough President Guider joined hands with Mayor Hylan's political arch enemy, Controller Craig, to defeat the Mayor in connection with a resolution providing for the creation of a residential district under the zoning law in Queens. Altogether these recent happenings are pretty generally accepted as evidence that the boring from within to undermine the strength of Mayor Hylan, which has been in progress for some time in the Democratic organizations throughout the city, has been hardly less effective in the Mayor's home borough than in Manhattan. In Tammany Hall, from all accounts, the Mayor has been losing ground daily for the last two weeks.

Quashes Hylan Resolution.

The incident at Borough Hall yesterday followed the offering of a resolution on behalf of a delegation representing the Erie Basin Property Owners' and Rentpayers' Civic League, which had gone there for a public hearing before Borough President Guider, at which the question of new sewers for their section, better transit and the repaving of Van Brunt Street were to be discussed. Hugh J. Hoehn, Chairman of the league, appeared at the head of the large delegation, in which were many women.

After the Erie Basin people had presented their grievances and made their arguments, Mr. Hoehn asked Borough President Guider if he could read a resolution. Not knowing what it was about, Mr. Guider nodded assent. Mr. Hoehn then read the following:

"Be it resolved, That we, the Erie Basin Owners and Rentpayers' Civic League, and residents of the Erie Basin section, endorse Hylan's Administration as Mayor of New York City and urge the Democratic Party to renominate as its candidate for Mayor John F. Hylan, who has so well served and protected the people against those who would despoil them."

Fully half of the men and women assembled in the Borough President's room applauded the sentiments embodied in the resolution. Mr. Guider jumped to his feet immediately.

"I am sorry," he said, "but this is not a political convention. I don't think this is the time or place for the introduction of such a resolution."

"But you gave me permission to read it," Mr. Hoehn remonstrated.

"I know," Mr. Guider replied, "but, as I have already stated, this is a public hearing, not a political convention."

Members of the delegation—that is many of them—declared that the presentation of the resolution was as much of a surprise to them as it was to the were sent out last week, calling upon members of the organization to take part in the demonstration before the Borough President, no mention, they said, had been made of a resolution booming Mayor Hylan for a third term. Others in the delegation, however, seemed dumbfounded at not being permitted to see the thing through, and all of them looked surprised when they heard Mr. Guider's ruling.

Borough President. In the cards that

The Hylan Opponents Hopeful.

The incident brought much cheer to the opponents of Mayor Hylan, who until recently have feared that they would have to contend with the stubborn opposition of the Democratic organization in the Mayor's home borough in any move to dislodge him. In anti-Hylan circles the situation, as it effects the attitude of Brooklyn Democrats, is now regarded in a much more hopeful light.

It was learned yesterday that some stanch friends of Mayor Hylan who have become convinced that Tammany Hall is determined to drop the Mayor have urged him to stop flirting with the regulars and at once proclaim himself a third party independent candidate. If he entertains any intention of doing so, in the event that the Democrats should fail him, those friends have told the Mayor he may just as well take the decisive step now, as he will have to do it in the end, anyhow. Mayor Hylan, it was said, is firmly convinced however, that public sentiment will force his nomination by the party with which he has always been affiliated.

In connection with this report it was stated that Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia, formerly a Republican but now classed as a Socialist in Congress, would be found as candidate for Aldermanic President, an office he once briefly filled, on any third ticket headed by Mayor Hylan. City Chamberlain Berolsheimer is still being boomed for Controller by Mayor Hylan's friends. Mr. Berolsheimer took occasion yesterday to issue the following statement:

"I notice that some of my newspaper friends have given me the nomination for Controller. This is a very great compliment and I appreciate it highly, but it would have much more significance if it had been authorized by Judge Olvany and the other county leaders of Greater New York."

"Some members of the Business Men's League, the organization which appeared as sponsors for Mr. Hylan when he first was a candidate for Mayor in 1917, have asked the Mayor to quit the race and give somebody else a chance. The league, which has a membership of about 250 and maintains headquarters at 300 Madison Street, expects to hold a meeting some time in June at which preparations for renewed political activity will be made. The members are said to be greatly interested in the coming Mayoralty election. Inquiries, however, indicated that it is no longer a Hylan organization. Governor Smith has many friends within the organization.

"It is a fifty-fifty proposition," a member said when questioned with regard to the proportion of Hylan supporters.

Hirshfield in New Attacks.

The action of the Municipal Alliance, headed by Joseph M. Price, which on Monday night adopted a declaration directed against the nomination of Mayor Hylan and virtually implying that it would support Tammany if Hylan were turned down, apparently has deeply aggrieved Mayor Hylan's friends. David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, issued one of his typical statements last night attacking Mr. Price, Harold G. Aron, the Republican publicity director, who has made some verbal attacks on the Hylan Administration in recent speeches, and the Citizens Union. There is likely to be some more interesting discussion of the Mayoralty situation next week, incidental to the annual meeting of the Citizens Union, to be held next Tuesday evening.

From a person close to Governor Smith came a suggestion that George V. McLaughlin, State Superintendent of Banks, would make a good candidate for Mayor. It was evident that the hint was thrown out in the nature of a feeler.

If the reaction should be favorable, it is possible that something will be done by friends and admirers of Mr. McLaughlin to place him in the running. While he has not held elective office and is not well known in political circles, he has rendered good service as head of the State Banking Department and as a deputy for the last fifteen years. By profession a lawyer, he also is a certified public accountant.

There is every reason to believe that McLaughlin would be very acceptable to Governor Smith as a candidate for Mayor. He is a resident of Brooklyn, where he was born and received his early education.

HYLAN ACTS TO CLOSE GAMBLING RESORTS

Directs Corporation Counsel Nicholson to Cooperate With Police to End Legal Delay.

Mayor Hylan wrote a letter yesterday to Corporation Counsel Nicholson directing him to instruct his staff to cooperate with the police in closing gambling establishments.

Some of the alleged gambling places closed recently by the police have set up the defense that they were political and social clubs, and the Mayor in his letter refers to them by declaring forty-four injunctions "have been sought by gamblers on the ground that lawful business was being conducted or that their places were housing political organizations." He said a favorite device of gamblers is to serve an order to show cause which must be answered the following morning, hoping the city's Law Department will not be prepared, and then seek an adjournment so their places may be operated in the interim.

"It is evident," he continued, "that the gambling fraternity intends to resort to court intervention and legal delays in order to obstruct immediate and effective police action. Therefore, will you please have the necessary instructions issued to the staff of the Law Department assigned to these cases to extend every possible cooperation to and with the police so that requests for adjournments may be unnecessary and so that the city may be enabled to go into court before the return day with a counter-motion to vacate the order to show cause on plaintiff's own papers."

Dr. Richard Mead was a celebrated physician, who was called to Queen Anne on her deathbed. On the accession of George II, he was appointed as the King's personal physician.

LLOYD SUCCEEDS ALLENBY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 20.—Austin Chamberlain announced in the Commons today that the Government had accepted the resignation of Lord Allenby as High Commissioner for Egypt and the Sudan and had appointed Sir George Lloyd, formerly Governor of Bombay, to succeed him.

Mr. Chamberlain, whose statement was made in reply to a question by Ramsay MacDonald, explained that Lord Allenby informed him last Autumn of his desire to be relieved of the High Commissionership as soon as public interest made his retirement possible.

A question on the same subject was put to the Government on Monday as a consequence of reports circulated that Lord Allenby had resigned, but Mr. Chamberlain replied that he had no information.

This fact leads The Daily News to demand an explanation from the Government. It declares that a good deal more is likely to be heard of this "mysterious affair," and that if the Government does not clear up the whole matter there is reason for supposing that Lord Allenby will.

"It is extremely probable," it says, "that Lord Allenby would have been perfectly willing to carry on his work in Egypt if his authority had not been undermined by intrigues in European circles in Cairo, and by the long and bitter press campaign waged against him in this country."

SAYS BAGNANO THREATENED

Miss Macri Ends Her Story of Killing New Haven Man.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 20 (AP).—Olympia Macri, on trial here for first degree murder, completed her story on the witness stand late today by describing how she shot to death John Bagnano, alleged father of her baby, on Feb. 26, in the lobby of a theatre here.

The contention of her attorney, Joseph Koletsky, that she shot in self-defense was supported by her testimony when she told the jurors that Bagnano said to her a moment before the shooting: "If you don't kill yourself, I'll kill you myself."

Miss Macri testified that Bagnano reached his hand to his hip pocket and started to draw out a gun, and then she drew her own revolver and fired.

The girl told of going to the theatre building to see John Bagnano in a booking office there. She called him into the hallway and pleaded with him to sign for her baby, so that the child might be admitted to an institution.

She said Bagnano took a ukulele while they were talking, sang, danced and laughed at her, and threatened the life of the child if she did not let him alone.

The State's attorney will continue his cross-examination tomorrow, and it is expected that the jury will be charged by Judge Avery early Friday.

MUST FIGHT IN 1926, DECLARES BUTLER

SCORES THE DEMOCRATS

Fears Guerrilla Warfare, He Asserts to Philadelphia Republicans.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—Speaking before the Union League here tonight, Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, warned party workers of the necessity of strong efforts to win in the Congressional elections of 1926. In part he said:

"We must win in 1926. I have no delusion that the victory will drop in our hands. We must fight for it. To that end must have the support of the people. That support I am certain is to be had once we make clear the real issue, the real significance of the votes they will cast.

"To accomplish this, we must give to the people a party worthy of the President, one of which they can be proud. Without halting, we must emphasize the importance of party membership and responsibilities as essential if we are to sustain the policies and the program of the President."

Senator Butler scored what he described as the attempt of "a battered and torn" Democratic Party to "ride back into power" by preaching "the independence in political thinking and acting."

"They would encourage," he said, "independent voting among Republicans in the Senate and House—they would divide the Republican representation and compromise with the few so-called independents on the Republican side, and thereby defeat the Administration and the Republican policy and program. That is their purpose; that is their strategy. * * *

"The Republican Party has been the victim of guerrilla warfare in the past when the fortunes of the opponents were at low ebb, and this is one of the times.

"The childish candor of this attempt to ride back into power is amusing, but it is also dangerous, because it is deceitful. Those who would take advantage of this method of self and party advancement would leave the impression that their independence would go to the extent of their adoption of Republican policies, and it would, until after election, and then the sheep's clothing would be thrown off and the wolf would be disclosed in all its hunger for the fleshpots of democracy.

"This conclusion is not a prophecy; it has been a realization many times in the past. The Republican Party has been the victim of guerilla warfare in the past when the fortunes of the opponents were at low ebb, and this is one of the times.

"There is no mystery as I see it, in the extraordinary hold on the confidence of the American people which President Coolidge enjoys. It is based on his continuing in his Washington Administration of the nation's business the same plain, common-sense methods which he displayed as Governor of Massachusetts. He possesses—I cannot say he acquired it because he always had it—the faculty of speaking with a directness and honesty to the people when explaining what he hoped to do, or reporting what he had accomplished.

"I wonder if we cannot, each and every one of us, take a lesson from the great book of life on the pages of which he is daily writing. I wonder if the time has not arrived when we should aim to tell our story to the people at large in as simple language as possible, and thus again help to dissipate that feeling of which I have already spoken: that political activities involve a special technique beyond the understanding of the average person.

"One thing we must always remember, that while the foundation of our party is firmly fixed, we cannot ignore the changes that time and tide bring to all human creations. We must hold ourselves ready to adjust our party's endeavors to the needs of the people as they develop. Let us keep in mind, the scriptural injunction to prove all things and hold fast to that which is good."

MISS DAVIS'S KLAN BOOK.

She Gives Her Version of Its Absence From an Exhibition Here.

Miss Susan Lawrence Davis, author of the "Authentic History of the Ku Klux Klan, 18-65-1877," writes to THE TIMES:

"A news article in THE TIMES of May 16 is incorrect and misleading. The article states that a book of which I am the author, 'Authentic History of the Ku Klux Klan, 1865-1877,' was taken from the Alabama exhibit at the Southern Exposition, now being held in Grand Central Palace in this city, and that I demanded its return.

"I was invited by Mr. Nixon, one of the officials of the exposition, to put on display a copy of said book where a group of Alabama authors had placed their books, in a section of the Alabama exhibit. I met a friend who wished to see the book and I went to the place to show her the sample, and found the book had disappeared. I brought another to replace it, and Miss Lide, in charge of the exhibit, called in Mr. Theodore Swann of Birmingham, Ala., Chairman of the exhibit, and he told me there had been so many protests made to my book being there that he had taken it away.

"I was indignant and asked him who protested, and a Mr. Herring said he was one of the protestors. I said: 'This history only treats of the Reconstruction following the Civil War, and the men who made that history made this exposition of the South's resources possible.' They still refused to replace the book or return it to me. * * * I was very much hurt to think a history containing the work of Governor George S. Houston, Senator John T. Morgan, Colonel Lawrence Ripley Davis of Alabama, General William H. Wallace of South Carolina and other Southerners who rehabilitated the South after the war and brought it to its present prosperity should be denied a place behind a sign bearing the name Alabama.

"Your article stated that it was said that 'an exhibition by the South to the North was not the place for a book on the Klan.' I cannot understand why the history of the Ku Klux Klan, 1865-1877, should be excluded from an exposition which their leadership and industry made possible. Mr. Swann understood the nature of the book when he placed it there, and I felt he should keep it there, as authors from all over the State of Alabama had books in this exhibit, but the Birmingham authors predominated in numbers. Mr. Swann made the excuse that only Birmingham authors were in this section; this being true, I have resided a great deal in the city of Birmingham."

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP).—Four days in the rôle of prohibition agent in Los Angeles and Hollywood were enough for Andrew Jackson, said to be a great-grandson of "Old Hickory." He quit because he was dissatisfied with his work.

In seeking the job, Mr. Jackson sent with his application a silver medal presented to President Jackson in 1834 by the Temperance Society of America. Attached to it was a certificate urging temperance signed by Andrew Jackson, John Quincy Adams and James Madison.

SHIFT ETHYL INQUIRY TO SURGEON GENERAL

Experts in Conference Vote That Cumming and 7 Aids Ascertain if Leaded Gas Is Deadly.

BOTH SIDES GIVE EVIDENCE

HALT ON SALES ENDORSED

Investigators End Washington Discussion, Manufacturers Welcoming Further Study.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The conference of scientists, public health officials and representative of the ethyl gas industry, held here today to determine whether public health would be endangered by the general use of tetraethyl lead to increase the power of gasoline, voted unanimously today to place the question in the hands of Surgeon General Cumming of the Public Health Service and a committee of seven experts to be appointed by him.

The resolution adopted by the conference endorsed the action of the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation in discontinuing the distribution of ethyl gasoline while the question of its effect on public health is unsettled. It was voted that the cost of the Surgeon General's investigation should be paid for out of public funds, but he will be at liberty to use the results of the various investigations and experiments now in progress regarding tetraethyl lead.

The action followed a seven-hour discussion during which one group insisted that not a single case of illness resulting from the use of the ethyl or leaded gasoline had been established, while the other group held that the experimental evidence showed that the use of the product on an increasing scale would involve a risk to the health of workers in garages and possibly to the public in cities of heavy traffic.

Representatives of the industry and experimenters insisted that, while 11 persons had died and 149 suffered seriously illness in the manufacture of the tetraethyl lead, the processes were now so well safeguarded that the hazard had been diminished to a very small one.

There was little discussion on the hazard involved in the manufacture of the substance. The only issue debated was whether, when one part of the lead compound was added to 1,300 parts of gasoline, the mixture is a menace to those who handle it and whether its general use would pollute the air with powdered lead to such an extent as to cause poisoning to those who breathed it.

Questions 'Degree of Hazard'

Reports of scientific investigations of the effects of tetraethyl lead at Columbia, the University of Cincinnati, and the Bureau of Mines showed that animals were poisoned by the substance in varying degrees according to the amount of exposure to the poison, but the reports were not decisive on the question whether the public in general or the garage workers in particular would be subjected to a severe health hazard by the gasoline use of the treated gasoline.

"It has been clearly shown that there is a hazard to the public in the use of ethyl gasoline," says Dr. David Edsall, Dean of the School of Public Health in Harvard, "but we are not able to judge how serious that hazard is. The only way that we can discover how great a hazard exists is by prolonged and elaborate experiment."

Dr. Edsall, Dr. Yandell Henderson of Yale, and others emphasized the significance of the discovery by Dr. R. R. Sayers of the Bureau of Mines, after allowing treated gasoline to evaporate in a ventilated chamber, that lead constituted about 10 per cent. of the dust found on its floors. It was held that this experiment was conducted under conditions approximating those which existed in a garage and that it would mean that the use of the treated gasoline would cause lead dust to accumulate there.

Another fact emphasized by Dr. Edsall was the report of Dr. Frederick B. Flinn of Columbia University, to the effect that two of the experimenters there had absorbed lead into their systems which was afterwards recovered, and that they had suffered from bad dreams and wakeful nights, which might or might not be symptoms of lead poisoning. It was pointed out, however, that the experimenters had worked with the concentrated tetra-ethyl lead, which is 1,300 times as strong as the treated gasoline.

Makers in a Quandary.

F. A. Howard of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana said that the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation and all those interested in the new fuel were in a quandary. Pointing out that the tetra-ethyl lead makes one gallon of gasoline do as much as two gallons had formerly done, Mr. Howard continued:

"Frankly, we don't know what to do and we are glad to have the responsibility taken over by the Suregon General. We cannot justify our consciences in abandoning because of a fear or a guess a thing which the industry, the Government and foreign Governments have been seeking. Present-day civilization rests on oil and motors, and it is admitted by everybody that one of the greatest necessities is to increase the efficiency and economy of fuel.

"We do not feel justified in giving up what has come to the industry like a gift from heaven on the possibility that a hazard may be involved in it. So far the facts are all in our favor. Experience is 100 per cent. in our favor. No ill results from the use of ethyl gasoline have been reported, although experimental evidence indicates that there may be a hazard."

Miss Grace Burnham, representing the American Federation of Labor said:

"It was no gift from heaven for the eleven who were killed by it and the 149 who were injured."

Cites Danger in Benzol.

The Bureau of Mines report on further tests in the use of tetraethyl lead and other "anti-knock compounds" found evidence of a health hazard in the use of benzol to increase the efficiency of gasoline.

"The Guinea pigs exposed to motor benzol and a benzol gasoline," said the report, "showed signs of marked intoxication and irritation of the eyes and respiratory passages and a great proportion of those exposed to high concentrations died."

Surgeon Gen. Cumming called for a list of motor fuels containing benzol.

Dr. Robert A. Kehoe of the University of Cincinnati said that eighteen out of 100 workers engaged in the distribution of tetrethyl lead for treating gasoline were found to have suspicious symptoms, but that increased precautions were cutting down the percentage of such cases and methods of making and handling of the substance safe appeared to be in sight.

Representatives of the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation said that 300,000,000 gallons of the ethyl gasoline had been distributed and used in twenty-eight States and that exhaustive inquiry had failed to reveal a single person who suffered from lead poisoning as a result of this contact.

Dr. Edsall of Harvard said that evidence of this kind was not to be trusted, for the reason that symptoms of slight poisoning could not be detected.

Former Health Commissioner Haven Emerson said that many subacute conditions, such as anemia, might be caused by small quantities of lead breathed for long periods of time, but that such conditions would not be diagnosed as lead poisoning.

Charges "Human Experiments."

Dr. Emerson attacked the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, which is owned by the Standard Oil of New Jersey and the General Motors Corporation, for proceeding with the manufacture and sale of the gas for two years before inquiring whether it was dangerous to health.

"In the universities," he said, "medical men test new substances and processes by animal experimentation to discover whether they are injurious to human beings.

"In this case human experimentation has preceded animal experimentation. It was not until many human beings were killed that the industry called on scientists to experiment on animals. It ought to be the other way around."

Dr. Emerson said that he hoped the conference would result in the adoption of a broad Federal legislative program which would bring poisonous and deleterious substances under Government control and which would place Federal safeguards over the development and employment of poisons in order to make sure that human beings were not made the subjects for experiments to ascertain whether new substances were safe or deadly. He added he thought scientists would overcome the dangers and bring the leaded gasoline into general use without health hazard.

E. W. Webb, President of the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, asserted that the corporation had voluntarily asked for tests both by the Bureau of Mines and by Columbia University.

Francis P. Patterson, a public health official of West Philadelphia, holding that no evidence had been shown that ethyl gasoline menaced public health, advocated suspending the present voluntary ban on its distribution.

Dr. Matthias Nicoll, Commissioner of Health of New York State, who introduced the resolution placing the whole subject in the hands of the Surgeon General, said that the ethyl gasoline could be used for experiment and investigation by the Surgeon General and his committee. He calculated that the committee might be in a position to report decisive findings by the first of next year.

Dr. Alice Hamilton of Harvard urged the men connected with the industry to put aside the lead compound entirely and try to find something else to get rid of the "knock."

Sees No Substitute.

C. F. Kettering of the General Motors Company described ten years of research which had preceded the introduction of the ethyl gasoline into use. The company began the investigation to discover why gasoline could ordinarily deliver an efficiency of only about 5 per cent. The enemy to efficiency was found to be the "knock," or violent explosion of the gasoline. Under high compression they found that the gas burned fifty or sixty times as quick as under lower compression and that this quick combustion was the "knock."

The experience of the company does not offer any promise, according to the speaker, that any such cheap and efficient anti-knock compound can be discovered to replace the lead.

Regarding assertions that the General Motors, Standard Oil and the du Pont interests were in a position to seize control of the fuel and automotive industries by control of tetra-ethyl lead, Mr. Kettering said there was nothing secret or patentable about the methods of using the ethyl gasoline in motors. The principle of making a high-compression motor which would use the fuel efficiently was a well known one, he said, consisting merely in reducing the size of the chamber into which the gases are forced as the piston compresses them.

TWO GET FRANKLIN MEDAL.

Institute Honors Elihu Thomson and Zeeman—Sproul Cited.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—Before a distinguished company of scientists gathered in the auditorium of the Franklin Institute this afternoon two world-famous scientists were awarded the Franklin medal and certificate of honorary membership in the institute, and a third certificate was bestowed in recognition of scientific service.

The Franklin medal and certificate was presented to Professor Piter Zeeman of the University of Amsterdam and to Dr. Elihu Thomson, one of the foremost scientists of the world and a former professor in the Central High School in this city. The certificate of honorary membership was awarded to former Governor William C. Sproul in recognition of his service to science, particularly for his gift of the Sproul Astronomical Observatory to Swarthmore College.

Following the presentation of the medal to Professor Thomson, the scientist read a paper covering the results of his experiments over a 20 year period with fused silica, or quartz glass. He predicted revolutionary changes involving the use of this glass for window panes, high voltage insulators, astronomical lenses and many other articles in common use.

Dr. Thomson, who is a founder of the General Electric Company, Schenectady, and is now the director of the company's research laboratory, at Lynn, Mass., declared that the earliest experiments in radio communication were made by him in the basement of Central High School here, long before Marconi's "wireless" became an accomplished fact.

WOMAN DEPUTY WEEPS AT INQUIRY

Mrs. Welzmiller Breaks Down When Asked About Canceling of Peddler's License.

SAYS HE WAS INSOLENT

Examiner Shows Decision Was Virtually Reached Before the Case Was Heard.

While she was undergoing a searching examination yesterday by Jacob Gould Schurman Jr., Deputy Assistant District Attorney, who is conducting before Magistrate Simpson an investigation into alleged graft and oppression among the city's pushcart peddlers, Mrs. Louis Reed Welzmiller, Deputy Commissioner of the Department of Public Markets, who until recently had charge of the pushcart stands, broke down and wept. The inquiry came to a brief halt until she had regained her composure.

Mrs. Welzmiller was being catechized about the case of Adolph Goldenberg, pushcart jewelry peddler, whose permit she had cancelled in December, 1923, after a perfunctory hearing. Mr. Schurman had brought out that Goldenberg not only had been arraigned on a charge of perjury, tried and ousted on a charge of insolence to Mrs. Welzmiller, and of "creating a street disturbance," but that his case had been virtually decided against him before he was given a hearing. Goldenberg is the peddler who had testified about his relations with Alderman Moritz Graubard.

Reading from the transcript of the Goldenberg hearing held in her office in the Municipal Building, the examiner cited the end of the record, which quoted Mrs. Welzmiller as having said to the peddler: "You have said enough; your permit is cancelled."

It was at that point Mrs. Welzmiller's voice began to break with emotion. When she regained her composure she asked permission to say something for the record. The examiner nodded a ready permission.

"At that time," said the witness, sobbing audibly as she spoke, "our office help was very inadequate. In transcribing records they sometimes left whole things out. Often I was forced to write things out in longhand." Mrs. Welzmiller stopped a moment, struggling to suppress the flow of tears that now were coursing down her face. Then, with an effort, she went on: "Much has been left out of that record that would be beneficial to me under these insinuations."

She seemed unable to go on and wept unrestrainedly.

Reads for the Records.

At the request of Mr. Schurman Magistrate Simpson declared a short recess. For nearly five minutes Mrs. Welzmiller stood facing a window of the Aldermanic Chamber, where the hearing was being held. Gradually she mastered her emotion and turning about to face the spectators again she brushed away a tear and declared she was ready to proceed with her testimony. The examination was then resumed.

Mr. Schurman, who is a son of the former President of Cornell University and the present American Ambassador to Germany, had been handling his witness with marked courtesy and consideration, addressing her in moderate conversational tones. He had been interrogating her about Goldenberg, who, while testifying on Tuesday, had told how he had been in the Orchard Street pushcart market for nineteen years and never had been accused of a violation of rules until in December, 1923.

At that time, Goldenberg had said, he was summoned by Mrs. Welzmiller because his cart was too long, and he had been given what was termed a hearing —he was not permitted to say much, he testified—after which his permit was cancelled.

Reading from the official Markets Department transcript of the testimony at that hearing, Mr. Schurman pointed out that Goldenberg had been summoned because he had falsified his application blank, stating that he lived in Orchard Street, whereas he actually lived in Hinman Street, Brooklyn. In explaining the cause for the summons, Mrs. Welzmiller said Goldenberg had become violent at the market, insolent to her and had caused a riot in the street.

"But you summoned the man for perjury," Mr. Schurman said. "Why, then, did you conduct the inquiry on the basis of his insolence?"

The witness did not answer directly, but said she had gone to great trouble to learn the truth of where Goldenberg lived and he had refused to admit the truth to her. After she gave him the summons, she said, she had laid the details of the case before Commissioner of Markets Edwin J. O'Malley, who told her the permit of the man should be cancelled.

"Did you speak to Commissioner O'Malley before or after Goldenberg was given his hearing?" Mr. Schurman asked. As Mrs. Welzmiller hesitated, he continued:

"This is very important, because it is unusual to decide the disposition of a case before the hearing is given."

"I think it was before the hearing," the witness answered. "I took the case to the Commissioner and told him of the man's insolence."

"And the Commissioner instructed that his permit be cancelled?"

"Mr. O'Malley said a man like that should be put out of the market," was the reply.

"In other words," Mr. Schurman persisted, "you were told to cancel the permit before the man was given a hearing?"

Mrs. Welzmiller hesitated again, then tempered her answer to the point where she asserted that Commissioner O'Malley did not order cancellation, but merely to "put him out."

"Is that the way you decide things? Do you usually make up your mind on what to do before you hold a hearing?" Mr. Schurman asked.

Breaks Down and Weeps.

"No," was her answer.

"Except for this one case?"

"That's all."

"Why did you do it then?"

"I asked Commissioner O'Malley what to do and he said if the man was insolent it was the only thing to do."

"Then, before Goldenberg's hearing was held on Dec. 7, 1923, your decision already was arrived at," Mr. Schurman commented.

Mrs. Welzmiller insisted that was not the case.

Here Mrs. Welzmiller laid aside a note book she had been carrying, straightened up in her chair and gazed steadily at Mr. Schurman without replying. The question was repeated.

"I have said all I can. I have said all I can," the witness repeated in a broken voice. It was here she broke down and wept.

After the midday recess she was recalled to the witness stand and seemed to have regained self-control. It was brought out that after the first of several cancellations of the permit held by Goldenberg, who had charged that he was approached with the suggestion that he pay money to Alderman Moritz Graubard, his place in the pushcart line in the Orchard Street market was given to one, Robert Schwab, whose name was "on a list" which Mrs. Welzmiller said she had. When she was asked what other names were on her list, she replied that she could not remember.

Mrs. Welzmiller, under questioning by Mr. Schurman, told of calling Goldenberg to her office after a report had reached her that the peddler was telling others in the Orchard Street market that he had paid "somebody" $200 to get him back into line after his permit had been canceled. The call was issued at the suggestion of Alderman Graubard, she said.

"At this hearing," she continued, "there were Graubard, Chief Supervisor Golding, Supervisor Burke, Goldenberg and myself. I asked Goldenberg about the rumor, and he denied making any such statement, adding that he never had paid anybody any money."

Mr. Schurman then asked if Graubard visited her office frequently, and she said he did.

"Was he always welcome?"

"No," she replied. "He became a nuisance."

A threat of deportation for peddlers belonging to the "independent" organization and a charge that one store owner operated, in violation of the law, more than ten pushcarts, hiring men weekly to run them, were additional disclosures at the afternoon session.

Mrs. Welzmiller was asked if it were possible for one man, under department rules, to have several carts.

"But how could we know it," she asked, "if the permits were in different names?"

"How do you suppose I found it out?" countered the examiner.

As Magistrate Simpson had court engagements for today, the investigation was adjourned until tomorrow morning.

ACTOR SLASHES THROAT.

Falls Dead in Wife's Arms—Violinist a Suicide.

J. Thornton Flynn, 30 years old, a vaudeville actor of 260 West Fifty-fourth Street, killed himself at his home yesterday, shortly before noon. He slashed his throat with a safety razor blade and collapsed into the arms of his wife, Nellie Gray Flynn, an actress. He died before the arrival of Dr. Goldberg from Reception Hospital.

Flynn had been appearing this past week with his vaudeville partner, Joseph Barrett, at the Willis Theatre, Willis Avenue and 138th Street, in the Bronx. According to Mrs. Flynn, to whom he had been married only four months, he had been despondent since their marriage. At that time he told her that he was in financial difficulties.

WIFE ADMITS CHILD WAS BOUGHT FOR $75

basis of the report, but records in Mr. Ryan's possession revealed, he said, that the address at which the child was reported to have been born was 233 East Eighty-sixth Street, one door west of the Geisen-Volk place.

She Dreaded Publicity.

When Bass and his wife first visited Mr. Ryan last Monday, the prosecutor explained, Mrs. Bass said that she had uncovered her deception because she had read in the newspapers that Mrs. Vosahlo was suspected of having signed a fictitious birth report for a child alleged to have been born in the infantorium. Mrs. Bass said that she feared that investigation would reveal that the infant at her home was the child, so she told her husband.

Mrs. Bass added that she had been married to the manufacturer two years ago, he having previously been married. Both were so eager to have a child that she decided she could bring immeasurable happiness to their home by a such a plot as she said she had executed with the help of Mrs. Geisen-Volk.

Elaborating her story to Mr. Pecora yesterday, Mrs. Bass said that a ruling motive for her confession was fear that if the police learned the facts for themselves there would be publicity. She was told that in view of her confession there was no way to prevent publicity, since official action against Mrs. Geisen-Volk would have to follow.

"I wouldn't have told you, my husband or anybody else in the whole world that little Nat was not my own child," declared Mrs. Bass to the two prosecutors, "had it not been for the fear that the investigation of the birth record would lead to my home.

"I love my little boy as I have never loved any other child in my life," Mrs. Bass continued in the presence of her husband. "I know it has all of the love I could give to one of my own flesh and blood."

The husband here broke in to tell the prosecutors that he had joined his wife in her deep love for the child up to the time she admitted on last Saturday that little Nat was not their son. Then the manufacturer added:

He Refuses to Keep It.

"I don't want the child. I won't keep it in my home. I did love it, because I believed it to be my own son. This is my second wife. I love her, and we are always happy together. We would be happier, perhaps, with a baby of our own, but when I found out that I had been hoaxed I lost my love for this child. I feel that it is a lie to try to keep on pretending the child is mine. I won't tie up my life to a lie. You'll have to take the child away."

Mr. Pecora and Mr. Ryan thereupon communicated with the Children's Society and arranged to have the infant taken from the Bass home today. When the couple had left the District Attorney's office, Mr. Pecora gave out the following statement:

"In the course of the investigation of the establishment conducted by Mrs. Geisen-Volk, we received information that Mrs. Bass had gone to the house on Sept. 15, 1924, that she had been put to bed as if in confinement and that she stayed there about eleven days; that she was given a baby on Sept. 16, which then was several days old, by Mrs. Geisen-Volk, and a birth certificate purporting to show that the baby was born to Mrs. Bass on Sept. 16, 1924, at 233 East Eighty-sixth Street, and also purporting to show that Nat Bass was the father of the child, had been signed by Mrs. Florentine Vosahlo of 158 West Twenty-fourth Street. Mrs. Bass was visited at the Geisen-Volk house by her husband, who regarded the infant as his own son. It was not until last Saturday that Mr. Bass learned the child was not his."

"Mother" Gave Check for Baby.

"The actual identity of the real parents of the baby has not been ascertained. Mrs. Bass gave Mrs. Geisen-Volk her own personal check for $75 for the baby. Mr. Bass thought that was the cost of the confinement. In all probability the child will be given into the custody of the Children's Society and from there given out into proper custody if the actual parents are not found.

"This poor little thing got a very bad break in life," continued the prosecutor. "Here it was placed in a home of comfort and refinement, where it would have had all the advantages of life and love and later education and opportunity—and now it is turned over to, perhaps, become a public charge. We will institute a prosecution against Mrs. Geisen-Volk for violation of our laws in connection with this matter."

The indictment voted on Tuesday last by the regular May Grand Jury charging Mrs. Geisen-Volk with substituting one child for another at the infantorium was handed up to Judge McIntyre in General Sessions yesterday. Mrs. Geisen-Volk, who is under $35,000 bail in the Jefferson Market Women's Prison, will plead to the indictment this morning. Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings, who presented this case to the Grand Jury, told Judge McIntyre that other allegations of the kind were being investigated and that additional indictments would be sought.

The bill against Mrs. Geisen-Volk is the first of its kind ever reported in the long history of General Sessions. It charges Mrs. Geisen-Volk with "feloniously substituting one child for another" on Feb. 1 last. It relates how William Angerer, father of an infant, Stephen Angerer, placed his son with the woman for care and nursing, and how on May 5 last "the said defendant, with intent to deceive William Angerer" produced the child of Mrs. Mary Shimkus, who also had placed her baby in the infantorium.

Sadie Howard, 36 years old, a negress of 259 West 141st Street, was paroled until she is sentenced on May 29. She pleaded guilty yesterday in Special Sessions to boarding more children at her home than a license from the Health Department permitted. William J. Moore, an agent of the Children's Society, appeared as complainant against the woman. He explained that she had received a license to board one child at her place, but when Moore called there on May 14 last there were four children under her care. Justices Kelly, Kernochan and Nolan said sentence would be announced at her next appearance in court.

JAPAN JOINS FETE AT CITY COLLEGE

Matsudaira Eulogizes Educator as Diplomat Who Established an Unbroken Friendship.

Charter Day exercises at the College of the City of New York yesterday, when the seventy-eighth anniversary of the institution was celebrated, were made an occasion to pay tribute to Townsend Harris, founder of the college, and the first United States Ambassador to Japan, and to celebrate the uninterrupted friendship established between the two countries seventy years ago.

Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese Ambassador to the United States; Dr. John H. Finley, former President of the College, and Nathaniel A. Elsberg, former State Senator, were the principal speakers at exercises in which a tablet to Mr. Harris was unveiled, and the first United States flag flown in Japan was displayed.

Ambassador Matsudaira declared the friendship between Japan and the United States was due in large measure to the patience, understanding, sympathy and far-sightedness of Townsend Harris. He said that for the college to have had such a broad-minded, tolerant and righteous man for its founder is an enviable fortune, for he bequeathed to posterity something which is infinitely more precious than all the tangible things which go to make a college in its material aspects."

The Ambassador said that when Mr. Harris arrived in Japan seventy years ago he found the country in turmoil.

"We had been thrown into a state of confusion on the issue of foreign intercourse," he continued. "We had enjoyed three centuries of isolation, and neither the Government nor the people saw much necessity for altering the traditional policy. Startled by the impact of foreign cannon balls, the country was divided into factions, some advocating the old policy of exclusion, others urging opening of the doors. The situation was critical. It was a very difficult situation for a newly arrived diplomat, yet Townsend Harris acquitted himself of his onerous duties with wonderful skill and tact."

Tells Harris's Triumph.

He told of how outlaws and misguided patriots in those days abused and maltreated foreigners.

"So impatient with this condition were some of the Western diplomatic representatives," he went on, "that they were inclined to assume an intolerant and uncompromising attitude toward our Government. But Townsend Harris always stood for sympathy and moderation. How deep this sympathy was, and how genuine his friendship, may be judged from his decision and his remarks on the deplorable occasion of the murder of his secretary and interpreter, Mr. Heuseken, at the hands of chauvinists or ruffians. His European colleagues, indignant at this outrage and fearful of their own fate, left Yedo (present Tokio) after delivering strong notes of protest to the Government.

"Townsend Harris refused to join them. Unarmed and relying upon such protection as the Japanese authorities were able to give him, he remained alone in the capital. It was at that moment when threats of punitive war were being uttered by some of his colleagues that Harris wrote in his journal these memorable words:

"'I had hoped that the page of future history might record the great fact that in one spot of the Eastern world the advent of Christian civilization did not bring with it its usual attendants of rapine and bloodshed. This fond hope, I fear, is to be disappointed. I would sooner see all the treaties with this country torn up and Japan return to its old state of isolation than witness the horrors of war inflicted upon this peaceful people and happy land.'"

Then, the Ambassador continued, Mr. Harris gradually dispelled the skepticism which had greeted him, and finally, six years after his arrival, when he resigned his post to return home, the same officials who had asked him originally to leave begged him to remain, "so completely," he said, "had he won the trust of the Japanese with whom he had come in contact."

"The fact that the United States was represented in those critical days in Japan by a man of Townsend Harris's far-sightedness, generosity and sympathetic understanding is a cause of profound gratification to all of us," he said. "Had the United States been represented by a man less patient and less sympathetic, the relations between America and Japan might have followed a different course from that which they have happily pursued."

Old Flag Displayed.

Dr. Finley showed the audience the first United States flag flown in Japan, made by Japanese of Japanese crêpe, with thirty-one stars in its field of blue, and he called it "one of the most precious and significant of international emblems."

"It is the first symbol," he said, "of America's disinterested interest in Japan. And we can only hope that it prophetically symbolizes an abiding cooperation for that same justice and good-will between the continents, which are, after all, only islands of larger growth.

"Japan has (as we) taken her national symbol out of the skies. Ours is but a galaxy of suns and Japan's a single sun. May we both be true to their suggestive and sequential symbolism and not only newly resolve but mutually bind ourselves in this pledge of the skies, that as the night succeeds the day and the day the night, as the sun succeeds the stars and the stars succeed the sun, we can neither of us be false, unjust or inhuman to any man or to any people."

Mr. Elsberg, who spoke for the Alumni Association, said City College is noteworthy for the fact that "mental and moral discipline make the cornerstone on which the structure of its curriculum is erected."

Then, after the students had sung "Lavender," the college song, and the names of those elected to Lock and Key, the honorary senior society, had been called, President Sidney Edward Mezes, who had presided, directed the audience from the Great Hall to Townsend Harris Hall, where the tablet to Mr. Harris was unveiled.

The tablet is a bronze relief, seventeen by twenty-four inches, and is the work of Albert d'Andrea of City College's art school. It is the gift of the class of 1924.

After luncheon Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall and President Mezes reviewed the 2,000 cadets of the college on the parade ground.

SOFIA, May 20.—Proudkine, the Chief of Police during the Stambulisky régime, and two others have been condemned to death for their part in the explosion at the Odeon Theatre in Sofia in 1920. Muravieff, the former War Minister, was acquitted.

Mme. Nicolava, on trial with four others on a charge of hiding conspirators after the Cathedral bomb outrage, was subjected to a severe cross-examination regarding her relations with her Communist lodgers.

She admitted nursing Marco Friedmann after he was wounded in a shooting affray, and confessed that her tenants kept their revolvers in their rooms, but she denied that she knew her lodgers were mixed up in any conspiracy, although she was aware that they were Communists.

JAPANESE COUNT SEES WAR IN 10 YEARS

CALLS REDS UNRELIABLE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, May 20.—Forces operating in the Far East indicate that Japan will be embroiled in war within ten years, not with America on the Pacific, but with the Soviet in Manchuria, in the opinion of Count Michimasa Soyejima, a member of the House of Peers, who has been invited to speak at the international round table conference of the University of Chicago, opening on June 30. He says:

"The interests of Japan and Russia in Manchuria are opposed in so many respects that the conflict is inevitable. War with America is physically impossible, were there cause, but war with the Soviet is possible and probable.

"China will join Russia against Japan because of her resentment over the twenty-one demands unless the Soviet antagonizes the Chinese by attempted domination.

"Japan made a big mistake in recognizing Russia. Despite her solemn pledge to the contrary, the Russians are doing their best to spread communism in Japan and Korea, as they are doing in China.

"The communization of China is impossible because of the ignorance of the masses, but the Japanese offer a good field, and the Koreans, resenting Japanese rule, offer a still better one. Control of subversive doctrines among the 10,000,000 Japanese who were given the vote at the last session of the Diet, prematurely because they are politically unconscious, is the most difficult problem.

"An adequate weapon is at hand, however, in the Peace Maintenance law passed by the last Diet, which permits dealing with radicals with an iron hand.

"Japan won economic advantages on paper by the Russo-Japanese Treaty which Russia never would have granted if she had not been checkmated in England by the Conservatives. Russia promises Japan oil concessions in Sakhalin and others in Siberia, but the Soviet's history shows that they generally fail to keep their word. Japan's benefits, therefore, are doubtful."

In discussing Japan-American relations Count Soyejima says that the only way America menaces Japan economically is in China, which will never cause war. The immigration restriction was a blow to Japan only in the manner it was adopted, as emigration will not solve Japan's over-population problem. Either Japan must be industrialized or birth control practiced, Soyejima says, and he considers the latter most practicable.

Count Soyejima favors another disarmament conference, but believes the first necessary element to be "disarmament of the mind." He believes that the world's peace can be guaranteed by the close cooperation of America, England and Japan without suspicion. He is publisher of two papers in Korea and a deep student of Far Eastern affairs. He will make three speeches at the conference in Chicago: on present conditions in Japan, on Japan's policies toward China, Korea and Siberia, and on Japanese-American relations.

EPSTEIN'S MEMORIAL STIRS ARTISTIC STORM

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 20.—Jacob Epstein, the sculptor, has roused another artistic storm by his memorial to W. H. Hudson, the naturalist, which was unveiled in Hyde Park yesterday by Prime Minister Baldwin.

The memorial is hidden in what is known as Birds' Sanctuary.

One feature of it is a plaque supposed to represent a gentle fairylike Rima, a character in Hudson's "Green Mansions." The figure which Epstein presents as Rima has a Babylonian aspect utterly opposed, in the eyes of critics, to the idea of Rima suggested by Hudson, and many severe judgments have been passed upon it.

Epstein today made answer to his critics as follows: "Some people appear to have expected from me an exact and realistic illustration of Rima, genius of the forest, as conceived by Hudson. Rima was my theme and I carved my sculptoral conception of Hudson's work. I set out to create a new work illustrative of the great naturalist's artistic conception of Rima. No one can better that.

"The business of the sculptor is to create new work which is of value in itself. As for my conception of Rima being out of harmony with the spirit of Hudson's great nature and an added Epstein, I fancy it must be my critics who are not in harmony over the theme. I have had the advantage of six months' work on the actual panel and twelve months before that on a study of the theme and of sketches in connection with it. My critics probably have not had more than a passing glance at the tablet during the past few days.

"I am quite content with my own approval of my work and do not work to seek the approval of others. I have, however, received many messages of approval from artists most competent to judge the work.

"I notice," continued Epstein, "that some critics allude to the diaphanous draperies of my Rima. Hudson describes her as being in garment-like cobwebs. That is something which cannot be rendered in sculpture. It is not surprising that I have some critics in the press. There were quite a number of old gentlemen in the party while I was at work on the panel, criticising it so much that my meditations were often disturbed. It must be remembered I have given the figure a bold and vigorous line because I realized that the best view would be from a distance of 50 to 60 feet from the panel."

Some visitors to the sanctuary today noticed that the birds there seemed few and far between and suggested that Epstein's plaque was a scarecrow.

Britain Opposes Extending Time for Keeping New Troops.

LONDON, May 20 (AP).—The British Government has informed Bulgaria that it does not consider it necessary to extend the time within which Bulgaria may use a temporarily increased militia force. Foreign Secretary Chamberlain today told the House of Commons that he believed the normal Bulgarian militia force would be sufficient to handle the situation. He added that the Bulgarian Government has not requested an extension of the time.

HUGE CLIFFS FOUND IN DJERBA STRAIT

STORM AND TIDES HINDER

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DJERBA ISLAND, Tunis, May 20.—Stormy, rainy weather, unusual in this region, interfered with today's attempts of Count Byron Kuhn de Prorok to find the submerged city reported to be in the Djerba Strait.

Only four divers succeeded in going down between the squalls during the short tideless and currentless periods when undersea exploring is possible here, none of them remaining more than fifteen minutes.

As each of them explored the different parts of the channel, slow work by the trial and error system, which is considered the only practical method of narrowing down the large area in which the city is supposed to lie, the work advanced despite the weather.

One of the divers found that the bottom of the sea in one place rose up sheer in a wall, the underwater cliffs being thirty feet high. This tends to confirm local reports that the channel contains many peculiar formations and strange holes, one of which, at a point 30 yards square on the bottom and 120 feet below the surface of the water, suddenly drops down to a depth no one has yet been able exactly to ascertain.

According to the local authorities, Professor Seurat, a geologist of the Algiers Faculty of Sciences, who recently studied the channel, found that the land showed signs of having undergone tremendous movements and convulsions capable of engulfing a whole city. If it did, it has certainly well hidden its prey.

The search for the lost city, if in one way a disappointing process of elimination, remains extremely picturesque. The diving operations are being conducted from a small Greek ship with rakish Corsair sails whose only concession to modernity, aside from airpumps and other diving equipment, is a snorting auxiliary motor.

Even the ship's dory is gayly decorated with a picture of a mermaid holding up a Greek flag and bearing the word "Democracy" in honor of the present Greek Republic, while below the name an all-seeing eye is painted—as sailors did in the days before the seas are supposed to have engulfed a city here.

The name of the ship itself is appropriately enough the Greek word "Elpis," meaning "Hope." With a few changes the garments of the crew might pass Captain Kidd's muster, and certainly the men are genial and happy enough to keep up the sturdy traditions of the buccaneers.

As I write on shipboard, seated on a water cask, with a typewriter mounted on a box between the handles of the airpump, while awaiting a favorable hour for diving between the squalls and tides, the crew are clustering on all sides of me chuckling when the more educated among them pick out such words as "Michael" and "Elpis," for some know French and our alphabet, though none knows English.

Now a boat, such as the Barbary Coast made famous, passes loaded with Arabs, veiled women, and also camels, which are bellowing protests against traveling over the watery desert. In such an atmosphere it is easy to imagine that below us may sleep a city in the sea—though it seems likely that it will be difficult to find.

Asks Referendum on German Flag.

BERLIN, May 20 (AP).—Minister of the Interior Schiele, addressing the main committee of the Reichstag today, advocated the formation of a permanent committee to examine into constitutional questions, such as alteration of the republican colors, abrogation of the law for the protection of the republic, and the suppression of the State Court for the protection of the republic, in connection with which motions have been submitted to the committee.

Herr Schiele said the flag question demanded early clarification, as it served to create internal dissensions among the German people.

"I do not believe this problem can be settled through parliamentary procedure," the Minister added, "as it is not a party issue, but purely a matter of heart."

Herr Schiele indicated that he favored a referendum for deciding the question of the colors.

Germany's proposed new tariff on automobiles will definitely bar American cars from the German market, American business men here believe. Some American business men here have been already inclined to view the Government's proposed new tariff policy as violating the most favored nation clause.

George F. Bauer of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who is touring Germany for the purpose of studying trade prospects, said:

"A prohibitive duty on automobiles, as now contemplated, is na indirect discrimination against American trade."

He said he believed the proposed German tariff is decidedly contrary to an ethical interpretation of the most favored nation treatment.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP).—American officials charged with responsibility for promoting foreign trade are following Germany's preliminary steps toward tariff revision with an interest intensified by the knowledge that American export trade is likely to encounter serious adverse effects.

Since the German program still has to face possible changes in the Reichstag, definite prediction of the results is withheld. It is believed certain, however, that several American industries, particularly automotive manufacture and agriculture, will have to reconcile themselves to the erection of new German customs barriers against their products.

A considerable export of American-made automobiles now goes to Germany under a system of import licenses. It has long been expected that establishment of a regular German tariff would stop or hamper this trade materially, while the recent gain of strength by agricultural interests in the political arena has foreshadowed clearly increased German tariffs on foodstuffs.

fer to German propaganda in favor of the annexation of Austria. I am sure the Senate agrees with me that such a flagrant violation of existing treaties cannot be countenanced."

He also referred to similar German propaganda in the provinces of Italy annexed after the war, saying the Germans were wasting their time, as Italy never would yield this territory.

Holds Soviet Has Failed.

Mussolini's statements concerning Russia were especially interesting, not only owing to discussions now raging about the Italo-Russian commercial treaty which soon is to be submitted to Parliament, but also owing to accusations made by a section of the press that the Russian Embassy here has been acting as a go-between for the Third International and the Italian Communists in their campaign against the Fascist Government.

"There can be no doubt," said the Premier, "that de jure recognition of Russia will be of utility ultimately if not immediately.

"What we have seen can fill us with joy, for we have seen that Communist experiment has totally failed, because Communism, which tends to level all men down, is opposed to life and the nature of man, who is, by instinct, individualistic. Russia, now follows an economic financial policy not much dissimilar from the ones obtaining in capitalistic countries. Russia now has stock exchanges in operation and money which is quoted on these stock exchanges. Besides, the new policy has created a class of small landholders who have small sympathy for communism and has turned the professional classes also against the Communists.

"I do not believe, therefore, that communism can ever return to Russia as it was in the flowery days of militant Communism in 1920. We must become accustomed to the idea of a new Russia, composed chiefly of small landholders and governed by men who will, of necessity, be obliged to adopt a realistic policy both at home and abroad."

Turning his attention to the Third International which, according to accusations of the press here, is responsible for fomenting trouble in Bulgaria and also inciting Italian Communists to revolt, Mussolini said:

"The Third International and the Russian Government are two separate entities, but all men in each belong to the Communist Party. Their action tends always to grow more apart and will do so increasingly as Russia's relations with foreign countries grow better. I admit that Russia has evolved a magnificent propaganda machine and believe Russian propaganda will become more intense as the failure of Communism becomes more pronounced."

As for the activities of the Italian Communists, the Premier assured the Senate there was no reason to feel uneasy, as the Italian Communists were very few in number, hardly mustering 30,000 and were constantly watched by the Government. He did not believe the accusations made against the Russian Embassy of encouraging Italian Communists.

"I don't believe," he said, "that Russia would compromise its international diplomatic situation by meddling in Italian affairs. I can state, on the contrary, that the bearing of the diplomatic and commercial Russian authorities in Italy has been above reproof."

He ended by urging the Senate to approve the Italo-Russian commercial treaty when it was submitted, even if it had not yet given the results which some too optimistic persons had looked for.

Italian Press Varies in Views.

ROME, May 20 (AP).—The Epoca today gives its view of the action of the United States in requesting the payment of debts owing to it by various nations.

"The United States," says the newspaper, "is arming itself with credits to carry out its plan of disarmament and to force nations with depreciated currencies to re-establish their monetary values."

After asserting that the United States has important financial and economic interests in European countries, the Epoca continues:

"We are persuaded that the Americans want to use their right as a creditor as an arm to force the European people to concude a durable peace and durable economic arrangements. The Americans can be invoked to come to the aid of European nations in distress, but they want to be sure that the money they lend will not be used to prepare for a new war or to sustain the monopolistic policies of any single nation.

"The Americans desire that European finances shall be brought to normal in order to protect their own financial aspirations and to avoid competition with European industry, which produces with depreciated currency and sells below cost."

The writer of the article declares that another purpose of the United States is to get the European peoples upon a friendly basis before the outbreak of a future war "which will be between continents, instead of nations—between the Asiatics and the Anglo-Saxons."

The article intimates that the action of the American Debt Funding Commission also was intended to check "French militarism."

The Fascist organ, Il Tevere, declared editorially today that the time was not ripe for a solution of the war debts problem. Italy, it said, must maintain as a fundamental principle that reparations and war debts were inseparable.

"Unless this principle is accepted by all interested nations we shall always be groping in the dark," the editorial continued. "If this principle is refused, the debtor countries will be obliged to sign a compromise, which would be tantamount to signing their death warrants and which for obvious economic reasons would not be observed. Is Caillaux ready to make such a mistake?"

The newspaper admitted that the uncertainty of the war debts situation is damaging efforts to stabilize currencies of the various debtor nations, but insisted that under present conditions it is impossible to reach an agreement.

"The American mentality seems to have remained at a standstill since the Mellon-Baldwin agreement regarding the British debt," adds the article. "Perhaps the White House has the true vision of the question, but it is pressed by the American Senate and by public opinion, which is kept on the qui vive by the glamour of decreased taxation."

EAST LONDON, South Africa, May 20.—The Prince of Wales has now penetrated into that part of South Africa where one of his most interesting duties is to meet the Bantu chiefs and show himself to their peoples.

During the long open-air Indaba at the Victoria Grounds in King Williams Town he appeared in uniform before 10,000 natives of the Ciskeian districts. It was explained to him by the Chief Native Commissioner for the Cape Region that the representation was from a widely scattered Bantu population of 500,000 people in twenty-eight magisterial districts, an area of nearly 30,000 square miles, including members of a vast number of tribes as well as detribalized natives.

At the royal pavilion, the native police, drawn from the Fingo tribes, were lined up as a guard of honor. As the Prince, after the usual inspections, took his seat, a huge native choir sang the national anthem, the young women swaying instinctively as they sang. Then the choir chanted "Fulfill Thy Promise," and it may be hazarded that the Prince never listened to clearer or more beautiful harmonies.

Opposite the dais and behind the ubiquitous Mbongo, or official tribal chanter of praises, who wore a vermilion cape and sat with a look of dread and uneasiness on his wizened countenance, were lined the chiefs of many Ciskeian tribes. They had drawn their clothes from a strange wardrobe stocked with Sunday suits, riding breeches, ancient "toppers," colored waistcoats and leggings. One stout chieftain sat at ease in a Bishop's hat and military leggings.

Two by two, or three by three the delegates from Keiskamahoek, Glen Grey and Peddie Districts were brought up to the platform underneath the Prince's balcony, where they presented their addresses. They were followed, among others, by Fingo chiefs and headmen, native representatives from Saint Matthew's College and King's. Native teachers' associations came to aver their loyalty and establish the happy record of being the first to see the Prince of Wales in the unpretentious valley of our Keiskama River."

It was during the reign of Queen Victoria that these peoples had been taken under British protection and the speeches contained many references to their belief in the British Constitution and to the peace which followed the sanguinary battles in the mountains of the Keiskamahoek region during the Xosa wars of 1846, 1851 and 1878.

Then the Mbongo drew himself up to his full height and opened his capacious mouth. He half recited, half chanted the Prince's praises and gave him the "Imibulisо," the greeting into the land.

"Let the heavens drop blessings," shouted the natives and the chiefs clapped their hands and 10,000 voices cheered merrily.

Molteno Kraalmen brought a message very much their own, saying: "We believe your passage will bring happiness. Pass on with your beautiful feet. Big rains have come and were given us to lay the dust. Such rains we had not had, which points out plainly that they cleanse your way for happiness and peace. God be with you!"

The Prince then rose and made an important speech. He expressed his appreciation of the respect shown by the people who had travelled long distances to convey their attachment to the King and the throne.

"Die largely to the patience of the officials and the faith of the missionaries, he said the natives had emerged from comparative barbarism in a neighborhood where no man's life was safe.

"Today it is recognized by all," the Prince continued, "that there must be a closer cooperation and good will between the two races in the interests of both. I would caution you against tendencies to mistrust those in authority or turning to those whose smooth promises have yet to be translated into performance.

"To avoid these dangers you should study how to manage your own affairs through the council system. Those who already enjoy it understand its value. The council system has borne excellent fruit in the Transkeian territories, where it has been many years in operation, and I am confident that where it is available on this side of Kei you would find in it the solution of many of your troubles—and also education as to the many difficulties which the Government has to meet."

After his speech, the Prince presented walking sticks to six of the leading Indunas as a sign of recognition of the Amaxosa Royalty.

The Indaba was the biggest native gathering in the history of King Williamstown and reached a happy climax as those thousands of marvellous young singers sang "God Save the King" in Xosa as well as in English.

In a rather oppressive heat the royal train this afternoon drew into the East London terminus. The Prince alighted from his coach to return the salute of a contingent of Kaffrarian Rifles and to meet the city fathers.

He then drove past the City Hall and the new war memorial in Oxford Street to the recreation ground, where the civic address was presented. Part of the ceremony was the singing of "The March of the Men of Harlech" by a choir which the local Neambrian Society had organized.

GERMAN-POLISH ISSUE BEFORE WORLD COURT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, May 20.—By virtue of Article 23 of the German-Polish convention relative to Upper Silesia signed at Geneva on May 5, 1922, the German Government has asked the Permanent Court of International Justice to decide the issue which has arisen between Germany and Poland in regard to German interests in Polish Upper Silesia.

This article of the convention stipulates that "if differences of opinion resulting from the interpretation of the application of certain articles arise between the two Governments, they shall be submitted to the Permanent Court."

The articles in question treat with the right of Poland to expropriate in Polish Upper Silesia industrial enterprises, including mining and farming property. These articles refer in turn to Articles 92 and 297 of the Versailles Treaty.

It is the contention of the German Government that in a certain number of cases Poland took possession of or liquidated properties without formal treaty rights or without conforming to the established rules of procedure. In the matter of the expropriation of farming lands, Germany is basing her appeals on the rules governing the rights of acquisition by former Germans who have become Polish citizens.

Germany asks the Court to decide that certain legislative or administrative measures taken by Poland are contrary to the treaties in force and to decide that in certain given cases the attitude of the Polish Government would have conformed with the dispositions by treaty.

The World Court has communicated the German request to the Polish Government and to members of the League of Nations.

REFORMERS IGNORE GOV. HARTLEY'S RAP

ORGANIZATION IS ASSAILED

Several hundred delegates from most of the States and Territories to the National Child Welfare Conference at the Hotel Biltmore were greatly agitated at their last session yesterday afternoon when they learned that Governor R. H. Hartley of Washington had attacked one of their number in a statement to The Associated Press after having previously ridiculed the conference. The member assailed by the Governor was William P. Totten of Seattle, unofficial delegate.

In a statement issued in Olympia, Wash., Governor Hartley rebuked Totten for an apology Mr. Totten made to the conference for the Governor of his State. The Governor had named no official delegate to the Child Welfare Conference. Governor Hartley's statement describing Mr. Totten as a "self-designated, free-riding, junketing delegate," reiterated the Governor's stand on the question of child welfare, and then said:

"There is no more ardent defender of the youth of America than I, but so long as I am Governor I shall refuse to let my office be used as a cheap advertising agency whereby political propagandists and paid professional uplifters, operating under the guise and in the names of child or social welfare, may put over their fantastic schemes and keep themselves in the pay of an open-minded and charitable public."

Telegram of Rebuke.

At the Child Welfare Conference it was reported that Mr. Totten had received a telegram from Governor Hartley severely rebuking him for the apology he made for the Governor. Members of the conference who claimed to be familiar with the contents of the telegram quoted fragments from it, including one which alluded to the conference as "uplift gush; altruistic twaddle indulged in by women who leave their homes to cats and canaries and neglect their children."

Neither Mr. Totten nor Miss Sophie Irene Loeb, President of the Child Welfare Committee of America, Inc., who has acted as Chairman of the Child Welfare Conference, would give out the text of Governor Hartley's telegram. Miss Loeb described it as "a little pin prick from a misinformed Governor which is not going to disturb the spirit of the conference, which has been so splendid all the way through."

"I have no comment to make at this time," said Mr. Totten.

August Heckscher, one of the speakers at the closing session of the conference, without referring specifically to any of his public gifts, the latest of which is $150,000 to found a sixteen-acre playground in Central Park, said:

Mr. Heckscher declared the greatest and most gratifying returns were those from actual service to humanity.

Resolutions Adopted.

Before adjournment, the conference unanimously adopted a resolution introduced by Judge Cornelius F. Collins of General Sessions advocating appointment of a committee, including a representative of the Federal Children's Bureau, to work for the continuation of the State Child Welfare Commissions, and for creation of similar boards in States having no commissions. Another resolution affirmed the belief that "child placement in foster homes can be of real benefit to children," particularly when the child is placed by a responsible public agency, adequate supervision provided, and a record kept of every child so placed.

Twenty-six doctors and dentists, with all members of the Medical and Dental Committees of the City Board of Child Welfare, in recognition of their free care of widows and orphans in city clinics, were presented with certificates of the Child Welfare Committee of America, Inc., by Miss Loeb. Those receiving certificates were Dr. Jacob Daley, Dr. Louis Tukipan, Dr. Herman Goldstein, Dr. Benjamin Schwart, Dr. Louis J. Freedman, Dr. Charles Gordon Hoyt, Dr. Leo Rosenthal, Dr. Louis L. Goldblatt, Dr. Samson Seymour Hocht, Dr. Joseph Bruder, Dr. Arthur Rothenberg, Dr. George Schwartz, Dr. Howard W. Blake, Dr. Harry Shapiro, Dr. Joseph Breuer, Dr. Herbert Groff, Dr. Ralph Brodsky, Dr. Kathlene Byrne, Dr. Ellen Totten, Dr. Margaret Gallagher, Dr. Loretta Naughton, Dr. Harry Strusser, Dr. Leon Stern, Dr. Benjamin Blickman, Dr. Victor Dosbrough and Dr. Maxwell Chodes.

Three women visitors to New York lost jewelry valued at more than $20,000 here last Saturday, it was learned yesterday when E. B. Hopwood, an insurance adjuster of 25 Fulton Street, appealed to the police to cooperate in a search for the missing articles.

Mrs. M. V. Faunce of Palm Beach, who is at the Hotel Commodore, started for the theatre Saturday night wearing a platinum bracelet set with diamonds valued at $5,500. When she returned to the hotel she noticed her bracelet was gone.

The experiences of the other women were similar. Mrs. Constance R. Brown of Kalamazoo, Mich., boarded a train at the Grand Central Station wearing a $10,000 pearl necklace. When she entered the diner of the train she discovered her pearls were missing. Mrs. Anna Bink left here on a train for Chicago and soon after the train started discovered the loss of a platinum bracelet set with diamonds and valued at $5,000.

LONG ISLAND OPPOSES PLAN

Electrifying the Montauk Division Would Harm Service, Lawyer Says.

When the Transit Commission resumed the hearing yesterday on the petition by the Richmond Hill Board of Trade for the electrification of the Long Island Railroad's Montauk Division from Jamaica to Glendale, Alfred A. Gardner, counsel for the railroad, asserted that the institution of passenger service would disrupt the freight traffic now operated over that line and seriously inconvenience passengers from other Long Island stations.

The hearing was conducted by Philip Matthews, chief executive officer of the Transit Commission. William A. Jones, counsel for the Richmond Hill Board of Trade, announced that the petitioners had finished the presentation of their case at the last session. The hearing was adjourned until May 28.

JENNIE FAVA'S TRIAL ON.

State Charges She Stole $15,000 to Aid Her Sweetheart.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 20.—The jury that will try 22-year-old Jennie Fava of Port Chester was completed this afternoon. County Judge Bleakley adjourned court until tomorrow morning when the first evidence will be introduced by the State in an effort to prove that the defendant stole $15,000 from her employer to send her sweetheart through college and buy an expensive automobile.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20 (AP).—Dorothy Ellingson, who slew her mother and has been under observation at the Napa State Hospital, was declared sane today by Dr. J. M. Scanland, Superintendent of the hospital, and the members of his staff in a report to the Superior Court here.

The report was submitted to District Attorney Brady. The girl's murder trial was suspended by her hysterical outbursts in the courtroom and an insanity hearing was held instead. The jury found her insane and she was sent to the hospital at Napa for treatment.

Dr. Scanland's report said that a close observation of the girl for a period of more than thirty days had evidenced that she was in full possession of her faculties and mentally responsible in every way.

Assistant District Attorney Harmon D. Skillen, the prosecutor in the case, said that he expected to have the girl returned to the county jail here tomorrow. He was ready to go ahead with the murder trial on Monday, he said.

Dorothy Ellingson, "jass mad" disciple of the night life, shot and killed her mother, Mrs. Anna Ellingson, at their home here Jan. 13, after being refused permission by the elder woman to attend a liquor party that night. The girl attended the party and was arrested a day later.

PENSION ROLLS LOSE 6,464 IN SIX MONTHS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Figures compiled by the Pension Bureau show that in the last six months 10,631 Civil War pensioners have died.

The number of Spanish War pensioners increased during the six months from 90,226 to 99,030, while the number of widows of Spanish War veterans receiving pensions increased from 16,736 to 17,995.

Among regular army men entitled to pensions there was an increase of 133 and of widows 43. Pension rolls of the Indian wars also showed a slight gain.

Of the 24 veterans of the Mexican War on the pension rolls six months ago 6 have died, while 95 pensioned widows of Mexican War veterans died in the same period.

In the last six months the number of pensioners on the Government rolls, exclusive of those who served in the World War, fell from 522,007 to 515,543, a net reduction of 6,464.

LAY SHOOTING TO REVENGE.

Police Say Victim Withheld Fund Raised for Convicted Gunman.

Two men, one wounded, were arrested early yesterday in a Hoboken saloon after a fight which is alleged to have started when three New York gunmen attempted to kill a man who they believed had failed to turn over $3,000 collected to defray legal expenses of a new trial for a prisoner now serving twenty years in Sing Sing.

Frank Buonomi, 39 years old, of 616 Monroe Street, and Gustave Cantrella, 35 years old, of 512 Monroe Street, were arrested at the latter address soon after residents of the neighborhood, startled by pistol shots, had appealed to the police for help. Buonomi had a slight bullet wound on the left side of his forehead.

The police say that several months ago Buonomi and Moino Pelegrina were implicated in a murder in Manhattan. Buonomi was set free but Pelegrina got twenty years in prison.

Recently, friends of Pelegrina started a collection to pay legal expenses incidental to getting him a new trial. Buonomi, the police say, collected $3,000 but failed to pay it over to the man behind the movement in New York. Whereupon, the police declare, three New York gunmen were dispatched to Hoboken with orders to deal with Buonomi.

FIREMEN SEEK PREFERENCE.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., May 20.—Passaic today welcomed 1,500 delegates from all sections of the State to the thirty-ninth annual convention of the New Jersey State Exempt Firemen's Association.

Former Attorney General Thomas F. McCran of Paterson, Republican Gubernatorial candidate, and Brig. Gen. Bird W. Spencer of Passaic, President of the Firemen's Relief Association for forty-six years, addressed the morning session. Carlstadt was chosen as the convention city for 1926.

Officers of the organization re-elected were John G. Andes, Jersey City, President; Jacob J. Vreelan, Dover, First Vice President; Edward F. Schlosser, Clifton, secretary; Nicholas Snyder, Trenton, Treasurer; James Rikeman, Jersey City, statistician. Howard B. Smedley of Woodbury succeeded as Second Vice President William B. Atkinson of Westville, who declined the nomination in favor of the former.

The delegates went on record in favor of legislation which would give them preference in civil service examinations, similar to that accorded former soldiers and sailors in New Jersey. They also asked for an old age pension bill and an eight-hour day for members of paid fire departments.

WARTBURG HOME FESTIVAL.

More Than 12,000 Attend Industrial School's Annual Celebration.

More than 12,000 persons from Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and other States attended the annual Spring festival at the Wartburg Home Farm School on the outskirts of Mount Vernon yesterday. The weather was ideal, which added to the success of the outdoor celebration. It was considered one of the best entertainments ever arranged by the institution.

There were multi-colored booths with exhibits of needlework and handicraft of the children of the institution, which is sponsored by various churches in this and near-by States. Refreshment booths also dotted the lawn, where picnic groups gathered. A parade was led by the Wartburg Boys' Band, which has traveled over the country giving concerts. Many of the boys and girls at the home acted as guides for the visitors. A dinner was served to the visitors by the young inmates of the home. There was a band concert, games, community singing and a Maypole dance by the children.

The Rev. S. G. Vonbosses, the director of the home, who made an address, expressed delight at the large attendance. A special train was run by the New Haven Railroad for some of the visitors, while hundreds came in automobiles and buses.

Director Woolley's Position.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 20.—At its meeting Saturday the Yale Corporation voted at the request of the University Dramatic Association to designate E. M. Woolley, director of undergraduate dramatic production for one year with incorporation in the list of assistant professors, in case he is appointed coach of the Dramatic Association, a possible deficit in the budget of the association to be met by gifts to the university from interested graduates for that purpose.

STATE WORKERS PAID TWICE, HE SAYS

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 20.—After hearing from William C. Mullins of Paterson, chief investigator for the State Department of Institutions and Agencies, of his activities in obtaining information wanted by Commissioner Burdette G. Lewis, the Bright Investigating Committee late this afternoon sent for Mr. Lewis. Word came back, however, that he was in Chicago. Then the committee sent for his private secretary, Miss Agnes Mulrey, but word came back that she was on a week's vacation.

Mullins testified that Operatives 1, 2 and 3, who were nameless on the Civil Service payroll, were varied from time to time and were often employes of the State institutions who were paid by him to get information wanted by Lewis. Sometimes women were employed as spotters and on other occasions men were hired, the witness testified.

Senator Simpson asked if in such instances these employes, already on the State payroll, were paid a second time by the State. Mullins admitted that they were.

Tells Of Espionage.

That the Institutions Department exercises an espionage system through which it delves into the various county institutions such as jails and workhouses, was also revealed in Mullins's examination.

Assemblyman Loutrel asked if the Department of Institutions and Agencies had the power to go over the heads of Boards of Freeholders in the several counties to investigate county institutions. The witness replied that he did not know whether the department had a right to do it, but said that it was done.

Senator Simpson assured Mr. Lowell that the institution's department could do this very thing through a bill which the department had lobbied through the Legislature. Mr. Loutrel said he believed it was a serious situation when an appointive board like the State Board of Control could go into a county and in effect supersede Boards of Freeholders, who were the duly elected representatives of the people.

Senator Simpson explained to Mr. Loutrel that the institution's department had taken advantage of this law to send investigators into at least one county jail and ask the inmates if they were getting, for example, the proper amount of stewed peaches, shower baths and similar delicacies.

Investigated Jail, He Says.

Mullins testified that he had gone into Essex County and had investigated conditions in the county jail there. While he was reluctant to admit that he had ever investigated the members of the Board of Freeholders in Essex, the witness did say that he "found out what committees the different freeholders were placed on."

He told of the investigation he had made at the Essex jail and said that from outside sources he had heard that it was being run by cliques and that Warden Hosp was being ignored. One of the ten reports made by Mullins and now in the possession of the committee had to do with the jail investigation. In it Mullins referred to Warden Hosp as a "figurehead" and reported that he was weak-minded and without backbone. Another report made by Mullins had to do with alleged bootlegging at the Morris Plains State Hospital.

Senator Simpson wanted to know if Mullins had been able to curb the bootlegging at Morris Plains, and the witness replied: "For a while," but added that it would take 500 men to stop it entirely. According to the report read to the committee, grapes are raised on State property at Morris Plains and some of the resultant product eventually finds its way to some members of the institutional staff there.

Senator Simpson asked Mullins if he had conferred with Commissioner Lewis regarding testimony he was to give before the Bright committee, and the witness admitted that he had talked things over with the Commissioner.

CABLE TEST IN LABORATORY.

M. I. T. Crowds 3,000 Miles Into 24 Inches, Simulating Ocean Conditions

CAMBRIDGE, May 17. — Crowding 3,000 miles into twenty-four inches for the study of transoceanic cable transmission has been accomplished in a new type of artificial cable developed in the electrical research laboratories at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, it was revealed today.

The laboratory cable, which was designed by Dr. Vannevar Bush, professor of electric power transmission, makes it possible to simulate and study the actual transmission conditions that exist in cables on the bed of the ocean hundreds of miles from land. This apparatus is a glass container less than twenty-four inches square in which aluminum plates are suspended in a solution. In this "chemical ocean" of a few quarts transmission conditions encountered in a submarine cable 3,000 miles long can be accurately reproduced. Under actual physical conditions, where cables lie on the bed of the sea thousands of feet deep, this would be all but impossible.

TENNESSEE AROUSED BY JACKSON ARTICLE

Patriotic and Historic Societies Denounce 'Informal Biography' by Meade Minnigerode.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 20 (AP).—Two hundred members of patriotic societies of Tennessee met here today and adopted resolutions denouncing Meade Minnigerode, New York author, whose article in The Saturday Evening Post, "An Informal Biography" of Rachel Jackson, wife of President Andrew Jackson, aroused a storm of protest in Tennessee.

The resolutions were referred to a committee with authority to make "such verbal changes as in their judgment might be necessary and to sign and deliver to the press."

Representatives of all leading patriotic and historic organizations in the State joined in the discussion of the Minnigerode account of the character of President Jackson.

The criticisms ranged all the way from the most excoriating terms to the suggestion of an invitation to the author to visit the Hermitage and Jackson's tomb and observe for himself the gentlemanly personality of Jackson in his home life and the "lovable character" of his wife, Rachel.

The assemblage decided to accept an offer from The Saturday Evening Post, telegraphed to Major E. B. Stahlman, publisher of The Nashville Banner, to publish a story from John Trotwood Moore, State librarian and archivist, giving his views of President and Mrs. Jackson.

A leader in the condemnation of the short story writer declined to comment when told that Mr. Minnigerode had notified The Nashville Tennessean late today that all statements in his article were "made in good faith and absolutely without prejudice," adding that he would gladly receive corrections.

FAIL TO ELECT A BISHOP.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 20.—After twelve fruitless ballots the Episcopal Diocese of Connecticut failed to elect a Bishop Coadjutor today and voted to postpone action until next Fall. Decision was reached to leave the matter in the hands of the Standing Committee, of which the Rev. Dr. William A. Beardsley of this city is Chairman, and with Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster, who requested the diocese last month to appoint an assistant who eventually would succeed him.

The action is regarded as a definite victory for the existing organization of the Church. It is believed that one of the outstanding rectors of the State ultimately will be chosen. It is known that Bishop Brewster has espoused the candidacy of the Rev. Dr. E. Champlon Acheson of Middletown, who is now Suffragan Bishop, and it is felt that he is most likely to prove the committee's choice.

The candidates voted for included Bishop Acheson, Dr. Drury, Dr. Lewis, Dr. Sill, the Rev. Giddings Bell of the Faculty of St. Stephen's College, the Rev. Dr. Henry K. Sherrill of Trinity Church, Boston; the Rev. Dr. Paul Jones, formerly Bishop of Utah; the Rev. Dr. Herbert Shipman, Suffragan Bishop of New York; the Rev. Henry Hadden of Syracuse and the Rev. George G. Toup of Philadelphia.

DAVIS URGES DEFENSE.

MILWAUKEE, May 20 (AP).—Stressing his conviction that the gospel of the brotherhood of man was rapidly gaining ground, Colonel Dwight F. Davis, Assistant Secretary of War, said tonight to the national defense division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at a dinner here:

"We believe the power which will more effectively check the main cause of war in this hemisphere is for America to stand prepared.

"Let me stress the fact that our aims for sane preparedness do not run counter to any other sound plans of the Council of Churches, the League of Nations, the World Court, the Council of the American Society of International Law, nor any other learned bodies to educate the world to a high sense of moral and spiritual responsibility to humanity in the interests of peace.

"We are united in our efforts to establish a reign of law and order throughout every land. But we realize that the process of development toward world peace is one of evolution."

ASKS NEWARK POLICE SHIFT

The Newark Chamber of Commerce which made a survey of the police situation in Newark a few months ago filed a report on the investigation yesterday with William J. Brennan, Director of Public Safety. The report recommends the abolishing of four precincts, an increase in motor patrol by the police, the installation of police booths in the outlying districts and the elimination of detailing policemen at City Hall to guard city officials.

Another recommendation is that all the detectives of the Department of Public Safety be placed in one bureau. The replacing of desk lieutenants at Police Headquarters with clerks also is advised. The report states that if the recommendations are carried out, they will result in a budget saving of $227,000 to the city.

Director Brennan made no statement on the report.

ALLOWS SEVEN-CENT FARE.

Commission Grants New York and Stamford Company's Plea.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 20 (AP).—The Public Service Commission authorized the New York and Stamford Railway Company today to put into effect a 7 cent fare on three days' notice. The fare in the City of New Rochelle, the first zone, will remain at 5 cents, but in other zones it will be increased to 6 and 7 cents.

The Commission said the Company's books indicated deficits had been sustained for several years, and that increased revenue was necessary to meet paving requirments of various municipalities.

The new rates are effective for one year and have been approved by the municipalities through which the road runs from New Rochelle through Larchmont, Mamaroneck, Rye and Port Chester to Stamford, Conn.

CALL CAMP SMITH BEST IN COUNTRY

ACCOMMODATE 3,000 MEN

Gen. Berry and His Staff Observe Progress Under $500,000 Improvement Program.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., May 20.—Complying with a wish expressed recently by Governor Smith that the public be informed of progress made in the $500,000 improvement program at the Smith Camp of Instruction for the New York National Guard, a special inspection was held here today by commanding officers of the camp. At its conclusion Major Gen. Charles W. Berry, Commander-in-Chief of the New York National Guard, called it "the largest, the best-equipped and the most attractive army camp in the United States."

Colonel A. H. Huguet, U. S. A., senior military instructor, who declared nior military instructor, who declared army and National Guard training camps in the country, heartily accorded Smith Camp the first place. He declared that it was more attractive and better equipped than Aldershot, in England.

Accompanying General Berry on his tour of inspection were Colonel Edward McLeer, Chief of Staff; Lieut. Col. Foster Hetzell, quartermaster; Colonel William R. Wright, in charge of plans and training; Lieut. Col. Frederick W. Waterbury, chief ordnance officer, and Captain Henry E. Suavet, aid to the Commander-in-Chief.

Leaving the automobiles which had brought them from Divisional Headquarters in the Municipal Building, New York, the inspecting officers first went to East Camp. General Berry pointed out here a cut in a cliff made at an expense of $45,000 to enable the erection of shower and bath buildings. By June 14, the date of the arrival of the first quota of troops, General Berry said, these buildings will be ready to accommodate 3,000 men.

A total of $140,000 is being spent on the camp this Spring, he went on. All work, constructional and otherwise, is being handled at a great saving with the camp's own facilities. Among the new buildings is an ice house capable of storing 3,500 tons.

The roadways about the central part of the camp have been paved with cement, 3,750 yards having been laid this Spring. It was explained that the major portion of the recently acquired McKoy estate, amounting in all to 2,000 acres of wooded hills, would remain as it is for the time being. The water supply is obtained from a natural reservoir on one of these hills.

From East Camp the party proceeded to what is now West Camp. This camp, which accommodates 1,000 men, is to be moved up the valley, thereby opening for use a drill field more than half a mile long.

Leading from the parade ground to the river, 1,000 trees have been planted in a double line. This work was done this Spring. The plan, General Berry said, was to make of this a memorial grove, each tree to bear a tablet in memory of members of the various military units who were killed in war.

The inspecting party, after being shown through the Camp Commander's quarters and the Hostess House, or social centre, proceeded to the new swimming pool, completed two weeks ago. The cement pool is 500 feet long by 100 wide and is fed by a small stream. A running track and tennis courts are to be constructed near by.

Several hundred feet east of the pool General Berry pointed out new stable buildings, garages and carpenter, plumbing and machine shops. The party was also shown through the post hospital, messrooms and regimental headquarters.

Camp Smith, as it was named last year, stretches for three miles along the Hudson River, taking in the promontory known as Anthony's Nose. Training of National Guard units this Summer will extend in two-week periods from June 14 to Oct. 14. The first period will be utilized by the medical and engineer regiments and by the Riot Battalion of the New York Police Department, the latter to be drilled in exercises especially applicable to their service. The camp's twenty-six buildings, General Berry said, will accommodate 3,000 men at a time.

ROOSEVELTS ON THE WAY.

CHICAGO, May 20.—The James Simpson-Roosevelt Central Asiatic Expedition for the Field Museum is today on the first leg of its dash from the Vale of Kashmir into the high and barren Russian Pamir plateaus, accordring to a cablegram received by Stanley Field, President of the museum, from Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who, with his brother Kermit and George K. Cherrie, is leading the party.

The cable, sent yesterday from Srinigar, the "end of railroad and motor transportation in Northern India," said: "All well. Am leaving today."

The message shows that the Roosevelts, owing to arrangements made in London and the fast work of Mr. Cherrie, who preceded them to India, made the railway motor trip from Bombay to Srinigar, obtained supplies and a pack train, and started their trek to the "Roof of the World" just eight days from the date of landing. They arrived at Bombay May 11.

The expedition's route now is through the Himalayan Mountains via Leh and on through the Kara-Korum Pass, whence the trip into the Pamirs will be more or less direct.

FRIENDS HONOR DR. MOTTET

In celebration of his eightieth birthday a luncheon was given at the Hotel Astor yesterday to the Rev. Dr. Henry Mottet, rector of the Church of the Holy Communion, Twentieth Street and Sixth Avenue, by the Greater New York Federation of Churches. Several hundred church dignitaries, representing all religions, were present. Dr. Mottet, who has been a member of the Church of the Holy Communion for sixty-five years, has served the church as minister for half a century, and the speakers united in praising his long and notable service.

The Church of the Holy Communion, which was founded in 1846, became the first free church in America. No sittings were ever sold and its method was to invite rich and poor alike to worship together. The church has received its entire support from voluntary offerings. John Jacob Astor, his wife and son were among its early members.

Speakers told of Dr. Mottet's plans for the future, including the building of a large community house on the site of the old parish buildings and the erection of a sixteen-story hotel to accommodate about 500 working men and women. Among the speakers were the Rev. George Alexander of the First Presbyterian Church, the Right Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, Bishop of Bethlehem, Pa., and Suffragan Bishop A. S. Lloyd, who represented Bishop Manning.

Delaware Span to Cost $37,211,169.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20 (AP).—The Delaware River bridge will cost $37,211,169, it was estimated today by the bridge commission. This is nearly $10,000,000 more than the original engineering estimates. The increasee has been incurred, it was expained, by higher cost of land than expected. The estimated total cost does not include street widening.

TELLER, 20, FLEECED OF STOLEN $53,000

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Charged with the embezzlement of $53,000 from the Northwestern State Bank here, Albert Patryas, 20-year-old teller, today disclosed to detectives that a gamblers' ring had sought to persuade him to steal $50,000 more.

"Go get it," he quotes the gamblers. "We'll get you a lawyer. You can beat the rap. You can get off for $10,000 and then you'll have $40,000 left. Be a take-a-chance guy. They've already hung it on you for what you've taken."

Patryas blamed his downfall on gambling. Daily for nearly two weeks the youthful teller admitted he walked out of the bank with from $3,000 to $16,000 of stolen currency in his pockets. Because of his fine record and his supposed high character he was never molested or even suspected by the bank officials. His losses, he told the police, were never less than $3,000 an evening and on one occasion he lost $8,500.

The bank officials were reluctant to discuss the case, but said Patryas had started as a messenger and worked himself up to his position of responsibility.

Stanley Klonowski, known as Stanley Tall, was taken into custody following the disclosure of Patryas. Patryas said that most of the games in which he was a heavy loser were staged in "Loop" hotel rooms.

NEGROES TELL OF PEONAGE.

Declare They Were Flogged and Forced to Work in Florida.

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 20 (AP)—Stories of floggings and alleged peonage are being unfolded in Federal court here by negro witnesses in the trial of five Calhoun County men on charges of forcing negro employes to work against their will.

Testifying of their attempt to escape from the turpentine farm of M. S. Davis, three employes said yesterday that they were cruelly treated by the five white men on trial. In their effort to get away they said they had traveled afoot at night, avoiding towns and hiding by day, only to be held up by the five near Weewahitchka and roughly handled.

Working regularly in the turpentine operation from March to August, 1924, Henry Sanders stated that just before the three other negroes tried to escape, Davis, his employer, claimed the negro owed him $111 despite the fact that he had received no money and only scanty provisions while at the farm. The other negroes gave similar testimony.

De Witt Stoner admitted he was forced at the point of revolvers in the hands of the defendants to beat Henry Sanders, Galvester Jackson and George Diamond with large sticks or "blackjacks" after the negroes had been interrupted in their attempt to leave the county. Stoner said the white men looked on as he whipped the three, one at a time, after they had been stripped of their clothing and made to lie on their stomachs in the road.

After being whipped, Stoner said, he and two others were returned in an automobile to the Davis farm and required to resume their work the following day. The fourth man was taken away in another automobile by Charles Land, he said.

CARDINAL HAYES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 20.—Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York, arrived in Chicago today to attend a meeting of the American Board of Catholic Missions at the residence of Cardinal Mundelein. He was greeted by a reception committee of prominent clergy and laymen and cheered by a crowd of onlookers at the station.

He was taken immediately to Cardinal Mundelein's residence, at which high dignitaries of the Chicago Archdiocese were the other guests.

Asked about his boyhood acquaintance with Cardinal Mundelein at De La Salle Institute in New York, he said:

"We weren't exactly classmates, although we were in school together. Your Cardinal was younger than I—in fact, he still is. He may not look it, but he is.

"I have been looking forward to this visit for some time and I'm going to enjoy it to the fullest," he declared.

Cardinal Hayes will visit the St. Mary of the Lake University and Theological Seminary, at Mundelein, Ill. He will be greeted by the Faculty and students of the seminary and also by all the consultors, irremovable rectors, officials and leading pastors of the Chicago Archdiocese.

MUST DESIGNATE CANAL ICE.

State Orders Sheds and Wagons to Carry Letters 8 Inches Square.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 20 (AP).—Dealers selling ice cut from any canal in New York State must place upon storage sheds and delivery vehicles the words "Canal Ice" in letters eight inches square, Attorney General Albert Ottinger ruled today.

The ruling, requested by the State Department of Health, is based upon a provision of the Penal law which makes it a misdemeanor to store, transport or sell canal ice without plainly marking container or vehicle with the notice that the ice has been cut on a canal.

A law passed in 1923 permitting owners and lessees of land contiguous to land of the State bordering the Mohawk Basin at Green Island to harvest ice does not affect or alter the provisions of the Penal law, the Attorney General held. He advised the Health Department that charges made that canal ice is being sold in Troy from vehicles carrying no label or sign should be referred to the District Attorney.

SETTLING BORDER LINES.

American-Mexican Commission May Withhold Publicity of Agreements.

EL PASO, Texas, May 20 (AP).—Agreements reached by the United States-Mexican Border Commission may not be made public after the close of the conferences here this week, William R. Vallance, spokesman for the commission, said today.

"Reports of committees may not be published even when approved by the general conference, especially if treaty action is involved," he said. "It took approximately nine months from beginning of negotiations with Canada in Ottawa, 1923, to complete and publish the treaty."

Two committees on migration and smuggling have been working on border problems so far. The Smuggling Committee probably will finish its program Wednesday, Mr. Vallance said, but may wait for the Migration Committee to complete its work before submitting a report to the general conference.

MECKLENBURG RE-ENACTED.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 20.—The one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the first public demonstration in the United States against British rule was celebrated here today with an elaborate program attended by prominent men from all sections of the country.

The Mecklenburg "Declaration of Inpendence," signed by citizens of this county, May 20, 1775, immediately on receipt of news of the fights at Lexington and Concord, was the occasion of the festivities.

A military parade, speeches by former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, Governor Angus McLean, Representative Adam Wyatt of Pennsylvania and Miss Sara Schuyler Butler, daughter of Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, were some of the features.

Tonight a historical drama was presented with 800 persons participating.

smash all records for long hard wear

"They have worn as long as three pairs of other shoes."

"It used to be that I wore out a pair of tennis shoes in a month—but not so with Keds."

"They are absolutely perfect."

These are just three of the many statements that have come in recently from athletes all over the country.

No wonder such astonishing wearing quality has made Keds the standard shoes for sports of every kind. No wonder millions of parents insist on Keds when they buy summer footwear for growing boys and girls.

But be sure to look for the name Keds on the shoe. Every Keds shoe always has the name Keds on it. Avoid substitutes—accept only Keds!

RYE TRADESMEN SEE PARK FIGHT VICTORY

CONTROVERSY IS BITTER

Counsel for Rye Beach Pleasure Park and Paradise Park—both facing Long Island Sound in the village of Rye—appeared before Supreme Court Justice Albert H. F. Seeger in White Plains yesterday and argued a motion to make permanent the temporary injunction issued last week by Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor Jr. restraining the village Board of Trustees from arresting persons who operate their amusement devices on Sunday.

Although Justice Seeger reserved decision, the more than 200 residents of Rye who filled the courtroom—most of them shopkeepers and others who are opposed to the enforcement of the old blue laws because they believe that trade would be injured—saw an indication of victory for the park owners when the Court said it agreed with Arthur I. Stang and Clinton I. Taylor, their counsel, that modes of Sunday entertainment have changed during the last century.

"I can recall a sermon by the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher," said Justice Seeger. "He preached on the subject, 'The Sabbath Is Made for Man and Not Man for the Sabbath.'"

The Court directed that counsel for the amusement park proprietors and former City Judge Wallace of Yonkers, counsel for the Village Trustees, submit briefs within two days.

The fight over the Sunday closing of roller coasters and merry-go-rounds in the amusement parks developed bitterness yesterday. Mr. Stang told the Court that Section 2,145 of the penal law, which is cited by the Trustees in their endeavor to terminate the Sunday activities at the parks, was passed in 1788, before George Washington became President. He said that the parks had been operated on Sundays for the last thirty years, and it was not until the present time that any charge that they were violating the law had been made. Mr. Stang declared that the parks had paid $2,000 in license fees to the village annually for the last eight years. He threatened to institute a suit against the Trustees to collect the back license fees if it were finally determined that the parks had no right to Sunday licenses.

Several years ago, Mr. Stang said, a similar attempt was made to interfere with Sunday activities at Luna Park, Coney Island, but the Appellate Division ruled that it was entirely within the law and should be permitted to operate.

It also was charged by counsel for the amusement parks that one of the reasons for the activities of the Trustees was that the village was in the amusement business itself, having made a net profit of $85,000 last season out of its own bathing beach.

Mr. Stang and Mr. Taylor argued that there had been a change in the attitude of the American public toward Sunday amusement since the passage of the blue laws. If roller coasters and merry-go-rounds were illegal on Sundays, counsel for the parks declared, all Sunday motorists also were breaking the law and should be jailed.

"There is no difference between riding on the road and whirling around in the air, as far as the law applies," Mr. Stang said.

Judge Wallace, for the Trustees, argued that a court of equity had no legal right to say that a penal law should not be enforced by a police chief. If the park owners are arrested, he said that their legal remedy is to prove their innocence at a trial and then sue the Village Trustees for false arrest.

Justice Seegar said he would limit his determination in the case to the question raised by Judge Wallace.

The Trustees were elected on a reform ticket which pledged itself to correct alleged abuses in Rye. They are backed by a Citizens' Committee which, members of the Rye Welfare League assert, represents but a small section of opinion in the village. The storekeepers maintain that the Summer crowds furnish them with a large part of their yearly income.

SISTER IDENTIFIES FRAZIER.

Says Claimant for War Insurance Is Man Reported Dead.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 20 (AP).—Mrs. Estella Raincounter, 18-year-old sister of Arthur Frazier, Sioux Indian World War veteran, today added her identification of Arthur Lopes-Frazier as her brother to that of testimony of other witnesses in the identification case on trial here.

She testified that the man who is suing the Government for disability compensation growing out of his alleged war services recalled to her incidents of his school days.

She declared that she had no doubt that the claimant is her brother, who, the Government contends, was killed in France.

HELD AS $15,000 FORGER.

Window Dresser Is Accused of Swindling Banks.

Alleged to have swindled banks, hotels and stores throughout the country of more than $15,000 by means of worthless checks, Albert LeRoy, 28 years old, who said he was a window dresser, was arrested last night at the Hotel Breslin on a charge of grand larceny and forgery. The complaint was made by R. H. Macy & Co. It alleged that last March LeRoy bought a trunk, paying with a forged check for $53.

According to the police, LeRoy confessed to having lived for some time by cashing forged checks, saying that it was "an easy way" and boasting that he had never failed to get a check cashed.

Building Wreckers' Suit Dismissed.

Martin Conboy, as referee, filed a report in the Supreme Court yesterday dismissing a suit by William Zelenko, President of the Building Wreckers' Union of Greater New York, against the Demolition Contractors' Protective Association, the Jacob Volk Building Material Company and others. The action was brought to enforce an agreement made March 29, 1924, by which the plaintiff union was to supply the demolition contractors with labor.

LEGS BROKEN BY SHOTS AS HE DEFIES ROBBERS

When Angelo Di Tolla of 116 Cherry Street closed his butcher shop last night he decided that, with Summer coming on, it was time to buy a straw hat. He remembered that his friend, Irving Schiller, sold straw hats at his men's furnishing shop at 184 Park Row, near Mulberry Street, and went there.

Di Tolla and Schiller were going over the relative merits of straw versus panams when two young men bustled in. They whipped out pistols and injected into the discussion an order for Di Tolla and Schiller to throw up their hands. Schiller complied.

"What do you mean, throw up my hands? Where do you get that stuff?" said Di Tolla, as he started toward the armed pair.

One robber pointed the gun at him and said: "If you walk another step I'll break both your legs."

Di Tolla kept on and the robber fired twice. Bullets struck Di Tolla in both legs and broke them. He fell.

"Now run, you loafers," the wounded man called.

The robbers, fearing that the police would arrive before they could rifle the till, did run, and jumping in an automobile disappeared without any loot.

Di Tolla was sent to Gouverneur Hospital.

GRANDDAUGHTER HER HEIR.

Mrs. Harold I. Sewall Gets Estate of Mrs. Mary King Van Rensselaer.

The entire estate of Mrs. Mary King Van Rensselaer, author and historian of New York society, who died on May 11 at her home, 70 East Ninety-second Street, goes to her granddaughter, Mrs. Sylvia Grinnell Van Rensselaer Sewall of 564 Park Avenue. The will was filed in the Surrogates' Court yesterday, but the value of the estate was not stated.

In giving her property to her granddaughter Mrs. Van Rensselaer excepted a box of silver, "marked 'J. K. V. R.,' which I bequeath to my son, John Alexander Van Rensselaer, for whom a trust account left by my aunt, Frances Maria Hoyt, makes provision." The son also gets an account in the Union Square Savings Bank in his mother's name as his trustee.

Mrs. Sewall, who is the wife of Harold Ingalls Sewall and the daughter of the late Frederick Harold Van Rensselaer, is named sole executrix. Mrs. Van Rensselaer provided that if her granddaughter died before she did the estate should go to "Jane Wyatt, or her heirs, the daughter of my niece Euphemia Van Rensselaer Wyatt."

TO AID CONVICTED SOLDIERS

Civil Liberties Union Engages Lawyer for Trumbull and Crouch.

Announcement was made yesterday by the American Civil Liberties Union of its intention to attempt to open in the civil courts of Hawaii the case against Privates Walter Trumbull and Paul Crouch, recently sentenced to twenty-six and forty years respectively in a military prison for forming a secret communist society in the army organizations there.

The union has retained John A. Matthewman, former Attorney General of the territory, as counsel for the two soldiers and will appeal to the civil courts on the ground that the military court had no authority to sentence the men to such long terms under the forty-second article of war.

The article, they say, provides that no person shall be sentenced to imprisonment in a Federal or military prison by court-martial unless the offense is punishable by at least one year under the civil laws of the State. The civil code of Hawaii provides for a maximum sentence of three months in cases of this kind, the union contends. Major Gen. William T. Smith has recommended that the sentences be reduced to one and three years respectively.

ICE WORKERS STICK TO JOBS

Strike Scheduled for Manhattan Fails to Take Place.

A strike of stationary engineers employed in ice plants in Manhattan, scheduled for 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, failed to take place, according to officials of the ice companies. President Charles C. Small of the Knickerbocker Ice Company, which operates six plants in Manhattan and thirteen in Brooklyn, said late last night that the regular 4 o'clock shift had gone to work without one regular engineer missing. Similar reports came from the Ice Service Company and other large concerns.

At the office of Local 20 of the Stationary Engineers, 106 East Sixtieth Street, it was said that union leaders were "in conference," and that no information concerning the strike was available.

Last Friday Local 56, in Brooklyn, called a strike which President Small said had resulted in the net loss to his company of two engineers out of thirty-eight. Charges made by union officials that the price of ice was to be raised during the Summer months over previous Summer scales were denied.

'SUICIDE' FOUND IN FLORIDA.

Homeville (Va.) Man, Missing Five Years, Had $5,500 Insurance.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., May 20.—Frank L. Birdsong, 68, former well-to-do merchant and farmer and Postmaster of Homeville, Va., who was supposed to have committed suicide in December, 1920, by drowning himself in a river near his home, has been located near Sarasota, Fla., by Jesse F. West Jr., agent at Waverly for the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia. He started back for Virginia today.

Birdsong was carrying a $1,000 policy in the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York and four policies totaling $4,500 in the Penn Mutual, all the insurance being payable to his estate. When he was declared dead a year later, the New York company settled, but the Penn Mutual, confident that he was still alive, resisted payment, and an order of the court directing it to do so was never enforced.

Lieutenant Schildauer was off an airplane a few seconds ahead of his competitor and reached the earth first, although the victory cost him a severe shaking up.

If you want Sound Teeth

Kill the Germs that cause decay

The mouth that harbors Germs is a danger to every tooth

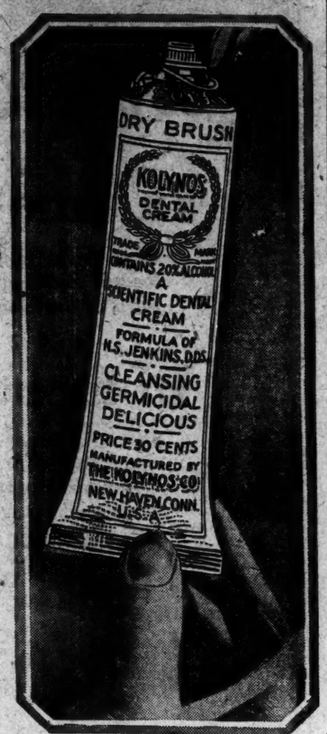
By IRA DAVIS JOEL, B.S., M.S., Department of Bacteriology

YOU brush your teeth faithfully. You brush them carefully. Yet when you visit your dentist you are often surprised at the number of cavities his instruments reveal.

You feel baffled. Others seemingly no more careful than yourself enjoy the blessing of sound teeth. What is the trouble?

The trouble is that your teeth require a certain kind of protection which you are failing to give them—the protection they need is adequate dental care and the daily use of a germ-killing dentifrice.

The protection they need is the germicidal protection of Kolynos Dental Cream. Kolynos not only keeps your teeth white and glistening, but its main properties are highly antiseptic—extremely important properties if you are to have sound teeth, teeth free from dangerous, offensive, and painful cavities.



Your dentist can be of greatest help in preserving your teeth. Next to him is daily brushing with Kolynos

Kills germs—washes them away

Did you ever watch snowflakes collect upon a window-pane? That is the way germs collect upon your teeth. The first few find it hard to cling, but soon they build up rapidly. First Bacilli Acidophili lodge on the enamel. They are tiny, short threads of germs. In your saliva is a sticky substance called mucin. Little flakes of this adhere to the teeth. Thus a close, sticky, web-like film spreads across the enamel, a film of malignant germs that cause decay.

These germs multiply with amazing rapidity. Each produces tiny quantities of harmful acid. The film holds this acid against the teeth while it gradually eats into the enamel.

Kolynos checks this. To begin with, it kills germs. It breaks up the film. It washes away the film, with its multitude of germs. It leaves comparatively few germs in your mouth; hours pass before there are again enough to be dangerous to your teeth. And even then, so thoroughly polished are your teeth that it is very much harder for the germs and the mucin to cling to the glossy enamel surface.

Section of a Molar

A—The sticky, web-like film of germs, mucin and food particles begins to form. B—Acid then begins to eat into the enamel rods and separate them, before it finally destroys the rods themselves. C—Germs swarm in through the break in the enamel and attack the dentine under it. D—When the decay reaches the pulp, which surrounds the nerve, toothache follows

FREE—Enough Kolynos to brush your teeth 22 times, ½ inch to the brushing.

ARMS CONFERENCE NEAR A COLLAPSE

BURTON'S APPEAL HEEDED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, May 20.—A strong speech by Representative Theodore E. Burton of the United States did much to save the arms traffic conference from being wrecked on the rocks of the private manufacture of arms this morning. Whether anything can pilot the conference safely into port with a convention is a question only time can answer. Such an outcome appears, however, to be very doubtful. This morning, after a discussion and disposition of five United States amendments, a Serbian delegate proposed in regard to Article 32 that "the present convention shall come into force on the same date and under the same conditions as the convention on the private manufacture of arms, munitions and implements of war." This was followed by the proposal of a Rumanian delegate that the final act of the convention should contain a resolution by which "the conference for the control of international commerce in arms, munitions and implements of war declare the urgent necessity of publicity for the private manufacture of materials, which it considers as an indispensable part of the publicity of the traffic regulated by the present convention."

The Rumanian delegate at the same time supported the Serbian amendment, which was likewise backed by Greece, Turkey and Brazil. Brazil suggested a change in wording so that the convention would be suspended if at the end of a certain time the convention relating to private manufacture was not drafted and ratified. M. Clauzel of France supported the Serbian amendment as modified by Brazil, as also did China. Czechoslovakia called attention to the declaration of the United States of willingness to publish manufacturing statistics. Lord Onslow of Great Britain declared his country was making a census of private manufacture. Spain, Sweden and Norway asked that the work of the conference be not jeopardized by continuation of the discussion.

Burton Addresses Delegates.

Representative Burton, after sympathizing with the feeling which led to the Serbian amendment and declaring that the Rumanian amendment did not go far enough, declared the conference could not permit a postponement of the conclusion of the work, as postponement too often had been truly the graveyard of the best aspirations of humanity. The Coordination Commission and the Assembly of the League of Nations both decided it was not best to deal with the subject of control of commerce and control of private manufacture at the same time.

"I must run counter to the opinion which is prevalent among peace lovers," he said. "Many people think that the solution of our problem lies in the suppression of the private manufacture of arms. They think there is a great industrial element which prospers on war and encourages it by propaganda. This is fallacy. Private manufacture is flexible. It makes all sorts of arms—for sport, for personal defense, etc. The is fallacy. Private manufacture is flexible before the great war. It has now fallen back to pre-war figures.

"On the other hand Government manufacture is inflexible. It involves the maintenance of a considerable force always engaged in the manufacture of the implements of war. And there is always an element to make the Government forces as large as possible. I ask you if the Government shall build a high structure to encourage martial ambitions and strife while private manufacture shall be prohibited."

The general committee, on the suggestion of Vice President Guerrero, then voted that the declaration concerning the relations between the control of commerce and the private manufacture of arms should be inserted into the final act of convention and that Article XXXI and the amendments should be sent to the Coordination Committee.

The United States Amendment to Article XXVII. eliminating mention of the League of Nations from the provision that that convention should not supersede treaties and agreements which have for their object the control of commerce in arms was sent with the original article to the Legal Commission.

On the suggestion of the United States Article XXVIII., which provides for the publication of the annual report by the League of Nations was deleted. Article XXX. concerning the formalities of ratification was adopted with omission of reference to League members to which the United States objected.

Article XXXI., dealing with the manner of settling disputes, was sent to the Legal Commission. Mr. Burton had asked that the words "or Hague Tribunal" should be added to the provision for referring disputes to the Permanent Court of International Justice.

Miss Abbott Declines Office.

GENEVA, May 20 (AP).—Miss Grace Abbott, director of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor at Washington, today refused the appointment as Vice President of the League of Nations Commission for the Protection of Women and Promotion of Child Welfare which began sessions today to prepare a child welfare program. Miss Abbott said her instructions did not permit her to accept office.

The Chairman of the commission regretted Miss Abbott's decision, saying the work was humanitarian and nonepolitical. He added that in another hall Representative Burton was trying to eliminate all connections between the League of Nations and the convention, which hoped to bring about control in the traffic of arms.

Don Pedro Sangro y Ros de Olano of Spain was elected President of the commission and Eugene Regnault, former French Ambassador to Japan, Vice President. Major Bascom Johnson and Dr. William Snow, both of the New York Social Hygiene Bureau, attended the morning session as experts for the commission.

The Seventh International Labor Conference named three commissions to study workmen's compensation, occupational diseases and social insurance. During an informal discussion of the Washington eight-hour-day, convention suggestions were made that the Ministers of Labor of France, Great Britain, Belgium, Germany and Poland assemble here to arrange for the application of that convention in their countries.

The cat was finally killed. It is believed that the cat may have been bitten by a dog affected with rabies.

RICHMOND DEMOCRATS CHOOSE RENDT LEADER

Hylan Supporter Succeeds McGinley—Opponents May Demand Vail Later.

David S. Rendt, Commissioner of Public Works for the Borough of Richmond, will succeed the late Thomas R. McGinley as leader of the Democratic forces in Richmond. His selection was decided upon at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Richmond County Democratic Committee yesterday afternoon at Democratic county day afternoon at Democratic county county committee will meet tomorrow evening and, it is expected, ratify the choice by unanimous vote.

Mr. Rendt is said to be a stanch a Hylan man as was his predecessor, Tax Commissioner McGinley, who died last week after a long illness. Mr. Rendt owes his new position to the influence of Borough President John A. Lynch, who is a supporter of Mayor Hylan. Lynch, in turn, when first elected to the Borough Presidency to succeed the late Matthew Cahill, by the Aldermen, won that place as a result of the vote cast by Mr. Rendt, then one of the three Aldermen from Staten Island.

The name of Mr. Rendt was the only one proposed at the meeting of the Executive Committee. County Clerk James L. Vail was mentioned some days ago as a possible successor to McGinley. He is known as a warm friend of Governor Smith. There is an anti-Hylan faction in the Democratic organization in Richmond, of which Mr. Vail may become the leader, and which is said to be only biding the opportune time to declare itself openly.

INSISTS LOPEZ IS FRAZIER.

Father Declares Son Thought Killed in War Lives.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 20 (AP).—The Rev. Charles Frazier, father of Arthur Frazier, a Sioux Indian World War veteran reported killed in action in France, told the jury in the Lopez-Frazier identification suit in the Federal Court here late today that the "mystery man" was his son.

For three hours the stalwart old Indian missionary was on the stand and not once during the period did he waver in his belief that the man whom the Government calls Arthur Lopez, a Mexican, is Arthur Frazier, his son.

Members of the Frazier family were on the witness stand all day. The mother, Hannah Frazier, is expected to take the stand tomorrow. With her story, attorneys for Lopez-Frazier have announced they will complete their case. The Government then will open its case.

Beside the father, two sisters and two brothers swore on the witness stand Wednesday that Lopez-Frazier is Arthur Frazier, their brother.

STEARNS'S FOE GUILTY.

Charles E. Kirk of Weehawken, one of the principal witnesses for the State in the trial of ten Weehawken policemen and Police Commissioner Harry J. Stearns for engaging in a bootlegging conspiracy, was convicted of disorderly conduct by Recorder Maher of Weehawken last night for calling Stearns a "souphead and bootlegger" at a meeting of the Township Committee on May 11. Recorder Maher sentenced Kirk to thirty days in the County jail but later suspended the sentence.

Mayor Emil Grauert and the five Township Committeemen testified that Kirk had denounced Stearns during the meeting. Kirk admitted himself that he had done so, but his lawyer attempted to show that his client was guilty of no crime on the ground that Stearns had shown no offense at the words.

Governor Admits Reference to Senate President's Profits.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 20.—Governor Alvan T. Fuller took the stand today in the $50,000 libel and slander suit brought against him by Edwin T. McKnight, former President of the Massachusetts Senate, growing out of Mr. Fuller's campaign for Lieutenant Governor in 1920.

The Governor accepted responsibility for statements attributed to him in an account of a speech printed in The Lynn Item. In this speech he said he would like to expose "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves in the State House" and how many had made more than $100,000 by influencing the votes of legislators.

Mr. Fuller admitted writing several thousand letters in which he had referred to Mr. McKnight as profiting through the latter's chain of banks from State deposits to the extent of $20,000 to $30,000 a bank.

VIENNA, May 20.—Herr Mataja, the Austrian Foreign Minister, speaking today at the assembly of the Christian Socialist Party, emphatically denied reports circulated in various Balkan capitals to the effect that Vienna is the centre of Bolshevist plots. The Minister stated that all clues so far followed up had proved false, showing that the rumors are utterly baseless. He also declared that reports concerning Demarches by various Balkan powers to the Austrian Government in regard to the existence of a Bolshevist propaganda centre in Vienna lack all foundation.

PAGEANT OF JEWELS FOR BRITISH COURT

DEVICE FOR BOBBED HAIR

LONDON, May 20 (AP).—A feeling of expectation prevailed in Mayfair tonight as the time approached for the royal court presentations tomorrow and Friday nights. Twenty-four American maids and matrons will be sponsored by Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton, wife of the American Ambassador, at the two courts. The Buckingham Palace functions are the sole topic of conversation among the debutantes and others of society circles, as all are interested, either directly or through relatives and friends.

This year's court promises to be resplendent in coloring. The official regulations for court gowns do not place restrictions on shades or materials, so that every woman presented is free to indulge her taste in both directions. Now that fashion permits evening dresses to be elaborately decorated, the "gorgeous" type of gown is more in prominence than at any time since 1914.

The pageantry of the State functions will be enhanced, too, by marvelous jewels, for while the debutantes content themselves with simple strings of pearls for ornaments, the matrons invariably wear their most marvelous precious stones. So far as dress is concerned, this week's courts are expected to be the prettiest that have been held in some years.

Mrs. Houghton tomorrow will wear a gown of silver lamé, handsomely embroidered with diamante. The train will be of blue chiffon velvet, lined with silver lamé, with a band of brown fox fur across the bottom. In her hair she will wear a diamond bandeau.

On Friday Mrs. Houghton's gown will be of draped brocade in deep rose and silver, embroidered with rubies and diamonds. The train of velvet will be lined with silver, with a large band of chinchilla across the foot, the train being held at the shoulder by motifs of rubies and diamonds.

Those who will be presented at the court Friday night in the general circle are Miss Jane Hamilton Brady of Gladstone, N. J., granddaughter of the Countess of Limerick; Miss Ursula Corning of Litchfield, Conn., daughter of H. J. Corning, Professor of Medicine in the University of Basle, Switzerland; Mrs. Howell H. Howard of Dayton, Ohio; Miss Irene Jamieson of Spokane, Wash., a student at Oxford; Mrs. Archibald H. Rowan, Irvington-on-the-Hudson; Miss Laura Thompson of Lake Forest, Ill.; Mrs. Alexander Tuck of Maryland and Mrs. Wallace Payne Moats of Mexico City.

There will be plenty of silk stockings on view at tomorrow's court—the first great affair of the London season—despite the dictum of the Chancellor of the Exchequer regarding a tax on silk, and also there will be more shingled heads among the débutantes than the court functionaries have seen approaching the King for many years, as most of the American, as well as the British, débutantes have adopted the bob for convenience and because it is the fashion.

Bobbed hair does not bar the wearers from following regulations regarding veils and feathers, and the three ostrich feathers which, as custom dictates, must be worn slightly to the left side of the head, can be fixed there by a contrivance brought out especially for the occasion, and from which a tulle veil forty-five inches in length will hang.

Despite frequent reports that the court officials are set against short skirts, there are no official regulations respecting the length to be worn, this being left to the discretion and good taste of the feminine mind. Those attending these two courts, however, will, it is reported, wear medium length skirts, as more in keeping with the known wishes of Queen Mary, who dislikes extremes of any kind.

There is a regulation regarding the train, which should not be more than two yards long, or extend over eighteen inches from the wearer's heel when standing. This will do much to keep the skirts fairly long, as it would look absurd to have a very short skirt and a long train. Silver lace, gold lace and lamé, with bright linings of pink, are being utilized largely in the present court dresses.

WIRE 'BOTTLES' SOUND IN GERMAN DEVICE

Invention Is Said to Preserve Radio Music and Speeches for Future Release.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 20.—"Bottled wireless" is described by The Star tonight as a German invention in which British broadcasters are interested and as something which may be so developed that American and British records may be interchanged and kept indefinitely for use at any time.

A long, hard steel wire wound on a spool is used for the record. By means of a motor this wire is passed through a powerful magnetic field. The magnetic field varies in intensity according to the impulses given it through the ordinary radio microphone transmitting sounds to be recorded, whether these be speeches, musical programs or anything else.

In traversing this field, the wire is consequently magnetized permanently in thousands of different shades and thus has the sounds literally "frozen" upon it. Once magnetized, the wire can be reversed and run past a soft iron core that is thereby magnetized, creating a field of magnetism itself. The wire duplicates the fluctuations impressed upon it and gives back through telephone receivers the sounds originally made days and perhaps years before.

The soft iron core can also be placed in a circuit with a radio transmitter and the sounds can be radiated from an aerial just as they were originally in the studio.

The device has been perfected so far as human speech is concerned, but difficulties have been encountered in "bottling" the fine shades of music.

It is suggested that it will be possible to preserve for all time permanent radio records of historic speeches or the voices of great singers.

KLAN TO STAGE RALLY.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., May 20.—Twenty-five thousand Ku Klux Klansmen are expected to visit Port Washington during the next three days to attend a demonstration under the auspices of the local Knights. National officials from Georgia are expected to be among the speakers. Special trains and special buses will bring the members from New York, New Jersey and all parts of Long Island.

A twenty-acre plot known as Cox Field on Mount Pleasant Avenue has been taken over for the demonstration. Workingmen have cleared away the underbrush and twenty-one platforms have been erected. Twenty of these are to be used for coffee and refreshments.

ELECTRIFIED TRAINS TO BABYLON START

SPEECHES AND FIREWORKS

The electrification of the Long Island Railroad from Jamaica to Babylon was celebrated yesterday, when the first through train, a special of fourteen cars, left the Pennsylvania Station at 9:15 o'clock, carrying officials, old commuters and about a thousand guests.

Railroad stations along the route were decorated with flags and bunting. Sirens, bands and cheering crowds greeted the train as it arrived. Five airplanes from Mitchel Field dropped flowers on the train at Freeport and flew over it in V formation to Babylon, where a celebration was staged in the baseball grounds near the newly remodeled station.

Among the old-timers on the train was James Barnum, 87 years old, who lives at Port Washington, L. I. For fifty-seven years he was an engineer, and he ran the first steam train to make the journey to Babylon. It consisted of a locomotive with funnel smokestack and three wooden coaches. Before that one, trains had been run only to Flushing.

Another veteran engineman was George H. Donaldson, 82 years old, the oldest engineer in continuous service on the South Shore Division. He remembers the first train which was operated into Babylon, on July 22, 1868. He is one of the few enginemen still living who ran the locomotives Eppin and The Pgwit in 1867 and 1868, when the line to Babylon was being constructed.

The special guest of honor on the trip was John P. Conselyea of Springfield, Queens, the oldest Long Island commuter, who three years ago won the commuter prize, having commuted for fifty-eight years. William A. Simons of East Rockaway was also on board. He traveled on the first passenger train that ran on the south shore.

When the train arrived at Jamaica 250 representatives of civic organizations met and boarded the special. They had their own band to augment that already on the train.

The first intimation of the elaborate preparations that had been made by officials at the towns along the line to greet the first electric train carrying passengers came at St. Albans. The crowds and enthusiasm of welcome increased as the train stopped for a few minutes at Lynbrook and Rockville Centre, where the school children and citizens were lined up.

Previous to the arrival of the special at Freeport there was a parade of 2,000 persons through the streets to the railroad station. Giant firecrackers announced the arrival. Seventy-five delegates boarded the train there. The bands played. The airplanes swooped low and dropped clusters of lilacs.

There were more than 4,000 persons waiting at Babylon. The train drew in to the babel of fire sirens and the bursting of aerial bombs. For several weeks the town has been preparing for the celebration and was elaborately decorated.

The Long Island Railroad Sunrise Trail Band headed the procession from the station to the baseball field, where a speakers' stand had been erected. Delegations of Boy and Girl Scouts, school children and firemen were in the welcoming parade.

Chester O. Ketcham, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee and a commuter for forty-one years, read an address of welcome, in the place of Emmet F. Newton, Village President, who was out of town. He said the fortunes of Babylon and of every other village along the line were closely knit with those of the Long Island Railroad.

"We believe a closer cooperation between the road and the communities served by it will result in the mutual benefit of both," he declared.

"Good-bye 'Choo-Choos,' " Sung.

P. H. Woodward, General Passenger Agent of the railroad, said:

"Everything comes to those who hustle while they wait. Today marks the realization of many dreams for many years."

The conclusion of Mr. Woodward's speech and those which followed, by E. L. Phillips, President of the Long Island Lighting Company, and Frank Holly, President of the Long Island Association were partly drowned out by the bursting of the day fireworks.

After Mr. Conselyea was introduced to the crowd as the oldest commuter, and Mr. Donaldson as the oldest engineer in continuous service, there was a parade through the town, headed by the Babylon Fire Department.

Babylon now become the terminus of the longest continuous electric line on Long Island, forty miles from the Pennsylvania Station. Two new island platforms will accommodate the passengers transferring from the electric trains to the shuttle trains, operated by steam, which will carry passengers to Montauk Point. Through electric trains, without a stop at Jamaica, start operation between New York, Brooklyn and Babylon today.

Last night a reception was held in honor of the railroad's electrical, mechanical and civil engineers at the Southward Ho Country Club, formerly the James Hazen Hyde estate. Mr. Woodward was the host. Guests included the operating and traffic officials of the Pennsylvania and Long Island Railroads and members of the club.

YEAR IN JAIL FOR CONTEMPT.

Woman Who Refused to Give Up Papers Freed at Last.

Mrs. Margaret Callaghan, 61 years old, of 795 East 156th Street, who, on June 24, 1924, was committed to jail for an indefinite term by Surrogate James A. Foley for contempt of court, was released yesterday.

Mrs. Callaghan was committed when she refused to give up $16,000 of bonds and mortgages owned by the estate of her sister, Mrs. Ellen Connor of 1,230 Fulton Street, Brooklyn. She said her sister gave her the papers, that she intended to keep them and, according to William A. Keating, Sheriff's attorney, the prospect of jail with a doctor and nurse calling every day, with a comfortable bed and with no housework delighted her.

Mr. Keating said Mrs. Callaghan was triumphant because she may keep the papers, but regretted leaving the jail to resume housework. Her release was brought about by her attorney, who feared confinement would injure her health. The bonds she holds, it is said, are worthless.

When the World Was Young —and Since

THE MOST wonderful story ever told is being related week by week. The unattainable is being attained; the unknowable is being known; the hidden is being revealed. In the vast wastes of Africa and Asia, men are digging out of the ground records of life and progress two, three, four thousands of years ago. A man in a little town in Massachusetts watched a furnace door (even as Watt looked at his tea-kettle) and saw it snap from the heat. From this trivial incident he developed a contrivance which will make millions for him and which will contribute greatly to our comfort and convenience. A chemist working with radium seems to have taken a step nearer to the secret of energy. A statesman reveals a way out of some international difficulty which threatens war. A clergyman discusses some almost revolutionary phases of religion.

And so through the length and breadth of the world, pages upon pages of future history are being written. Instead of remaining hidden from all but a few, they are being recorded and placed before nearly a million and a half families through

By HARRY CROSS.

The Giants started to knit a new skein of victories at the Polo Grounds yesterday, hopping on the Cubs by a score of 6 to 1 to get the new string under way. That made it three out of four from Chicago.

Yesterday's game was planted in the glad column because of some highly capable pitching by Zeke Barnes. He had more curves than Columbus Circle. At times Zeke's benders dipped over so coyly that the eyelids of the Cub batsmen quivered in amazement.

Of high value to Barnes's pitching was the joyous accompaniment of George Kelly's bat. Kel whipped a home run into the right-field stand in the first inning with two runners posing heroically on the cushions, and all three breezed across with enough runs to win the game right then and there.

The present invasion of the Western clubs hasn't thus far been a howling success. Cards, Reds and Cubs have all been buffeted around like ice in a cocktail shaker. The invading pitchers are not as far along in their form as the Giants' moundsmen, and that about explains why they have lost so many games. The Giants, if you must know, are playing about as they ordinarily play in late June or early July.

Blake Does Well After First.

John Frederick Blake did some good pitching for the Cubs after Kelly had pried that home run away from him. It wasn't until Blake retired for pinch hitter O'Farrell and Vic Keen came to the mound in the eighth that the Giants got gay again and plastered three more runs to their sufficient supply. Keen didn't live up to his name by a long shot.

The Cubs got more hits than the Giants and, what's more, they played errorless ball and the Giants didn't. The ability to bunch hits where they would do the most good marks the margin of the Giant's superiority. The Cubs actually threatened in the eighth and ninth. In the eighth they had the bases jammed with two down, but even Arnold Statz could not break through Barnes's tosses at such a critical moment.

Southworth opened the first with a single to centre and Young walked. After Terry forced Young, Kelly lashed his jubilant jolt among the right field guests. Adams tossed Lindstrom out at first and Blake disposed of Wilson the same way.

That trio of runs loomed large throughout the game. For six innings Barnes gave the Cubs two hits, one by Griffith in the second and another by Hartnett in the fifth. Hartnett, by the way, confined himself to singles yesterday and gathered three. He was the only Cub who disturbed Barnes very much.

Cubs Score in Seventh.

Chicago's lonesome tally came in the seventh. Heathcote was sent up as a pinch hitter for Ralph Michaels and he was folded up at first, Terry to Barnes. Lindstrom dallied around too long on Statz's grasser and the Cub was safe on the error. He went around to third on Hartnett's single to centre and scored on Griffith's single to right. Hartnett took his life in his hands on the dash for third. He figured unwisely on Young's arm. Ross made a beautiful peg across the landscape and when Gabby arrived at Pier 3, Lindstrom and the ball gave him a flattering reception. Friberg forced Griffith for the final out of that particular effort.

The efforts of the Cubs to coin runs in their part of the eighth were commendable, but not profitable. Grimm and McAuley went out by the airline and O'Farrell, hitting in place of Blake, singled to centre. Adams got a hit when the ball became lost among Kelly's several feet. Heathcote rolled the ball down to first. Terry and Barnes held a convention at first on the play, but Terry fell and so did Barnes. Terry's toss went out of Barnes's reach and Heathcote was not only safe but the bases were crowded. At this point, with opportunity giving Statz the high sign, Arnold shot a mashie shot into Southworth's paws.

Giants in Strong Finish.

Wilson hoisted a sacrifice fly to Statz, and Terry, with his limp, hobbled over with another run. Jackson jarred a double so close to the left-field wall that Griffith couldn't grasp it and Kelly and Lindstrom scored. Snyder hoisted to Statz to end the unwarranted imposition on Chicago's good nature.

The Cubs got two trunners aboard the gangways in the ninth, but what was the use? They couldn't get another run over with a jimmy and a dark lantern.

SISLER IS STOPPED; ATHLETICS WIN, 8-6

ST. LOUIS, May 20 (AP).—After hitting safely in thirty-four consecutive games this season George Sisler, the St. Louis Browns' playing manager, failed to make a safety in today's contest with the Athletics, the Philadelphia team winning the first game of the series, 8 to 6.

It was the first time this year Sisler has been held hitless, the Brown leader having connected safely in all the games played by his team this season, prior to today, the list including the tie game with the Yankees on May 9. Sisler established a modern major league record of forty-one consecutive hitting games in 1922.

Harris and Groves were the pitchers who stopped Sisler today. Ken Williams hit a home run in the fifth inning with the bases filled.

Giants in Strong Finish.

Wilson hoisted a sacrifice fly to Statz, and Terry, with his limp, hobbled over with another run. BABE RUTH TO REJOIN YANKEES ON MAY 28

Babe Ruth will rejoin the faltering Yankees on May 28, it was announced yesterday by officials of the club, but it was doubtful if he would be used in the line-up regularly until some time in June as he still has a great deal of weakness to overcome. Yesterday the Battering Babe took another trip to the Yankee Stadium and went through another session at the plate, with Scout Paul Kritchell serving in the role of pitcher.

Ruth took a more healty cut at the ball than he did on the occasion of his first practice at the Stadium on Tuesday, and he reached the centre field bleachers with sharp drives three or four times. He added a jog around the running track to his program and came in fairly fresh in view of the fact that he has done no running for more than six weeks. He said that his legs bothered him more than anything else after so much idleness.

There were few to cheer the efforts of the Babe on his way back to form, a few small boys and members of the New York University baseball squad being the only others in the park. But the Babe's attention was not concerned with cheers. He went about the practice in a businesslike manner and whenever he caught hold of a ball squarely and sent it flying in the direction where base hits are found he smiled contentedly.

The Babe returned to St. Vincent's Hospital, where he is still considered a patient, and although a little weary he was in a happy frame of mind. It was said at the hospital that he was gaining strength rapidly and that it is only a question of time before he will be strong as ever.

Ruth plans on joining the Yankees when they return from their Western trip. A week or so as a pinch hitter and he should be able to take his regular turn at the bat.

COLGATE DOWNS CLARKSON

Profits by 15 Passes and Scores 15 to 8 Victory.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., May 20.—Colgate had an easy time in defeating the Clarkson Tech nine, 15-8, on the Whitnall field this afternoon. Bucher issued 15 passes in the six innings that he pitched and Colgate turned many of them into runs.

PIRATES LOOT LAST OF ROBINS SERIES

GET 3 RUNS AT START

By M. W. CORUM.

The most charitable way to explain what happened at Ebbets Field yesterday is to say that the Robins were due to have a bad day and had it. By the same token the Pirates put in a most profitable afternoon, acquired a 12 to 3 victory and escaped from the borough across the bridge with an even break in the four-game series.

For those who insist that somebody be made the goat in such distressing circumstances, Old Sol, that universally known and genial old fellow, is hereby declared elected. He chose the particular moment that Clyde Barnhart popped up an easy fly for what ordinarily would have been the third out to throw his rays directly into the eyes of Milton Stock and thereby presented the bustling Buccaneers with a three-run lead in the first inning.

The Robins never recovered from this act of treachery on the part of a native sun and soon thereafter the game degenerated into a Pittsburgh batting practice. The Corsairs crashed out twenty-two base hits off the combined deliveries of Jess Petty, Tiny Osborne, Wilbur Hubbell and Nelson Greene, and had the best time they have had all Spring doing it.

Most of those in this quartet are included in what Uncle Robbie calls "the gang," probably because when one of them appears on the pitching mound the others are pretty sure to follow. They stick together.

Petty Starts the Parade.

Petty, the $30,000 southpaw, led the parade and was no better and no worse than those who followed him. Adversity goes hard with Jess and his morale will not survive many such breaks as that one on Barnhart's pop in the opening stanza.

After Carey and Cuyler had fallen easy prey to his sharp breaking, Moore smashed a double to right and set the stage for Jess's downfall. Barnhart hit under a slow ball and lifted the easiest kind of a fly back of the pitcher's box. Petty walked nonchalantly off the field and left the ball to Stock, and Milton stood right where he was and left it to its fate.

Moore, who had left second with the sound of bat meeting ball, cantered home with the first run while Stock was scrambling after the errant pill. Petty shook his head and returned to the mound, but the jinx had come out of him. Traynor and Wright further shook his composure with resounding base hits, and two more markers followed the initial gift across.

Things were no better in the second. Smith singled, Carey tripled and Cuyler doubled to make an end of Petty. Osborne came along in time to be charged with Barnhart's second single, and the net result was three more Pittsburgh runs.

The rest of the alleged contest was simply tiresome repetition. The Pirates turned the base paths into a running track and 5,000 fans into a jeering group of pessimists.

Easy Victory for Kremer.

Intrenched behind a practically unlimited supply of runs, Remy Kremer, the Gallic right-hander, breezed along to the easiest imaginable victory. Kremer is a sick man and is reported to have lost twenty pounds on the present trip of the Pittsburgh team. That is just one more illustration of how any the Robbies were yesterday. They can stage big rallies, but not miracles.

They have won eight games out of twelve from the so-called Western clubs, however, and in view of that record are entitled to an off-day so long as it does not develop into a habit.

If the Pirates were right provident they might have saved a dozen base hits and half as many runs to use against the Giants today. They could probably use them to advantage.

Saturday's game in Brooklyn will be started at 2:30 o'clock instead of 3, in order to enable the Chicago Cubs to make a train.

Barnhart did not hit safely once in his twenty-first straight game. He hit safely four times. So did Traynor, and each of them made a double.

HIGHTSTOWN, N. J., May 20.—Peddie today defeated the Trenton State Normal baseball team by a 6 to 2 score in a game featured by the hitting of Bingham.

Pickups and Putouts

That depressing losing streak of one which threatened to haunt the Giants is gone and, what's more, forgotten.

Jack Bentley was to have pitched yesterday, but his back is entertaining lumbago for a short visit. He may go against the Pirates today. Then, again, it might be Jack Scott.

Kelly has made six home runs this season and is still only practicing.

This Pete McLaughlin, the umpire, is the nearest approach to a semaphore that has ever appeared at the Polo Grounds. He could stop a through train in the dark.

When it takes the Giants more than an hour and a half to beat an opponent they figure that they are working overtime.

The Pirates, last of the invaders, are here today. Yde or Meadows will act as shock absorber.

It seems to be a secret in the National League no longer that the club which beats the Giants will win the pennant.

Robinson May Be Next President of Robins; Wheat Likely to Succeed Him as Manager

Wilbert Robinson may be the next President of the Brooklyn baseball team. While no one is in a position to make an official announcement to this effect, and none can be made until the Ebbets and McKeever interests meet, probably some time next week, that seems the most likely solution of the problem caused by the deaths of Charles H. Ebbets and Ed McKeever, Mr. Ebbet's logical successor.

When Uncle Robbie was approached concerning the matter yesterday, he pointed out that he could not very well discuss the situation until the office had been tendered him. However, it is known that there is much sentiment in favor of his selection and that he is on friendly terms with both the Ebbets heirs and Steve McKeever, who now control 50 per cent. of the Brooklyn stock.

Whether Robbie would continue in his present capacity as manager of the team if tendered the Presidency is problematical. It was rumored that Zack Wheat, veteran outfielder and captain of the Robins for many years, might succeed Robbie as manager. In that case the latter would likely act in an advisory capacity much the same as Clark Griffith does in Washington.

Johnh McGraw is one of the few men who has ever successfully administered the executive affairs of a major league team and at the same time directed it on the field, and even he is not President but Vice President of the Giants. Branch Rickey tried it in St. Louis and failed, as did Fred Mitchell in Chicago when William Wrigley first bought the Cubs.

DETROIT, May 20.—The Tigers won their second consecutive ball game here today, defeating the Washington Senators, 7 to 3. Cobb, first man up, started a Detroit rally in the eighth, hitting a triple off Ruether's delivery. Ruether was removed in favor of Russell, but three hits, a wild pitch and a base on balls gave the Tigers three runs off the new pitcher in addition to the one off Ruether.

TROON, Scotland, May 20.—Miss Glenna Collett of the United States was defeated today by Miss Joyce Wethered in the British women's golf championship by 4 and 3 in a match which, because of its international character and the deserved reputation of the two players, aroused more excitement than any golf contest in Scotland in many years. The Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes flew from the club flagstaff, and 5,000 enthusiasts of all degrees, high and low, watched the fortunes of the match. Their keenness in securing vantage points kept the stewards busy and at times it was difficult to keep the crowd under control.

There again were many Americans present to support Miss Collett with their good wishes, and if they were disappointed over her defeat they saw her put up a heroic battle for victory against an opponent whose almost machine-like precision was too much for her. It is certain that Miss Wethered never played better than she did today, and the claim made for her as the greatest woman player in the world would seem indisputable. She has a temperament that left her unperturbed over all the little incidents that happened today, whereas Miss Collett occasionally showed herself a human being with human frailties and failibilities.

Miss Collett made herself extremely popular here and it is agreed that America should rightly be proud of her. She drove as straight and as far as Miss Wethered except for two foozled tee shots, each of which cost her a hole, and she was her opponent's equal in the long iron game at very hole except two in which she went into bunkers and lost both.

Strong Over First Nine Holes.

Going out she was better on the greens than Miss Wethered but coming home this advantage disappeared. She kept the Stars and Stripes fluttering bravely for the first nine holes—in fact she was up at the third, where she got a 3 after the first two holes had been halved in 4s—but she weakened when turning for home. The American ran down a four-yard putt at the second and negotiated a half stymie with the bargain. The fourth was halved in 5s. Then Miss Wethered won the short fifth in 3 to square the match.

Miss Collett topped her drive at the long sixth and although she made a fine recovery she found herself down, as Miss Wethered had a 5 to her 6. The seventh was halved in 4s. The eighth provided excitement as both were on the green from tee shots but Miss Wethered fell from grace for a moment and took three putts and lost the hole, 3 to 4. The match was all square then but Miss Collett threw away her opportunity by smothering her drive from the ninth. Again she recovered, but Miss Wethered was not admitting recoveries, and she won the hole in 4.

Miss Wethered's total for the first nine was 37 against her opponent's 38. Starting home, Miss Collett first showed signs of collapsing beneath the ruthless golf of the English champion. She cut her drive at the tenth into the rough and lost the hole before she got out of it. At the eleventh she found a bunker and became 3 down, Miss Wethered calmly holing out in 3, with a locomotive snorting on the railroad right behind her. The twelfth and thirteenth were halved in 4's and a fine 3 at the fourteenth made Miss Wethered dormie 4 after Miss Collett had missed a tiny putt.

The fifteenth saw the end. Both were on the green in 3 and they halved the hole in 5's.

Miss Wethered followed up her morning victory by defeating Miss Doris Chambers in the afternoon by 5 and 4, and the final experts believe, will be between Miss Wethered and Miss Cecil Leitch, who also accounted for two victims. The Canadian, Mrs. Allen, was defeated in the third round by Mrs. Lionel Jackson, 1 up.

Critics Laud Both Players.

Critics today laud the playing of Miss Wethered and Miss Collett. All are agreed that no one in the world could have extended the British champion as the American star did. It was evident from the very start, they said, that the girl from the United States was out to win the match. She had rested the night before, having left the links for her hotel immediately after winning her opening match, and had retired early. She arms in fine stroke today, playing with the craft of a master and the skill of a veteran. Had she faced any one but Miss Wethered she would have won by an overwhelming score, but she was against the British champion in an inspired moment and there was no turning of defeat into victory.

Miss Wethered played better golf than ever has been credited to her. She was always straight down the fairways—no traps even tempted her and not even once was she in the rough. Her long play was astounding, but a slight nervousness was discernible on some of the greens. The weather, with its typical Scotch mist, did not seem to disturb her, neither did it Miss Collett, and the two sternly faced their task with no outside influence disturbing them.

At times the crowd bothered both, and if either was more sinned against in this respect than the other it was the American star, because for the most part the crowd seemed more anxious to scrutinize her ability on the putting greens than the champion's. But the crowd was not what defeated the American; it was Miss Wethered at top form that made the score what it was, and it is greatly to the credit of the gallant American player that it was not worse, because she alone in all the world, one critic said, could have held Miss Wethered to so close a score today.

MRS. HURD IN SEMI-FINAL.

Mrs. Barlow Also Wins in Philadelphia Title Golf Play.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20 (AP).—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, national champion; Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, Mrs. Raymond Slotter and Miss Catherine Hutchinson, Woodbury, N. J., today advanced to the semi-final round in the tournament for the women's golf championship of the Philadelphia district.

Mrs. Hurd defeated Mrs. Sidney Martin, 1 up in nineteen holes; Mrs. Barlow beat Miss Ruth Anne Ferry, 1 up; Mrs. Slotter defeated Miss Sarah Meehan, 1 up, and Miss Hutchinson eliminated Miss Helen Meehan, 5 and 3.

'Joyce Played Unbeatable Golf,' Miss Collett Cables Her Father

TROON, Scotland, May 20 (AP).—After her match today Miss Collett praised Miss Wethered and depreciated her own efforts, declaring she had never before missed two drives in an important match and topped a mashie shot quite so badly as she topped her approach to the tenth.

"I don't think I can beat Miss Wethered," she said, "but the next time she won't beat me as badly as she did today." After congratulating Miss Wethered, Miss Collett walked over to where the champion's father and mother stood and congratulated them upon their daughter's victory. As soon as she reached her hotel she sent her father a message telling him she could not have won because "Joyce played unbeatable golf." Miss Collett will remain here until the British championship is decided, then going to London. On Tuesday she will go to Paris to practice for the French championship.

BOMANN CAPTURES THE PRESBREY CUP

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., May 20.—Possession of one of the best competitive tournaments to be found anywhere among golfers stood Donald Bomann of Tome School in good stead at Apawamis today. His place in the semi-final and final round of the annual interscholastic golf championship, obtained only because of a twenty-one hole victory over J. B. Stevens of Lawrenceville yesterday, performed what might be termed a double miracle today and won the unique Presbrey Cup. In the semi-final round Bomann eliminated Eugene Homans, the New Jersey junior champion and medalist in the present tournament, by 2 and 1 and in the final he defeated Philip Finlay of Exeter by 5 and 4.

It was Bomann's second victory in the interscholastic event, for he captured the title in 1923. The victory also continued Tome's list of successes in the tourney, the Port Deposit, Md., schoolboys winning the team championship last year.

Against Finlay, who shot a 72 in his morning round to turn back Rodney Collart of Brown Prep by the scant margin of one hole, Bomann had comparatively easy time for the Exeter linksman gave him little opposition. With his 36 for the first nine holes in spite of a 7 at the last of them, he was breezing along comfortably with a four-hole lead and after losing the tenth, 4 to 5, he won two out of the next three and clinched the match on the fourteenth green. Finlay was far inferior to Bomann in the short game and made several costly mistakes which helped Bomann.

The cards:

Out—
Bomann	4	4	4	4	3	3	4	3	7—36
Finlay	4	5	5	3	5	5	6	3	8—42
In—
Bomann	5	4	4	4	4

Homans's Wildness Costly.

Homans's unsteadiness at the start was what cost the Choate star his match in the semi-final round. His wildness cost him the first and third holes and he was 3 down to Bomann at the end of so many holes. The latter held that margin to the turn, out in 36 against Homans's 39. Bomann then added the eleventh hole to his string, winning it with a birdie 3 to become 4 up. At this stage Homans began a sensational rally. The twelfth was halved in birdie 2s, Bomann sinking a twelve-footer and Homans dropped one two feet shorter. The next two holes went to Homans, who was thus only 2 down with four holes left to play. But they were all halved and Bomann was thus the winner. Homans came back in 85.

The cards:

Out—
Bomann	4	4	4	4	3	4	3	6	—36
Homans	5	5	5	4	3	4	5	3	5—39
In—
Bomann	4	3	2	4	6	4	4	5	4—36—72
Homans	4	4	2	3	5	4	4	5	4—35—74

G. Cashman of Hempstead High won the second division, defeating Al Brodbeck of Mount Vernon, 1 up in 21 holes, and Henry A. Kugeler of Tome was the third sixteen winner, beating Levins of George Washington High, 3 and 1.

JERSEY'S GOLFERS TAKE TEAM HONORS

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.
Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., May 20.—New Jersey linksmen proved mighty poor hosts to the Westchester and Long Island golfers who were their guests at the Morris County Golf Club today. After cajoling them into venturing across the tempestuous Hudson, the New Jerseymen set upon them with brassies and niblicks in the annual triangular district team match and soon had their guileless guests scurrying in every direction.

When the toll was taken it was found that New Jersey had won a tremendous victory, the point total of the team being 31, against 24 for Westchester and 23 for Long Island. In their haste to escape, the Westchester forces left behind them the trophy which they had won the year previous.

Foursomes were played in the morning and singles in the afternoon and it was the vast superiority of the New Jersey players in the finesse of the old Scotch-foursome play that brought them their victory. At noon, New Jersey had won as many point as Westchester and Long Island put together, the score being: New Jersey, 14; Westchester, 8; Long Island, 6. The points were pretty evenly distributed in the singles, New Jersey and Long Island winning 17 each and Westchester 16.

What really decided matters in New Jersey's favor was the inability of the Long Islanders to play the "I've hit it, now you hit it" style of game, especially against the home forces. Of the nine and one-half twosomes that Captain Gardiner White put into the field, only one pair, C. E. Van Vleck and Hamilton Kerr, succeeded in winning its match. The count, therefore, was 8 to 1, and those eight points turned the trick nicely for the New Jersey team, which now shares two legs on the trophy with Westchester.

Sweetser Humbled Twice.

There was some great leveling during the day and among the leveled was Jess Sweetser, national amateur champion in 1923, who almost repeated in 1924. Sweetser was humbled twice in the same afternoon, W. M. Reekie, the metropolitan amateur champion and No. 1 player on the New Jersey team, beating him, 3 and 1, and E. H. (Eddie) Driggs, former New York State amateur champion and runner-up for the district title last year, taking his measure by 3 and 2. The singles matches were played in threesomes, and so it was possible for Sweetser to lose both ways, although before the match started it was hardly considered probable that he would.

Driggs avenged his defeat at the hands of Reekie at Lido last year, only to have the result recalled. At the end of the eighteen holes he and Reekie were all level and started out to battle extra holes. Reekie topped a shot and Driggs won the extra hole with a 4, but when he returned to the board he was informed that it was contrary to custom to play off ties. So it was love's labor lost for the ex-Princeton south-foot puntor.

Two young college golfers played no inconsequential part in the victory of the New Jersey team. They were W. H. Taft, who is captain of the Dartmouth team, and Charles L. Peirson, one of Harvard's mainstays this year. Individually in the singles and collectively in the foursomes these two young men accounted for six of New Jersey's 31 points.

In the singles Taft defeated Howard W. Maxwell Jr., former Long Island amateur champion, and George T. Lawyer, who was runner-up in the army championship last Summer, while Peirson disposed of Ellis Knowles and John N. Stearns, one of Long Island's redoubtables. Together they disposed of Lawyer and Knowles of Westchester and Harry Payne Bingham, the present Long Island champion, and A. W. Flagg.

Other Young Players Win.

Another youngster who showed to advantage was W. Neal Fulkerson of Belleclaire, who won both his singles matches. Richard A. Jones Jr. of Westchester Hills, the metropolitan junior champion, did well to hold E. M. Wild, the New Jersey State runner-up, as well as he did, and to defeat Van Vleck, recent winner in the Garden City invitation tourney.

The certainty of New Jersey's victory was well established after the foursome matches, but the fight between Westchester and Long Island for second place was not decided until the last threesome came off the home green. The principals concerned were Peirson, Knowles and Stearns.

Before this trio reported, Westchester and Long Island were deadlocked for second place with 23 points each. For them everything depended on how Knowles and Stearns were making out. The latter was 1 down coming to the last green, and the Westchester golfer won the hole and clinched second place for his team.

In the foursomes Sweetser and his partner, John G. Anderson, holder of the French amateur title, kept a five-year record unblemished by winning from Driggs and White of Long Island and Dr. H. V. Garrity and R. C. James of New Jersey. During this period the Sweetser - Anderson combination has played countless matches of this sort and has yet to taste defeat. In spite of 4s at the short hole today, they had a 74.

In the singles pitted against Kammer and H. C. C. Tippett, Anderson staged a great rally to break even in points. With five holes to play, he was 3 down to each of his opponents, and after losing another hole the situation was even more desperate. But he managed to pull out with a one-hole victory over Tippett, and only a 2 and 1 hole loss to Kammer. To beat the Long Islander he had a birdie 3 on the home hole.

Why Sweetser Lost.

Sweetser's double downfall was due to his attempt to do something that golfers have tried to do for years without success—that is, to play certain shots from memory. And just as others have failed, so did the former champion.

Time and again, perhaps a trifle perturbed by the way the Morris County course is laid out, with many trick-shot greens, Jess's head bobbed up to see the result before the execution was completed. Sometimes he hit the ball, sometimes he didn't. During the last few holes of the match he "fluffed" more shots than he is ordinarily guilty of during a whole season.

Since this was the match of the giants, it is worthy of a word of comment. Rounding the turn, Sweetser, out in par figures, was 1 up on both his men, while Reekie was 2 up on Driggs. Then things began to happen to Sweetser, and the last nine holes cost him 43 strokes against a 35 par. His error-making started at the tenth and persisted until the fifteenth. During the final nine Driggs played the most consistent golf, with a 38 in spite of a bad start and finish.

ABE ESPINOSA LEADS IN COAST OPEN TRIAL

Tops Field of 40 With a 72 as Qualifying Round Starts in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20 (AP).—The opening of the Pacific Coast qualifying round of the national open golf championship drew two-score players and a big gallery to the San Francisco Golf and Country Club today and witnessed some sparkling play on the part of Abe Espinosa, San Francisco professional, leader of the field, and several other entries.

Espinosa negotiated the course in 72, one above par, going out in 36 and coming back with the same figure. He was only two strokes ahead of Joe Novak, Berkeley star, who turned the course in 37—37. Par for the course is 36—35. Frank Minch, San Francisco, also shot a 74.

William Hunter of Los Angeles, former British amateur champion, shot 37, 38—75. Austrians and Hungarians Now May Play Tennis in England—Davis Cup Dates Set

LONDON, May 20 (AP).—The British Lawn Tennis Association has decided that Austrian and Hungarian nationals again are eligible to compete in open tournaments here. This is the first ruling since the war allowing representatives of former enemy countries to play tennis in Great Britain.

PARIS, May 20 (AP).—The first round of the elimination play in the European zone for the Davis Cup, world's premier lawn tennis team trophy, was completed with Austria's defeat yesterday of the Irish team at Vienna.

The eight remaining teams are paired for the second round as follows: Upper half—Holland vs. Sweden, India vs. Austria. Lower half—France vs. Italy, Denmark vs. England.

Some of the teams have considerable distances to travel for the second round matches and require time in which to familiarize themselves with the courts and playing conditions. The team finally emerging victor in the European zone must play the winner of the American zone eliminations to decide which shall have the honor of challenging the United States, the cup holder.

C. C. N. Y. NINE LOSES TO CATHOLIC U., 5-4

Gains Early Lead but Rivals Take Game With Run in 7th and Two in Eighth.

The C. C. N. Y. baseball team was defeated by Catholic University in Lewisohn Stadium yesterday, 5 to 4. Josephson, C. C. N. Y.'s star right-hander, contributed a brilliant pitching exhibition, but eight errors were made by the men behind him. Josephson let the visitors down with only six hits, striking out six and passing only one.

C. C. N. Y. got off to a 2—1 lead in the opening frame, but Catholic U. tied it up in the third and there matters rested until the seventh. Then the Red team scored a run and followed it with two in the eighth. The Lavender fought back hard, scoring once in the eighth. In the ninth Jacobson walked and Josephson hit a Texas Leaguer. After Plaut had forced Jacobson at third Reiser drew a walk and the bases were full. Raskin flied out to right. The return throw to second found Plaut off the bag and he was forced to try for third, Josephson leaving that base for the plate. By a piece of pretty base running Josephson got home and Plaut was safe at third. With the tying and winning runs on the paths Morasco grounded to second for the last out.

Clarke was very effective on the mound for Catholic U. His speed found nine strikeout victims, but he allowed eight hits. Plaut starred for City College with two hits and a "circus" catch to his credit. Doyle, the visiting centre fielder, also made a nice catch.

Pratt Drives Secor to Cover, but Falls to Hold Two-Run Lead.

The Pratt Institute baseball team went into a two-run lead over the Manhattan College nine yesterday afternoon at the Pratt Field in Brooklyn, but could not hold its margin, Manhattan winning by a 3-to-2 score. The first Manhattan pitcher, Secor, was touched for six hits in his two innings on the mound, during which the two Pratt runs crossed the plate. Thereafter the Brooklyn players were held hitless and scoreless for the remaining seven innings by Casey, the relief pitcher.

PIQUE AGAIN WINS FOR JAMES BUTLER

JOCKEY IS INJURED IN FALL

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

When Pique drove past the winning post at the Jamaica race course yesterday afternoon to outgame Cartoonist by a head, the chestnut son of Spur and Miss Puzzle gained the eleventh victory that has been scored by the colors of James Butler at the meeting of the Metropolitan Jockey Club. The event was the Hamilton Handicap and Pique defeated eight others of three years and older, running the mile and seventy yards in 1:43 3-5 under the stiff impost of 118 pounds. The three-year-old handled his weight in fine fashion and led his field from barrier to wire. He was held at 6 to 1 in the wagering.

What might have proved a most serious accident occurred in the running of the fifth race at a mile and seventy yards, in which were sixteen starters, too large a field for the short run and the sharp turn. In the scramble at the paddock turn three horses went down with their jockeys. Hudgins and Catrone escaped with only a shaking up, while George Cooper suffered a broken collarbone. Cooper was badly injured in a similar accident at Empire City last July and was laid up in a hospital for many weeks.

Another delightful racing day brought out a good-sized crowd. All but one of the six events on the card developed exciting finishes, the more welcome since three favorites came in first.

All but one of the eleven named for the Hamilton Handicap accepted. Included in the lot were Brainstorm and Hephaistos, which fought out many a bitter battle on the metropolitan tracks last season. Brainstorm was a contender and second choice, while the other was a hopeless last all the way.

Race a Stirring Duel.

The race was a duel all through between Pique and H. C. Fisher's Cartoonist. The latter had the post position on the rail, but Coltlietti beat the barrier with the Butler colt, took the rail and carried Cartoonist wide around the paddock turn. All the way down the backstretch and around the turn Pique made the pace, and while Cartoonist was lapped on the three-year-old at all times, Laverne Fator's best efforts could not improve his position.

The pair made a stirring spectacle all through the run down the homestretch, Cartoonist reducing the half-length lead an inch at a time. At one point it seemed that he would gain the decision, but at the very end Pique outgamed the five-year-old gelding to which he was conceding four pounds and won by the length of his head.

F. Houseman's four-year-old filly Lockerbie, 1 nunder 100 pounds, came from well back in the field, closing with a rush and taking third money by finishing a length and a half back. Brainstorm, which was close to the leaders for six furlongs, dropped back in the stretch to come in a poor fourth. Cartoonist was the 11-to-5 favorite, backed from 3 to 1, with Brainstorm second choice at 3 to 1. Lockerbie was at 20-to-1 shot.

Twenty-eight had been named overnight in the fifth race in which the accident happened and the field of sixteen that went proved too large. Soon after the field got well under way the lot bunched up and hardly had the leaders swung for their turn than the tangle took place in which Dorothy R. Sims, Cooper up; Demijohn, Hudgins up, and Valor, Catrone up, went down in a dust cloud. Hudgins and Catrone were soon on their feet and were helped to the outside of the track. Cooper was assisted to the infield and later to the emergency room when an examination showed that it would not be necessary to send him to a hospital.

Fausto Wins by a Length.

Meantime W. C. Nolan's Fausto, whose early speed enabled him to get well to the front, followed the pace set by George Peterson's Flora Star to the middle of the last turn, where he took the lead and was ridden out to win by a length from the Flamingo Farm's Four Sport, which led Flora Star by half a length. The winner was the 4-to-1 favorite.

The secondary feature of the afternoon card was the Stuyvesant Purse, a dash of six furlongs for the three-year-olds, which Earl Sande annexed with E. Plath's Danby by virtue of a superior ride which received its customary recognition. Danby, after being away in a good position, was rated back of the set by Robert L. Gerry's Emissary, with Coltlietti up. At the head of the stretch Sande challenged on the outside, raced into the lead, but had to ride it out to gain the verdict by a length.

The five-furlong dash for maiden two-year-olds brought ten to the post, only one of which had ever carried colors. The Shoshone Stable ran first and third with Prompey and Hot Time, respectively, the pair being split by H. W. Sage's Applecross. The race was run in the fast time of 0:58 4-5, only a fifth of a second slower that the track record for the distance.

FUTURITY CHANGED TO SEVEN FURLONGS

Classic Also Will Be Run Over New Course at Belmont Park Next Year.

The Futurity of 1926 will be run over an entirely new course. This and other interesting announcements were made yesterday afternoon by Joseph E. Widener, President of the Westchester Racing Association, at a luncheon to the members of the New York Turf Writers' Association given at Belmont Park on the eve of the opening of the beautiful and vastly improved plant, which will begin its Spring meeting tomorrow afternoon.

The Futurity next year for the first time will be run at seven furlongs. The Westchester Racing Association has acquired ten acres of additional land and steam shovels arrived yesterday to begin the construction of the new Futurity course. This course will start far beyond the present mile training track, which it will cross. It will cut the main race course, will run diagonally across the infield and steeplechase course, with the finish near the eighth pole on the homestretch.

When the new Futurity course is completed the old straightaway course will be abandoned and closed up, additional stabling will be built near the new sixty-box stable just completed and landscape gardening will transform the whole vista. Horses racing on the new Futurity course will be in full view of all spectators, coming down the straightaway head on.

Mr. Widener took his guests into his confidence and explained that it is the intention of the association to make Belmont Park the most beautiful race course in the world. Thousands of visitors to the course for the meeting this Spring will insist that that goal already has been reached. There has been a marvelous transformation since last Autumn's meeting, since which time more than $300,000 has been expended in improvements. During the last four years about a million and a half dollars have been invested in the magnificent plant.

Plan Still Other Changes.

Details of the improvements that will be enjoyed by the visitors to the track already have been announced. But many more are in the minds of the directors of the Westchester Association under President Widener's guidance. The old clubhouse beyond the grandstand, which long has remained in desuetude, will be transformed into a clubhouse and restaurant for visiting owners, while the basement will be utilized for schools and recreation rooms for jockeys and stable employes.

At present there are 1,300 boxes in the extensive stabling accommodations. Next year there will be 1,500 and Mr. Widener promises that eventually no horsemen will ever be turned away for lack of stable room for his horses, despite the fact that Belmont Park is bearing the burden imposed by lack of accommodations at other courses.

The clubhouse enclosure and that of the Turf and Field Club are to be extended some ten feet nearer the track, through the elimination of the present weighing room beneath the stewards' stand. All weighing will be done on one scale in the new administration building, the most beautiful and complete structure of its kind in the world. In general only four horses will be weighed in, this being designed to save time in announcing results. When there is doubt regarding any phase of a race all horses will be weighed in on order of the stewards.

Seek to Please Public.

In brief, visitors tomorrow will be most struck with the administration building, the new road through the stables, the complete transformation of the extensive space below the enclosure section, which more resembles the lobby of a modern hotel than a lounging room at a public race course; the extensive improvements for the accommodation of the general public, the landscape gardening and the many little refinements that make it incomparable.

Mr. Widener stated that he and his associates believe that the public will appreciate to the fullest extent all that has been done for them. Racing wants friends, and he believes that "the new Belmont Park will make new friends for the greatest sport in the world."

The whole racing course has been screened within the last few weeks. The orders were given for a race course that will make for safety and not for speed. Never has there been a deeper cushion on the track and never has it been safer.

Post and Paddock

Little George Cooper is the hard-luck jockey hereabout. Everybody at the Jamaica course yesterday afternoon was thankful that he escaped the smashing which laid him low last Summer at Yonkers.

It would be an excellent idea if a rule were passed limiting the size of the fields in these races on mile tracks. With a short run and a sharp turn such contests are a constant menace to horses and jockeys.

A change in one rule is deemed imperative in the claiming race rule. As the rule stands it is an invitation for the halter men who race all over the country to grab everything in sight from the New York tracks.

Horsemen hereabout favor adoption of the Kentucky rule under which it is possible for only those with horses in a race to make a claim.

Pricemaker will have to show more than he did in his début to justify the many good things that had been predicted for him.

The halter brigade was on the job. W. J. Both claimed Alex Woodliffe out of the third race from P. H. Sims for $2,500 and J. W. Bean lost his two-year-old Nat Evens out of the first to Abe Hallow for $3,500.

Through the victories of Sting, Pique and others in the Butler Stable, Spur is gaining prestige as a sire.

HOPPE WINS TWICE IN CANNEFAX MATCH

Follows 50-38 3-Cushion Victory With Brilliant 50-16 Triumph—Leads 300 to 219.

Willie Hoppe does not have to worry about regaining his world's 18.2 balkline championship, not if he can continue to play the sort of three-cushions that he showed last night in his 600-point exhibition match against Robert L. Cannefax, the world's three-cushion champion. Giving perhaps his most brilliant exhibition of the season, Hoppe defeated Cannefax in the night block at the Strand Academy by the score of 50 to 16, making his total in the remarkably few innings of 30.

In the afternoon Hoppe had previously won the fifth block at 50 to 38 in fifty-eight innings, and he now leads at the end of the sixth block, 300 to 219. The total number of innings to date is 338.

In the afternoon block Hoppe's high run was 5, Cannefax's was 3. The three-cushion champion never got started in the fifth block, though he had plenty of opportunity to do so. In the evening block he again failed to hit his stride and Hoppe swept through the game.

The former balkline king played beautiful billiards, judging his angles to a nicety and counting with sound, fluent stroking. Three times he stepped to the table and made a run of 6 and there was hardly an inning in which he did not add at least one carom to his total. Cannefax gave his poorest exhibition of the six blocks. His best run of the night was 2. The seventh and eighth blocks will be played today.

ARMY BOWS TO HOLY CROSS.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., May 20.—Holy Cross took the Army's measure today for the Cadets' eighth straight setback, 5 to 2. Tully had two bad innings. In the second the visitors batted around. Savage's triple, McIntee's double and singles by Morrissey and Walsh got three runs on. Tully forced in one run, passing Gantreau.

The Army's two came when Scheppa doubled in the sixth and Cobb followed with a homer. More wildness on the part of Tully and errors by Scheppa and Baird let in two Holy Cross runs in the seventh. Two fast double plays by the Army infield were features. The game was called by agreement at the end of the eighth.

ABELS IS BEATEN ON HOBOKEN COURT

Walter Abels of the Harlem Tennis Club followed Jack Wright out of the Castle Point tournament of the Hoboken Tennis Club yesterday. The conqueror of the Canadian Davis Cup star met more than his match in Ludlow Vandeventer of Plainfield and was eliminated in the fourth round at 6—3, 6—0. Vandeventer was in no wise disturbed by the fine performance of his opponent on the day before and went out to win in decisive fashion, keeping Abels on the defensive and winning as he pleased in the second set.

This victory put the Plainfield player in the round before the semi-finals, in which he is bracketed with Horace Orser, national interscholastic champion. The other brackets in this round are occupied by Willard Crocker, Armand Bruneau, Kenneth D. Fisher, Ernest Kuhn, Edward C. Oelsner and Allan Behr. They will meet in the order named. The semi-finals will be played on Saturday and the final on Sunday. The match between Abels and Vandeventer was the only one contested in singles, the courts being given over to the doubles, in which twenty-four teams are entered. The seeded teams are Crocker and Wright, the Canadian combination; L. Gwynne French and J. Henry Steinkampf, Irving Weinstein and Gregory Mangin and Leonard W. Knox and Carl N. Jolliffe.

Several teams which are looked upon as strong as some of those that are seeded were put out in their first match. These included Anton F. Von Bernuth and Percy L. Kynaston, Allan Behr and Kenneth Fisher and Edward C. Oelsner and Harry Wolf. Von Bernuth and Kynaston were defeated by Wright and Crocker in one of the best played matches of the afternoon. The two teams were well matched and during the first set the play was unusually sharp and close. Wright and Crocker finally won the set at 7—5 and continued on to win the second at 6—3. Wright redeemed himself for his defeat in the singles on Tuesday, playing brilliantly at the net and making many difficule recoveries. Crocker played in strong fashion and the individual brilliance of the two players, combined with their good teamwork, enabled them to dispose of Von Bernuth and Kynaston.

The defeat of Behr and Fisher was much more of a surprise. Ralph DeMott and S. V. Brubans came through to an unexpected victory over them after dropping the first set at love. Behr and Fisher had victory within their grasp in the second set, but their failure to come through with points at important stages when they were within two strokes of victory cost them the match. They lost the second set at 8—6 and fell off considerably in the final set, which went at 6—3. Both of these matches were in the first round.

The summaries:

Doubles—First Round—Horace Orser and J. N. Henriques defeated George S. Groesbeck and H. R. Campbell, 6—3, 7—5; Jack Wright and Willard Crocker defeated Anton F. Von Bernuth and Percy L. Kynaston, 7—5, 6—3; Ralph DeMott and S. V. Brubans defeated Allan Behr and Kenneth Fisher, 0—6, 8—6, 8—3; Wood Ivins and Kenneth Johnson defeated L. H. Cramer and Blum, 7—5, 6—2.

Second Round—L. Gwynne French and J. Henry Steinkampf defeated Edward C. Oelsner and Harry Wolf, 6—4, 1—6, 6—4; Leonard W. Knox and Carl N. Jolliffe defeated Hugh Oakley and Frank MacWatty, 6—3, 6—2.

FORDHAM FRESHMEN WIN.

The undefeated Fordham freshman baseball team added a fifth victim yesterday when it conquered Morris High School at Fordham Field, 9—4. Cariello allowed only five hits, but he received ragged support in the field, the Maroon making five errors behind him. Roemer, who started for Morris, was knocked out in the fifth when the yearlings scored five runs on as many hits. Weiner relieved him and pitched well to the finish.

Rice Succeeds Wright at Penn

Says an Order to Shift Varsity Forced His Resignation After Nine Years' Service.

RICE NOW IN FULL CHARGE

PHILADELPHIA, May 20 (AP).—Clash of authority resulted today in the resignation of Joseph Wright, for the last nine years head coach of the University of Pennsylvania oarsmen. Jim Rice, assistant to Wright and for many years head coach at Columbia University, was placed in charge and will take the crews to New York tomorrow for Saturday's races on the Harlem.

John Arthur Brown, Chairman of the Pennsylvania Rowing Committee, announced the resignation and stated that it was accepted "with extreme regret." He also stated that Wright "has always given the university his best services and has worked diligently for the university success in rowing."

Wright, explaining his resignation, said that he was congratulated upon his return from Princeton even though the crew had had ill luck in losing the race with Harvard by the breaking of an oarlock while Pennsylvania was in the lead. "Then a few days ago," said Wright, "Mr. Brown notified me there should be some changes in the heavyweight varsity.

"Jim Rice and myself talked things over and agreed upon changes we thought would help the crews. Captain MacDonald carried a letter from the Chairman of the Rowing Committee suggesting several changes being made. We put Captain MacDonald in the Doyle stroked light varsity crew. This change evidently did not meet with the approval of Mr. Brown, and he sent a note, carried by MacDonald, ordering that he be put back in the Irmiger crew. That caused me to resign."

Two-Varsity Plan Disliked.

It was said that the Rowing Committee did not favor Wright's plan of having two varsity crews, one stroked by Jack Doyle, Philadelphia, and the other by Don Irmiger, Green Bay, Wis. Instead, it was said, the committee favored one strong crew.

The Doyle crew defeated the Irmiger eight to determine which should row against Yale here on May 2. Yale won. Then the Irmiger crew beat Doyle's eight to see which should represent Pennsylvania in the quadrangular race at Cambridge on May 9. Harvard won after the Pennsylvania eight met with the accident.

A year ago, there were reports of Wright giving up his coaching position, but he rowed and came back to the university when the Fall term began. Recently it was announced that Wright this Summer would coach the crews of the Penn Athletic Club Rowing Association, a new organization which took over the West Philadelphia Boat Club recently. After his resignation today Wright said he may return to his home in Toronto.

The resignation came in the midst of numerous changes in the two varsity crews in preparation for Saturday's Childs Cup regatta with Columbia and Princeton in New York.

Rice a Veteran Coach.

Serving his thirty-fifth year as a crew coach, Jim Rice is the dean of all rowing mentors. For seventeen years, from 1906 through the season of 1923, Rice coached the oarsmen of Columbia, and there met success until the war. The poor showing of Columbia crews, poor in that they failed to win the Poughkeepsie races, brought about dissatisfaction in some circles with the system on Morningside Heights, and when Rice's contract expired, on Sept. 15, 1923, it was not renewed, and Fred Miller was appointed in his place.

Rice, immediately following his departure from Columbia, became assistant coach at the University of Pennsylvania, where he served as chief of the junior varsity eight during the season of 1924. With the passing of Wright, it was only natural that Rice should step into command.

PENN CREWS HERE TODAY.

Princeton Navy Due Tomorrow for Races With Columbia Saturday.

The University of Pennsylvania crew squad, under the direction of James C. Rice, is scheduled to arrive in this city today in preparation for the twentieth annual Childs Cup regatta with Princeton and Columbia, which will be held on the Harlem River Saturday morning. The Princeton eights will arrive tomorrow.

Penn will row from the Nonpareil Boat Club and will have its headquarters at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Coach Rice will put the boats through a workout this afternoon and again tomorrow morning and afternoon. Princeton will row from the Columbia quarters, the '97 Boathouse, and will live at the Majestic Hotel.

The first race between the freshmen of the three schools will start at 9:45 o'clock Saturday morning. Following that, Penn and Columbia will stage a 150-pound race at 10:15. The feature of the program, the varsity race, will get under way at 10:45. The distance of all the races is one and a half miles. They are to start just south of the 207th Street Bridge and the finish line will be a little north of High Bridge.

CORINTHIAN CLUB OUT FOR YACHT CUP

Will Join Race for Manhasset Bay Trophy on Sept. 9 Against Indian Harbor Club.

The Corinthian Yacht Club of Marblehead has challenged the Indian Harbor Yacht Club of Greenwich for the Manhasset Bay Challenge Cup, which is held by the Indian Harbor organization and there will be a race for the trophy on Sept. 9, according to an announcement yesterday by Commodore Robert Law Jr. The defending yacht for Indian Harbor will be one of the four new sloops of Class R being built for members of the club and the challenging yacht from Marblehead will probably be the Class R sloop adjudged the best of the Corinthian fleet.

The race for the Manhasset Bay Cup is expected to be one of the feature events of the yacht racing season on the Western Long Island Sound. The Larchmont, Manhasset Bay and New Rochelle Yacht Clubs have already challenged for the trophy and it is expected that the Eastern Yacht Club of Marblehead may also have a representative in the race.

The Indian Harbor Yacht Club also holds the Greenwich Cup and a race will be held for this prize. The date has not yet been decided for this event, but the contending boats will be sloops of the R Class.

The Indian Harbor Yacht Club will go into commission on Memorial Day and the flag officers are looking forward to a lively Summer of racing.

Marinelli's Condition Unchanged.

There was no change noted today in the condition of Benny Marinelli, who was dangerously injured in an accident at the Jamaica race course, it was stated last night at the Mount Sinai Hospital. The jockey is still in a very serious condition.

Sailing Spry From Halifax On Way to Six-Meter Race

HALIFAX, N. S., May 20 (AP).—Philip Benson of the Eastern Yacht Club, Marblehead, Mass., and Edward Parson and John Wood, well-known yachtsmen of Providence, R. I., are on their way to Marblehead in the American yacht Spry, which they are to race in the forthcoming international "R" class week off the Massachusetts coast. The Spry, of seven tons and 41 feet over all, was built at Calo, Norway. Benson said that he expected to make Marblehead in ten days, nursing the Spry from port to port in fair weather.

SWIM MARK BEATEN BY MISS GERAGHTY

A record performance by Miss Agnes Geraghty and double victories by Miss Ethel McGary and Miss Aileen Riggin were features of the annual club championships of the Women's Swimming Association, held in the seventy-five-foot pool of the Shelton Hotel last night.

Miss Geraghty won impressively the 220-yard breast stroke title test, finishing nearly 10 yards ahead of Miss Karin Nilsson, the runner-up. She covered the distance in 3:24 2-5, slashing 3 seconds from her own American record for a long pool.

Unfortunately, the feat will not receive official recognition, as the A. A. U. does not consider standards set in closed meets.

Miss McGarry first captured the 500-yard free-style swim in the fast time of 7:10 4-5, leading by 12 yards her nearest opponent, Miss Virginia Whitehack. Then she took the 100-yard back stroke event in 1:22 3-5, 2 yards ahead of Miss Ethel Hertle, who gained the place by a touch from Miss Aileen O'Mara.

Miss Riggin won the 220-yard free-style swim without extending herself in 3:05, with Miss Sarah Lord second, 5 yards back, and later she outpointed her field in the fancy diving event, scoring 107 points and defeating the Misses Helen Wainwright and Helen Meany, national title holder, who secured the places as named.

The 100-yard free style swim went to Miss Doris O'Mara in 1:10, with Miss Kathryn Brown next, four yards back, and a special championship at the same distance for the second, or class B team, was won by Miss Kathleen O'Neil in 1:21.

Three events for the club juniors, girls thirteen and under, resulted in keen competition and exceptional performances. Miss Mary Katherine O'Connor won the 100-yard sprint in 1:19 2-5, Miss Lisa Lindstrom the 220-yard swim in 3:20 and Miss Rita Brereton the fancy diving with 89 points.

PARIS PRESS CHILLS DEMPSEY WELCOME

PARIS, May 20 (AP).—Jack Dempsey, with Mrs. Dempsey, went on a sight-seeing tour in Paris today. The heavyweight champion seemed somewhat chagrined, after the enthusiastic reception accorded him by the boxing fans during the bouts he attended Tuesday night, that the Paris newspapers should adopt toward him indifferent or lukewarm, and in some instances hostile, attitudes.

Arriving in Paris in the midst of the acrimonious discussion of the American debt situation, Dempsey has been received coolly by the newspapers. The Matin was especially cold to him, saying:

"Jack Dempsey, the former American boxer, has arrived in Paris. Dempsey announces that he will not enter the ring for any price in Europe. This is not surprising, inasmuch as the former American boxer long ago abandoned even the idea of ever boxing again in the United States."

BERGAMINI BACK, THRILLS BIKE FANS

PIANI BEATS WILLIE SPENCER

Loses First Heat by Switching on Turn but Takes Next Two—Willie Fenn Wins.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., May 20.—Mario Bergamini, crack Italian sprinter, scored a brilliant victory in his first match race on an American track this season when he easily outsprinted Reggie McNamara, the Australian, in two straight heats of a mile match race, which featured the first card of night races held at the Newark Velodrome tonight.

Bergamini led at the bell in the first heat and held his rival safe. In the second brush he tried from the rear and jumped past McNamara to win by a length, the same margin as in the first. His time for the last eighth was 12 4-5 and 12 2-5, but he was not extended.

Another Italian star, Orlando Piani, mastered Willie Spencer in another match which went three heats. Piani beat Willie in the first heat but was disqualified by Referee Kramer for switching on the turn. In the next two he rode from the front and fought off the efforts of the erstwhile titleholder to pass him. He won by a length in each of the last two tilts. Piani did the last eighth of the second in 12 1-5.

Bergamini and Piani will ride a mile match race at the New York Velodrome tomorrow night. The victory of Bergamini last night was notable in view of the accident last Summer in which he was so badly hurt that his life was despaired of.

Willie Fenn, son of a famous rider of many years ago, won the half mile handicap in a great exhibition of riding, nipping Fred Spencer at the tape. Alex McBeath was third. Penn came strong in the home stretch.

PHILIPPINES CLINCH FAR EAST OLYMPICS

MANILA, May 20 (AP).—The Filipino team virtually won the Far Eastern Olympic Games today through the refusal of Japanese athletes to resume their places in the track and field competition after walking out yesterday.

The Japanese contestants decided to continue in all events except those of track and field, but victories in the other events will be insufficient to overcome the lead of the Philippine entrants in the track and field games. Japanese officials exerted all possible pressure on the track and field team to induce the men to return, but the athletes made a final refusal, claiming they were unfairly treated.

The Olympic officials even disqualified Danao, a Filipino runner, for fouling Noto yesterday. Noto's claim for this foul was refused immediately after the event.

Contests continued between the Philippine and Chinese track and field teams, the former winning all events. The total point score to date: Philippines, 122 1-3; Japan, 60 1-3, and China 2 1-3.

MILTON OUTPOINTS LONDON.

Wins Decision in 10-Round Bout at New Manhattan Club.

Tommy Milton was too clever and too aggressive for Harry London in their ten-round bout which featured the card at the New Manhattan A. C. last night and got the decision at the end of the battle. From the fourth round on Milton led easily and the decision pleased the crowd of 3,000 in attendance.

In the six-round semi-final Ruby Goldstein of the east side won a decision from Spencer Gardner. In the first ten-round bout on the program Johnny Rocco of New Rochelle got the decision over Andy (Ike) Tucker of the Bronx after a hard battle.

TILDEN PRESENTS CUP.

LAWRENCEVILLE, N. J., May 20 (AP).—William T. Tilden 2d, international lawn tennis champion, presented the Simmonds Cup today to George Barker of East Orange, the winner of the school tournament. The cup was put up by Major A. P. Simmonds of Philadelphia in memory of his son, who died here in 1921.

Tilden and Alfred H. Chapin Jr. of Springfield, Mass., played an exhibition match which Tilden won, 5—7, 8—6, 6—4, 6—3 and 9—7.

Judice Is Cue Winner.

Peter Judice defeated Frank Quinn in an Eastern States Pocket Billiard League match at the Fourteenth Street Academy last night by a score of 100 to 78. Judice completed his string in twenty-three innings and had a high run of 21, to one of 28 for Quinn.

Hughes Is Three-Cushion Victor.

In an Eastern States three-cushion match at Kreuter's Academy last night Morgan Hughes defeated Harry Schuler, 25 to 32, in forty-one innings. Morgan's high run was 5, Schuler's 4.

WATSON ON PROHIBITION.

Senator WATSON of Indiana is our chief producer of "keynotes." State conventions are still far away. So the leading manufacturer has a surplus. Lest his health should suffer by suppression, Mr. WATSON sounds a keynote before the Couzens committee, an industrious collector of vibrations. He has discovered that prohibition enforcement is inefficient; but then, as he puts it in his original way, it "is" yet in its incipiency; it is something "new." To him, so ardent a civil service reformer, it may be as new as it must be grateful that "they are recommending that the service be put "under the civil service." Of the present strong sea fight against the battleship fleet he says, with a caution born of unpleasant experience in the Senate:

> My understanding is that in order to tighten the enforcement of prohibition and * * * to stop it at the source, they have established a cordon of vessels up and down the Atlantic Coast and they are seeking to shut off this foreign supply.

Senator WATSON'S understanding is correct. The cordon is established; and the President and every agency of prohibition "have determined to make "a tremendous effort to enforce pro"hibition." But when Senator WATSON wanders from the unwonted path of fact to the wilderness of inference or conclusion, we have to part company with our melodious old friend: "Then, if after it is enforced to the "limit the people will not stand for "it, it is for the people to say so, and "it can be modified."

This might pass as the obiter dictum of a highly unjudicial temperament, were not the intention ascribed to Mr. WATSON to make it appear that he was speaking for the Administration. Mr. COOLIDGE is bound to enforce the laws. If the "tremendous effort" should fail, the prohibitionists will demand more tremendous efforts. Nothing could be less "American" than the hallowed hollow precept about a difficult law: "Enforce it or repeal it!" The true version of American practice would read: "If a law can't "be enforced, make it severer and "harder to enforce!" The Legislature of Mr. WATSON'S State has obeyed the rule, slapping on the statute book a more "drastic" prohibition enforcement law, which excited the wonder of the rest of the country for as much as two days. What reason is there to expect that "the people" will consent, at least in our time, to any modification of the Volstead act?

By the wisdom of Congress the millions of farmers, the ruling and sacred class, can make all they want to drink. Why should they want to modify the Volstead act to help their natural enemies, the workingmen and other dwellers in the cities and industrial communities? If a few States dissent, what would they amount to in a national convention, even if they dared to be honest? Moreover, "tremendous effort" seems to point to the good American modern way of a more tremendous bureaucracy. The prohibitionists haven't really had their innings yet. Prohibition is "something new." If it is a little expensive, how can money be spent more nobly?

THE MAYORALTY GAME.

The greatest city in this country, and perhaps in the world, is soon to renew its Government. One would suppose that the vast interests involved, the sum of human opportunity and happiness at stake, would lead the citizens of this self-governing municipality to serious thought and discussion about the rulers they are to choose in less than six months. But for evidence of anything of that sort New York City would today be searched almost in vain. The general attitude is that the election of a Mayor is very much of the nature of a game; and the chief interest at present seems to lie in watching the moves of the players.

These are often skilful and sometimes amusing. It cannot be denied that Tammany is playing its cards against Mayor HYLAN with great adroitness. If the aim is to perplex and worry its opponent, the method adopted by the Wigwam is cleverly chosen. As just now developed, with fresh variations from day to day, the scheme is to pretend not to be thinking about Mayor HYLAN at all. Quietly assuming that he is somehow going to fade out of the picture, the political artists keep on asking innocently, and in the most casual manner, what face ought to be painted where his has been. These repeated inquiries concerning men who might be "eligible" for the Mayoralty are peculiarly galling to the dweller in the City Hall. Doubtless they were meant to be. The object is to keep the Mayor not only guessing but nervous, uncertain, exasperated. Now it is a Supreme Court Judge who is admiringly mentioned. Next it is somebody from Brooklyn. The gentleman who speaks for the Democratic Party in that borough has lately paid again his tribute to May"r HYLAN'S Administration, but ominously added that when it came to the question of nominating the next Mayor it would be found that there is "other timber." Observers of the conduct of the game cannot fail to chuckle as they note such strategic play.

On the other side of the table the participants are beginning to see the need of producing good cards, if they have any. They show at least a certain acuteness in having at last identified the man whom they have got to beat if they are to succeed. They are more and more clearly recognizing Governor SMITH as their chief and most formidable antagonist. But what sort of tactics in order to discredit and defeat him do our readers suppose that the political generals of the Hylan-Hearst army are proposing to follow? The very simplest. Just assail the Governor as "the friend of the wealthy." Raise that cry in Oliver Street and throughout the entire east side and the Governor's political strength will melt away like a cake of ice left in the sun. The deadly charge of having friends among the rich has been fixed upon others, why not pin it upon "AL" SMITH?

The very suggestion is a good measure of the mental calibre of the men setting out to fight him. They are politicians who deserve not only the old reproach of not knowing their own trade, but that of not knowing even their own game. They can no more get the better of Governor SMITH in the way proposed than an infant in arms could force the great Russian chessmaster to resign after twenty moves.

MOROCCO AND NORTH AFRICA.

Premier PAINLEVE has now to defend a situation in Morocco not of his making. When he took office in the latter part of April the fighting north of Fez had been proceeding for nearly a fortnight. The reinforcements just arriving on the Moorish front were sanctioned by M. HERRIOT. From Socialist quarters not altogether remote from him today comes a demand for an end of the war by negotiations with ABD-EL-KRIM. The new Premier has countered with a denial of alarmist rumors about heavy French losses. His hold on office is not so secure that he can afford to take the risk of being charged with betraying the national interest—an accusation sure to be forthcoming from Nationalist ranks.

Whether the withholding of information about the early stages of the fighting was intentional or not, it is shown once more that in war no news soon becomes bad news. In the first stage of the World War the French people first learned how near the Germans had got to Paris when they received assurances that the Germans were being pushed back from Paris. They are only now learning how near the hostile tribesmen got to Fez. The critical situation pictured in the Opposition press would apply, in so far as it is true, to three weeks ago when the first communiqué about Morocco flashed out of a clear sky. It is very likely, moreover, that not every Frenchman, when he reads of the enemy penetrating to within eighteen miles of Fez, will recall, if he ever knew, that the frontier is not much more than forty miles north of the capital. Along that front was strung a line of nearly two dozen blockhouses. Two of these are still invested by the enemy. Everywhere else apparently the Riff attack has been stopped and is being slowly pushed back.

The danger to Fez arose in all probability less from the actual followers of ABD-EL-KRIM who succeeded in "infiltrating" through the French lines than in the resident tribes whom the invaders succeeded in stirring up against the French. If ABD-EL-KRIM has to be bought off, French prestige within Morocco will suffer and the results of a dozen years of pacification will be endangered. The effects may easily extend beyond Morocco. Unlike Spanish interests, which are confined to a narrow strip of coastland, France has an empire in North Africa. A victory such as ABD-EL-KRIM would claim over the French would enormously stimulate the agitation already fostered in the Moslem world by his successes over the Spanish army. Such considerations make it altogether improbable that the Painlevé Government will lend an ear to a "defeatist" propaganda by Socialists and Communists.

MORE PLAYGROUNDS.

The greater the outcry about the proposed playground in Central Park the more is attention distracted from the necessity for more playgrounds throughout the entire city. It may be stated as axiomatic that the greater the congestion in a given district the greater is the need of playgrounds there. Fine as it might be for the children of the Central Park neighborhood to have sixteen acres of the park improved for their special use, there can be little doubt that the city as a whole would benefit much more if the same acreage were made available in different parts of the city. More playgrounds are needed not only to furnish safe play areas for the children, but also to give more "breathing spaces" in otherwise overbuilt regions. The need goes even beyond that of playgrounds. The ideal would include more parks as well, where in good weather people could obtain a little fresh air in pleasant surroundings. Many proposals with this end in view have been made, including the use of those portions of the two river fronts which are not essential for commercial purposes.

Unfortunately there is no prospect of immediate realization of any of these extra park projects. Incidentally the expense which would have to be incurred in putting them into effect would be very heavy. In the case of the children's playgrounds, however, there is hope that the city officials may be willing to listen to public opinion. Mr. HECKSCHER'S gift has helped attract interest to the problem. As one of his avowed purposes is to enlist the financial support of other wealthy citizens in the work of establishing more playgrounds, some of the city's politically-minded officials are beginning to see that here may be an opportunity for them to obtain glory for work made possible by others' generosity. So long as they make possible sites available no one will grudge them any credit. Prospective donors of money for playground purposes are more interested in seeing the grounds established than in obtaining popular applause.

The President of the Park Conservation Association stated recently that there are forty-six parcels of land in the city which could be used for parks or playgrounds. It is undoubtedly true that there are valid objections against the use of some of these sites. Furthermore, they are not all of them in Manhattan, where the congestion is greatest and where the need of playgrounds is most obvious. But there is little doubt that an energetic campaign by the city officials to find a corresponding number of suitable sites on Manhattan which could be laid out at a not too exorbitant cost would meet with success and would help arouse further interest in the campaign for more playgrounds.

FIVE FAMOUS CITIZENS.

The five distinguished Americans in whose memory busts are to be unveiled this afternoon at the Hall of Fame are as notable for the variety as for the value of the services which they rendered to their country. JOHN MARSHALL, Chief Justice and molder of the Constitution, finds himself in the presence of the tragedienne CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN. ASA GRAY, one of the foremost botanists of the world, is there with HARRIET BEECHER STOWE, who dramatized the cause of the North before the Civil War. With them all is General WILLIAM TECUMSEH SHERMAN, whose military record ranks with that of GRANT, LEE and "Stonewall" JACKSON. It is a cosmopolitan group representing different phases of the nation's life. They were elected to the Hall of Fame years ago, two of them, ASA GRAY and JOHN MARSHALL, having been chosen in 1900. But owing to delays in obtaining suitable busts the unveiling could not take place until this year.

The purpose of the founders of the Hall of Fame was to commemorate the services of one hundred and fifty great Americans by erecting bronze tablets and busts to their memory in the colonnade at New York University. Elections are held every five years. To date, the names of fifty-six men and seven women have been chosen. These include actors, generals, statesmen, scientists, artists. At first, persons not born in America were excluded. When it was found that this would keep out such servants of the Republic as ALEXANDER HAMILTON, JOHN JAMES AUDUBON and LOUIS AGASSIZ this provision was altered. So also women were at first ineligible, but the claims of HARRIET BEECHER STOWE, EMMA WILLARD and others could not be denied, so that this limitation was also removed.

Of the two women CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN'S fame as an actress is less familiar to present-day America than that of HARRIET BEECHER STOWE as an author. It is just ninety years since she first appeared as Lady Macbeth, and although she remained a favorite until her death, in 1876, she was best known to New Yorkers of before the Civil War. HARRIET BEECHER STOWE was a familiar figure to many persons still living. She wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at a time when CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN was at the height of her fame, and to this extent also belonged to the pre-war period. But her vigorous personality was felt for forty years after that volume appeared.

JOHN MARSHALL is only now coming fully into his own. The greatness of his service to the nation has long been accepted but only partially understood. Among lawyers, of course, he has always received his due. But the public has been slower to realize that the philosophy of government which guided so many of his famous decisions was deliberately conceived in order to cement the Union of the States. General SHERMAN, thirty years after MARSHALL'S death, went to war to preserve the Union that MARSHALL had peacefully fought to strengthen. ASA GRAY belongs in the class of AUDUBON and WILSON, and of his contemporary JOSIAH WILLARD GIBBS. For forty-six years he was Professor of Natural History at Harvard, and there gathered together the famous herbarium and made his classificatory studies of botany that gave him a position in his chosen field not unlike that of LINNAEUS. It is good to see service of this sort rewarded on the same plane as that of great statesmen, authors and artists.

NEW YORK ANGLERS IN NEW JERSEY.

To ease the minds of those who practice the gentle art of angling, an obscurity caused by a New Jersey law of 1925 should be cleared away. It provides that "every non-resident's "fishing license shall be valid and "operative only on the days of the "week in the open season" when fishing is allowed in the non-resident's own State. This enactment was provoked by a Pennsylvania statute forbidding Sunday fishing, which is supposed to be enforced in the Keystone State. Evidently there had been more than a show of enforcing it, or Trenton would not have proceeded against Pennsylvanians who crossed the Delaware for a Sunday's fishing. If New Jersey disciples of IZAAK WALTON could not wet a line in territory on the other side of the river, the anglers of Pennsylvania were not to be allowed to break the Sabbath in New Jersey. This attitude may seem ungracious among brothers of the rod, but Pennsylvania affords more opportunities to anglers and, besides, has a much larger population than New Jersey. Also, a lesson had to be taught Pennsylvania. All days look alike to the fisherman, so it smacked of outrage that Governor PINCHOT'S Legislature should put a blue law into the garb of a soberly pondered statute and so stigmatize the beloved sport.

One result was that New Yorkers with New Jersey licenses began to be worried. Section 2145 of the New York Penal Code was supposed to inhibit fishing on Sunday. It was an ancient blue law that grouped all kinds of sport, fishing included, and proscribed them on the Sabbath. But it will be a relief to anxious souls to learn that Secretary FELL, for the New Jersey Fish and Game Commission, has made the following statement:

> New Jersey, which has the same blue laws, does not enforce them as to angling, and they are not enforced by our board. It is the common practice for a resident of New Jersey who has a license to angle on Sunday, and without molestation. * * * Our board will not bring a prosecution against a New York citizen who fishes in New Jersey on Sunday.

It appears that timid folk in New York who are prone to abide by the letter of the law still hesitate to try angling in New Jersey on Sunday. The authorities over there have been known to invoke the majesty of blue laws, even to deny a child with a sweet tooth its ice cream cone. Suppose a township famed for trout streams awoke to its duty and nabbed an invading New Yorker in the act of casting a fly on the Sabbath! But there would be no occasion for such an indignity. The constable might find himself in a peck of trouble, for, according to that monumental work, the Consolidated Laws of New York, Sunday fishing has been legalized in this State, having been dropped from the inhibitions in Section 2145. The New Yorker with a New Jersey license need not torture himself with the interpretations that a citizen of Pennsylvania must give to the New Jersey law of reprisal and exclusion.

REVALUING THE RAILWAYS.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is overwhelmed by its problems, which increase faster than they are decided. However important the Nickel Plate consolidation may be, it is less so than the rate question as a whole. After a generation of regulation it remains unsettled. The farmers have applied for special consideration, but the general rate structure would be ruined by a multitude of similar applications. The railways are breaking all records for both economy and efficiency, and yet over a series of years they are not earning a reasonable return on the tentative valuations dating from 1914 and later years. At this point the commission collides with the decision of the courts that "present value expressed in terms of present money" must be the lawful rate base. The valuations of 1914, &c., are obsolete, and the commission must revalue the railways.

From Washington it is reported to The Journal of Commerce that statements about revaluation are merely trial balloons. Even a suggested all-round increase of rates would not satisfy railways whose valuations have increased 100 per cent. The farmers, the commission and the railways would be wise to find a way to keep out of the courts. Possibly a compromise might be reached by rate increases only in the peculiarly distressed regions. If the farmers insist upon a policy which drives the railways into receiverships, they will get less through the courts than through the commission. It is obvious that the general inquiry into railway rates is taking on a complexion little expected by those who proposed it.

ART AND LEISURE.

The Carnegie Corporation's gift of $360,500 is only the first move in a campaign to bring art home to the American people, the scope of which is nation-wide. The twenty organizations among which this preliminary sum is divided include various college departments of fine arts, industrial arts and music; the American Academy in Rome; the American Institute of Architects; the Beaux Arts Institute of Design; the People's Chorus of New York; the Carolina Playmakers. Presumably, we have here the first fruits of the corporation's recent studies of "the new leisure." Dean INGE was not the first to note that Americans "just pretend to be hustling."

Implicit in the program is a realization that, as art requires talent, so also does improvement of the shining hour. It is not merely a question of the gradual extension of the eight hour day with its corollary of family picnics and fishing trips by motor car. Prohibition also has its problem of vacant time and the vacant mind. More important than either is the fact that ours is a land of rapidly and widely spreading prosperity. The petit rentier who has so long diffused a leisured grace and charm among the French is coming to have his counterpart in America. Increasing numbers of us welcome a humble roof and loaf as a means of commanding that more glorious loaf which enables the disciple of WALT WHITMAN to send his soul an invitation. Possibly the champions of the eight-hour day and of prohibition were unduly "hustling." While creating the new leisure it might have been as well to provide some means of employing it. Meek as are the moving pictures and the baseball bleachers, they do not quite deserve to inherit the earth. The Carnegie Corporation has been commendably prompt in taking up that slack. To the primordial library it is adding art, music, architecture, community singing and community dramatics.

There remains a question whether the souls of the newly leisured in any considerable numbers will accept the Whitmanesque invitation. Our ancient dogma that "genius" is equally distributed among all orders has fared ill of late at the hands of mental tester and biologist. The worldly conditions into which children are born appear to have a pretty steady correlation to the quality of their inward inheritance. Mr. CARNEGIE himself was an example of the fact that when an extraordinary talent occurs it steadily and surely finds its way to the top. Not the leisured but the incessantly struggling were the prime object of his solicitude. In modern life these are mainly found in the ranks of those who work with their brains, and the new leisure has, for the most part, passed them by. Yet in all likelihood it is they who will chiefly profit by this admirable endeavor to open up the paths of culture.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Were Victims of a Panic.

There is not much use in telling the people of New York that if they only would be calm and quiet when, as on Tuesday morning, there is what the electricians call a short circuit under a subway car, in at least ninety-nine cases out of a hundred they would be in no real danger—that in a few minutes the break in the insulation would be repaired or cut out and the train would go on.

Almost everybody already knows this, but also, lying subconsciously in the mind of everybody, is a realization of what might be the consequences of this or any other accident in one of our long underground passages. Therefore when there is an interruption of the service between stations, and especially if there seems to be a chance of suffocation by smoke, the conditions are exactly those that may bring about a panic rush for the doors or through the windows.

Nothing could be more unreasonable than this, but panics are beyond reason and arise deep down among the primordial instincts that make for self-preservation at any cost. Nobody can claim complete immunity from panic. Once started by the least stable individuals, nervously, in a crowd, the infection may spread all through it, and then there always is trouble, sometimes of a seriousness far out of proportion to the cause of it.

The Romans recognized panic as a form of madness, and they knew by experience that it occasionally overcame the bravest of their legions. In the World War there were several occasions when whole regiments of soldiers as brave as ever existed broke discipline and gave for a time all the outward semblance of cowardice. No more firmness of mind is to be expected with anything like certainty from the chance-collected people in a subway train. Now and then they will behave admirably in an emergency, but now and then they literally "lose their heads," do everything they should not do, and pay more or less heavily for what it would be unjust to call their stupidity, for it is only one of the familiar workings of the human mind.

Subways Are Safer Than Streets.

It cannot be too often repeated that it is only from collisions in the subway that really great danger to life can come, and, against collisions, the measures taken, while not 100 per cent. effective, are so nearly so that the record of these lines far surpasses that of any other railway in the world.

The chances of asphyxiation or of burning to death are hardly measurable. It is not our subways that supply the daily records of killings and mutilations, but the surface streets and avenues, with their multitude of automobiles and motor trucks. Indeed, of all our urban traveling, that done in the subways is by far the safest, and going on foot is the most dangerous.

Perhaps, some day, a non-inflammable insulation for wires carrying heavy electric currents will be invented, but at present, and in most places, some form or combination of rubber must be used, and that burns, when a short circuit occurs, with the production in large quantities of a smoke particularly obnoxious, though not particularly dangerous. In the subways, however, the short circuits are almost always outside of the cars, and if the doors and windows are kept shut little smoke would be likely to enter.

The one great peril is from panic, for that, whenever it happens, turns any crowd into a collection of madmen, deaf to reason and sure to do the wrong thing.

His Comments All Are Kindly.

Dean INGE, returned to his native land, has nothing but good things to say about what he saw here and the people whom he met. He realizes, better than most of our foreign visitors, how little he saw and that he met only a carefully selected and very small fraction of us, and he wisely refrains from the generalizing which so often leads the stranger into such wild absurdities and inaccuracies.

Those who heard the Dean when he preached or made speeches will smile a little when they read that he credited us with talking a language "something like English." By that, presumably, he meant—if he meant more than another joke—that we do not talk the way he does; but that is no more true of us than it is of all English except the small, particular class to which he belongs. Many other Britons come here and talk a language as easily comprehensible to us as ours is to them.

Really, between the best English and the best Americanese there is little more than a slight difference of intonation. Possibly the clergy on both sides of the water have a special language of their own.

Dean INGE did not hesitate to compare New York and London to the disadvantage of the latter, so far as architecture and appearance go, and in that he has the confirmation of another Briton, G. TOPHAM FOREST, architect of the London County Council, who, after a visit here, has reported to that body many ways in which their city could learn to its advantage the building art as it is practiced in this country. We do well, he says, and are doing better every year.

Some of this praise probably must be credited to our climate, but the rest of it really is deserved. Our architects are solving magnificently the difficult problem of the tall steel-framed building, and that so impresses our visitors that they see little else. They could find enough of ugliness if they looked closer to the ground or went into our smaller towns.

This Treasure Can't Be Abandoned.

So enormous are the economies attainable from the addition of tetra-ethyl lead to gasoline that, the abandonment of that substance on account of its present dangers would be lamentable. The chemists who discovered it presumably are competent to remove its perils in use, just as they have in manufacture, and should the reality of those perils be demonstrated—it is denied about as authoritatively as it is asserted—that is the problem which they must solve.

The supply of gasoline—of the oil out of which it is made—is far from inexhaustible, and so dependent on it have we become for so many and such important purposes that coming to the end of it, or to its reaching a prohibitive price, would be a world calamity. But it is stated that by the addition of the precious adulterant the small per cent. of the energy in gasoline now utilized can be vastly increased. With complete combustion one gallon of this fuel would drive an automobile with a twenty-five horsepower motor 350 miles. So it is stated, anyhow.

But do the makers of gasoline really want economy in its use carried to that extent?

Didn't Heckle Governor Silzer.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a news article in today's paper you have a headline "Women at Party Heckle Governor Silzer."

The Century Dictionary defines the word "heckle" as meaning "to question, especially in a severe and antagonistic manner."

The questions asked of Governor Silzer at the garden party at Mrs. William Thayer Brown's home were not in the least antagonistic or severe. The Governor himself announced that he would be glad to answer any questions, as he had "nothing to conceal."

The League of Women Voters did not invite the Governor to be their guest in order to treat him with discourtesy.

General Miles Loved Chess.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The sudden death of General Miles must have been a shock to his many friends. It may be of interest to relate that during his last years the General's hobby was chess. He found great pleasure and satisfaction in the royal game, and it was my privilege, as recently as Saturday evening last, to play four games with him at the Metropolitan Club in Washington, of which he was an almost daily habitue.

At that time he seemed in excellent health and spirits and I little thought his end was so near. L. RODNEY BERG.

A NEGLECTED GARDEN.

The weeds creep to the door,
They peep within and crow:
"The woman strives no more
Against our march, although
We choke the mignonette,
Usurp the rose's bed—
Why does our foe forget
Us now? Can she be dead?"
. . . . . .
The weeds sweep from the door;
Their hosts besiege and hold
Once tidy plots—make war
On phlox and marigold.
She is not dead, and yet,
With him she loved away
Forever, mignonette

BLOOD PRESSURE REMEDIES.

Dr. MacDonald's Theory Also Advanced in Germany in 1917.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reference to your editorial of May 9, "It Sounds Like a Big Thing," permit me to call your attention to the fact that a physiologic extract, alike in nature with the one reported to have been successfully used for reducing blood pressure by Dr. MacDonald of St. Catharines, was prepared from the walls of the bovine aorta in 1917 by Heilner, in the University of Munich, as a consequence of theoretic deductions postulated by the therapeutic results obtained in chronic arthritis with Heilner's extract of cartilage.

This aortic extract, which was first prepared by Heilner in 1917, has since become established as a unique therapeutic agent in hypertension based upon sclerotic changes in the human vascular system, and has the therapeutic properties credited to Dr. MacDonald's extract. Heilner's preparation is used extensively in the country of its origin and in several others, but only to a limited extent in the United States, because it has been made easily accessible to the American profession only in recent weeks.

How thoroughly justified your caption is may be judged from the fact that the therapeutic effect of such extracts made necessary an entirely new conception of the nature of metabolic diseases, such as arthritis and arteriosclerosis, giving rise to the formulation of a new principle of organization, Heilner's theory of "Local Tissue Protection." The importance of this new principle may be second only to that of endocrine secretion.

As early as 1920 Heilner formulated his conclusion that not only the arthritides and the various forms of arterio-sclerosis come under this new principle, but that many affections of the liver and of the kidneys, as well as of the brain and other parts of the nervous system, are explicable from the same point of view, and that the problem of cancer may be ultimately solved along these lines.

My object in writing this is to place before you the fact that the theoretic base of tissue extracts such as the one prepared by Dr. MacDonald has been thoroughly worked out after the therapeutic effects had been established by tests in many clinics abroad, and that a tissue extract reducing blood pressure has been in regular use and commercially available for several years, although its introduction into the United States and Canada has been delayed for obvious reasons.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to deny in the most unequivocal terms the right of any concession granted to the Harriman Company or any others in the Republic of Georgia by the Soviet Government. It is hardly conceivable that the people of Georgia, who recently shed their blood in defense of their country, will accept the Soviet-enforced concessions. They have again and again demonstrated that they will not bow down to the false republic that has been foisted upon them by the Red Army. The National Government of Georgia, convened in Paris, and the other republics of the Caucasus have issued a statement to all the world that no concession granted by the Soviet Commissionaires in Georgia, or Soviet Moscow, will be recognized by the judicially recognized Governments of these republics.

My country and the republics that I represent are illegally occupied by a plundering horde. No nation in Europe has accepted the rule of Moscow in Georgia and the other Caucasian republics. No nation in Europe is having any dealings with Moscow in relation with these republics. Hundreds of millions of dollars of English, French, German, Italian and American capital are invested in Caucasia; all are now seized by the Soviet invaders. It is these properties and the undeveloped natural oil and manganese resources of the Caucasus that Soviet Russia is using as a bait for the capitalistic world, in the hope that this will inspire influence to secure the recognition of Soviet Russia.

State and Group Insurance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of yesterday appears a very interesting article on the subject of the new British insurance proposal for compulsory insurance for workingmen, involving old age pensions and provisions for widows and children.

The author of this article, P. W. Wilson, says the Churchill proposals as they stand involve a liability for the State which if capitalized would amount to $3,000,000,000.

While conditions in Great Britain and America are essentially different, it affords an interesting contrast to note that in this country, according to a recent statement by Vice President William J. Graham of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, new group insurance was written in the one year 1924 in this country approximating $3,400,000,000 on the lives of American workingmen, through independent arrangements for contributions by both employer and employe, without involving any direct taxation for the support of a national insurance scheme.

If it were possible to obtain figures covering the entire outstanding volume of group life insurance on workingmen in the United States, coupled with the vast volume of industrial protection, to which may be added many thousands of contracts for group health and accident insurance written by other companies, I have no doubt that the per capita protection of American workingmen under voluntary insurance in competitive insurance companies, which give the best sort of service, would astonish even our British friends. Nurses' Protest Meeting.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your columns of May 1 appeared an article stating that the previous evening Dr. Augustus S. Downing addressed a meeting composed of members of the Thirteenth District of the New York State Nurses' Association, who were asking for shorter hours and higher pay for private duty nursing in hospitals.

I would like to correct this statement, as this meeting was not a meeting of the Thirteenth District of the New York State Nurses' Association, but I understand an independent meeting of graduates of many hospital schools of nursing of the city, without reference to any organization.

While we deplore the tone of the meeting which your article pictures, it may be well to point out that a very real economic situation lies back of this demonstration. The increased cost of living affects the private duty nurse as much as it does other people, especially as private duty nursing is a seasonal occupation and there are very many days of unemployment during the year. The hours of service are long, longer than those of any other group, and accompanied as they frequently are by severe emotional as well as physical strain they make the life of a private duty nurse peculiarly difficult and exacting.

The nursing situation as it affects the private duty nurse and the patient is of vital importance to the public. The solution of the many difficulties inherent in this situation can only be brought about by better understanding and more intelligent efforts on the part of all concerned.

TRAINING FOR PEACE.

Directed Playgrounds Will Help, Says Mrs. Stoner.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE NEW YORK TIMES, which has been my reading guide for many years, always contains wholesome food for thought, but in the May 15 issue the editors have outdone themselves in suggestions helpful to those who love to think and to do something for humanity.

First, may I congratulate the author of the editorial, "Precocity Is Not a Menace"? Despite the proof of educators and scientists for centuries that all great people have shown tendencies to greatness in childhood, there are educators today who believe that clever children never amount to anything, and they urge parents to hold back instead of pushing forward the child who is eager to gain knowledge. And because some so-called educators have "ticks," wear goggles, and look sickly, there is an impression that brains and brawn do not go together.

Dear parents, from long observation of children (having had more than 500,000 under my supervision) may I endorse what the writer of this editorial tells us in speaking of Dr. Lewis Terman's conviction from examination of many children, that "a healthy body produces a keen mind, and clever children like to play games even more than do the stupid children, but they want games that make one think"? Clever children of today like to play games that tend toward mental gymnastics, games with aims, games that bring thought into action as well as the muscles of legs and arms.

And this leads me to the comment made in the same issue of THE TIMES concerning the veto of the Teachers' Union against asking teachers to work from 3 to 8 o'clock "in a special, difficult and nerve-racking service—for nothing."

I agree with the teachers in believing that they should not be asked to give service for nothing. I agree with them also when they say "playground management is a special kind of service for which the average teacher is doubtfully qualified."

I have no criticism to make against any teacher who loves children, but from observation of playgrounds one cannot fail to see that "to be a playground director one must have a special talent and experience in directing play."

We need directed play just as the city needs government. Children are natural little savages who must be taught to give and to take through sports like those taught in England—games that teach the great lessons of self-control, noblesse oblige, and teach practical truths while suggesting thoughts of peace, love and beauty rather than the mere striving to win through destructive as well as constructive methods.

We need above everything in the City of New York places for the children to play, equipped with constructive play material, and well-trained directors to organize helpful play for our children. And when a noble philanthropist like August Heckscher offers to help organize such a playground as a model for others to follow, I cannot see how any child lovers can deny this joy to childhood.

Through such playgrounds and with the aid of the best music we have our first aids to character building that stand for future good citizenship. New York citizens and child lovers should band themselves together to demand playgrounds and well-paid play directors for the little folks, along with the generous gift of the Guggenheims of best music via the Goldman band. I take this opportunity to thank THE NEW YORK TIMES in the name of the Citizens' Committee for generous space allotment to the cause of the Goldman band.

In the May 15 issue of THE TIMES there is also an excellent plea for the World Court. Those of us who took part in the last war and know what war means do not want any more war, but there are others who still retain the ancient view that the soldier should be elevated above the constructive genius. Nothing is too good for the soldier who fought for us in the last war, but let us sing songs of peace instead of war. As long as Generals ride while soldiers walk, as long as thought is turned toward making new weapons of defense, so long we shall have war, particularly when our school books are filled with war instead of peace lore.

If mothers and teachers begin today to give babies constructive toys in the playroom à la tops, balls, dolls, typewriters, &c., instead of toy swords, pistols, tin soldiers, &c., and if we rear monuments to Thomas Edison, Marconi and Edwin Markham as three great life-givers, the thought of the young will be turned to paths of peace instead of war, and such a powerful thought wave will bring peace, if we have a World Court to settle international difficulties and to see that there is world justice, even as we attempt to have justice in our city today. But the edicts of any court must be enforced via a police force.

In summing up the good thought suggestions in the May 15 issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES I am bold enough to say that everything needed for peace and progress is mentioned in this issue of THE TIMES. If we become gardeners and weed out the unfit, giving our best chances to the flowers instead of the sickly weeds of humanity, we shall start the growth of a superior race. If we teach these alateans to develop character through games with aims, and through music, the language of the soul, we can be assured of a noble race of men and women. If we work toward the establishment of a World Court, peace and justice shall be assured to all. And so I plead with lovers of humanity to try THE TIMES's plans for peace and progress.

Women Lawyers' Attitude.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Under the head "Want Maiden Name Good on Passport," your paper of May 3 carries an account of the National Woman's Party annual meeting of the day before. Your reporter says:

"Equal opportunity in the business and industrial world for women and men was termed the objective on the program of the National Woman's Party by Miss Grace Laughlin of Portland, Me., President of the Women Lawyers' Association."

Because there really is a good deal in a name, the writer feels called upon to direct your attention to the fact that the speaker was not Miss Grace Laughlin, but Miss Gail Laughlin, and she does not come from Portland, Me., but from San Francisco, and she is not President of the Women Lawyers' Association, though a member of the organization for several years. She is, I believe, one of the national officers of the National Woman's Party.

While the Women Lawyers' Association committed to furthering equality of legal status between men and women, the urging of the National Woman's Party for an amendment to the Constitution to secure to women equal opportunity in the business and industrial world has never come before the association. So far as my personal information goes, a large majority of our members throughout the United States are in favor of attaching amendments to the Constitution only to assure such protective and defensive measures as may be vital to the national safety or welfare and possible in no other way.

Mr. Ammons was born in Macon County, N. C., sixty-five years ago. He went at the age of 11 with his parents to Colorado. To finance his schooling he worked in the Denver Woolen Mills, drove a team in a lumber camp and worked as a lamplighter. After graduation from high school in 1880, he worked for The Denver Times for more than four years. Then he took up ranching, at which he continued until his death.

From 1890 to 1894 he was in the lower house of Colorado, the last two years as Speaker. He was State Senator from 1898 to 1902. The Democrats made him Governor from 1913 to 1915. Because of his failure to control the situation during the coal strike of 1914 he was threatened with impeachment. The threat was not thwarted, however, before he had been publicly denounced as a result of the fatal shooting of Ludlow by soldiers. President Wilson eventually authorized the use of troops to quell the labor disturbances.

THRONGS AT SPENCER BIER.

Four Governors of Missouri Attend Funeral of U. S. Senator.

ST. LOUIS, May 20 (AP).—Mourners this afternoon overflowed the auditorium of the Second Presbyterian Church, where a funeral service was held for United States Senator Selden P. Spencer by Dr. John W. MacIvor.

Governor Baker and three former Governors attended. The latter were Alexander Dockery, Herbert S. Hadley, now Chancellor of Washington University, and David R. Francis, the last United States Ambassador to Russia.

For four hours before the funeral a steady stream of people passed into the church to view the face of the late Senator. Several truckloads of flowers filled the pulpit and the front of the church. A spray of white peonies from President and Mrs. Coolidge had been placed near the flag-draped coffin.

Public offices were closed during the funeral hour and flags hung at half mast throughout the city.

The burial, which was private, was in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Special to The New York Times.

He was a charter member of the Duquesne Club of Pittsburgh, a Scottish Rite Mason and a Shriner. Besides his wife, he leaves two sons, Edmund C. Converse and Miss Margaret Dunshee, both of New York, and a brother, Johnstone F. Dunshee of McKeesport.

Flint Stops Work for Dort Funeral.

RECENTLY HONORED BY KING

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 20.—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Haldane, mother of Viscount Haldane, died today at Cloan, Auchterarder, Scotland, at the age of 100. She is survived by four distinguished children, all of whom helped her to celebrate the century of her birth on April 9 last. Besides Lord Haldane, who twice has been Lord Chancellor, they are Professor John Haldane of Oxford University, Sir William Haldane, Crown Agent for Scotland, and Miss Elizabeth Sanderson Haldane, LL.D., the first woman Justice of Scotland. Congratulations from King George, the Archbishops of Canterbury and York and a host of friends were received at the celebration.

Mrs. Haldane retained to the last a keen interest in politics. She recently read all of a book on relativity written by one of her sons, and said she understood it. Last year she tried to coax Lord Haldane to take her to the Wembley Exposition. She had been in failing health since her birthday, and had been unconscious since yesterday.

Mrs. Haldane for the last few years was one of the few women who could boast of having seen the first locomotive and the first balloon in the British Isles and the black-and-white gingham which well-born little girls wore in mourning for King George IV. when he died in 1830. Her birthday last month was an event of nation-wide interest. She celebrated her hundredth birthday by publishing her memories of the early nineteenth century—memories full of the charm of the early Victorian period.

Intensely interested in present-day tendencies, Mrs. Haldane said recently that she did not sigh for the days that were past, declaring that modern conditions and the people of today were much to be preferred to those of her youth. She recounted how a cousin had returned from school black and blue with bruises inflicted by the cane, and how a girl cousin was punished by being locked up in a barn and fed on bread and water. The exposing of these evils which she witnessed Mrs. Haldane attributed to the works of Charles Dickens and Charlotte Bronte. When cholera swept through the British Isles in 1832 the children of her age had rations of port wine and ale to strengthen their systems against the disease.

On her last birthday Mrs. Haldane said she was glad to have lived to see a completed change in affairs, educational, political, social and religious, especially the elimination of the harsh treatment often accorded by master to servant and the closing of the debt prison with its horrible cells, chains, disease and straw-covered floors.

Educated by tutors and governesses, Mrs. Haldane at the age of 3 was already able to read. She followed tedious drills in mathematics and French. When but 8 years old she was reading Voltaire's histories of Louis XIV. and of Peter the Great.

HITS SALES METHOD IN RAIL SECURITIES

SEES A BANKING MONOPOLY

But New York Central's $10,530,000 Issue Is Approved After Road Modifies Financing Plan.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (F).—An "unhealthy situation" exists with respect to the marketing of railroad securities, Commissioner Eastman of the Interstate Commerce Commission asserted today in dissenting from a decision of the commission to permit the New York Central to proceed with a bond issue.

In the case of the more important railroads, Mr. Eastman declared, "this business is very largely monopolized by J. P. Morgan & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of New York."

The commission allowed the New York Central to issue $10,530,000 in 4½ per cent. equipment trust certificates after the road had modified its plan for the financing.

The New York Central proposed to sell its certificates at 96.43 per cent. of par, but the commission refused to allow the sale at that figure. Instead, it authorized the sale "at an average price of not less than 96.89 per cent. of par."

Mr. Eastman held that the sale "plainly offers a splendid field for competitive bidding." He added that the equipment trust securities had a special credit status.

"So far as at least such securities are concerned," he continued, "I am convinced that resort to competitive bidding is entirely practicable and would tend to bring about healthier financial conditions much less open to legitimate attack."

"The New York Central," Mr. Eastman said, "markets all of its security issues, as a matter of course, through J. P. Morgan & Co. On the other hand, the Pennsylvania markets all of its issues, as a matter of course, through Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

"There is much to be said in favor of the plan under which a railroad company uses as its fiscal agent a single banking house, and does not resort in marketing its securities to any form of competitive bidding. In my opinion, however, these arguments have much less weight, if they have weight at all, in the case of equipment trust obligations, which are practically standardized, and as to which the credit of the particular carrier is of lesser importance. * * *

"The minimum price which the applicant proposes, and which it is unwilling to modify voluntarily, is out of line with prevailing market prices, a fact which is recognized in the majority report, under which the minimum price is fixed at a little higher level. The circumstances fully justify us, I believe, in presenting these alternatives to the applicants:

"First, sale through J. P. Morgan & Co. at a minimum price closely approximating the market level; or, second, if the applicant is unwilling to adopt such an alternative, sale to the highest qualified bidder after competitive bids have been publicly advertised for and received.

"I should be in favor of requiring competitive bidding without any other alternative except that I doubt our power to do this. We have power to fix a reasonable minimum price, and if our conclusion as to such price is questioned I believe that we also have power to require the matter to be determined by the practical test of competitive bidding. The situation is one where a start in another direction ought to be made in the public interest, and the circumstances of this case offer an unusually good opportunity for such a start."

Held on Charge of Hiding Assets.

Marcus Hollander of 743 Kelly Street, the Bronx, was held in $2,000 bail yesterday by United States Commissioner Cotter on a charge of concealing assets from a referee in bankruptcy. Hollander said he had been trading with stock brokers under the name of "Sam Katz." In five years he lost $70,000, he said, and added that $10,000 of this amount was lost this year. Hollander was in the retail dry goods business with Julius Hollander at 856 Westchester Avenue, the Bronx.

COURT RESTRAINS PRINCESS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Justice William Hitz in Equity Court here today issued a temporary restraining order against Princes von der Lippe-Lipski to prevent her from further attempting to oust the members of the Carry-On Club, an organization of wounded war veterans, from the club headquarters, 1,600 Rhode Island Avenue Northwest.

Simon McHugh, President of the club, complained that the Princess has so effectually enforced her own ouster order against club members that a physician could not get in to treat a patient.

The dispute between the club members and the Princess has been going on for about ten days. The club members say that contributions solicited by them and the Princess paid for the property and the furnishings. The club also demands an accounting from the Princess as to the disposition of funds used to run the club. She resides at the clubhouse and has been acting in the capacity of hostess and club manager.

HALTS GARBAGE PLANT.

Court Grants Temporary Writ Restraining Commissioner Mills.

John A. McCarthy, as a taxpayer, obtained a temporary injunction from Supreme Court Justice Guy yesterday restraining William Wirt Mills, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, from awarding contracts for the erection of a garbage destructor plant for the Street Cleaning Department on the west side of the East River, between Rivington, Tompkins and Stanton Streets, on the ground that such action is in violation of the law and will result in a waste of the city's money. The case will come before Justice Guy this morning on an application to continue the injunction.

McCarthy alleges that the land on which the destructor is planned is a marginal or exterior street, composed partly of filled-in land, and that under the New York charter the city is not permitted to use such a street for anything but wharves, piers or other commercial purposes.

BIG CIVIC PROJECTS SPUR LABOR DEMAND

State and City Construction Plans Throughout Country Will Provide Work All Summer.

NEW YORK SPENDS MILLIONS

Bridges, Roads, Schools and Other Public Buildings Call for a Large Outlay.

FEWER NEW HOMES BUILT

But Federal Survey Shows an Increase in One-Family Houses as Apartments Fall Off.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Employment conditions are favorable in all parts of the country and construction work, which has been planned on a large scale, will provide work for all common labor during the Spring and Summer months, according to an industrial survey made public today by the Employment Service of the Department of Labor.

Construction work in New York State alone to be completed in 1925, it is stated, includes about 600 miles of new roads and repair jobs, to cost about $25,000,000. Appropriations have been made for preliminary work on the new tri-borough bridge in New York City, connecting Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens, which will cost about $30,000,000. Many other State projects are listed which in the aggregate will call for expenditures of additional millions.

The programs in other States, presented in the review, indicate great activity from coast to coast. Director Francis I. Jones takes a most optimistic view of the general employment situation and sees no danger ahead of serious depression.

Increased Demands for Labor.

An analysis of the reports, covering the month of April and the early days of May, says Mr. Jones, "indicates that there is no large amount of unemployment apparent in any section of the country," and "increased demands or all classes of labor were found to be general during the month of April."

The only disappointing feature of the major industrial group was found in the bituminous coal industry, where further reduction in employment occurred in the majority of the mining States.

"The encouraging feature," Mr. Jones adds, "is that many of the coal miners will be able to obtain employment on the farms and on the large road building projects now being carried on throughout the country."

The iron and steel industry was represented as eased up, "but not to any alarming extent." The textile industry is pictured as on the upward trend, and demands are reported as general for all classes of farm help. The building program is represented as broadening throughout the country, with practically no unemployment among the building tradesmen.

"A digest of the surveys of municipal, county and State improvements for 1925," the survey continues, "reveals a tremendous amount of general construction work scheduled for the year.

"Practically every city has extensive municipal improvement programs now under way. It is interesting to note that street paving, sewer extension and water development projects make up the major portion of the public work. However, the programs planned for the various cities include hospitals, court houses, county almshouses, building and improving of gas and electric heat and light stations and considerable park development work. All this means additional opportunity for employment."

In dealing with industrial employment conditions in New York the review says that slight recession was apparent in some lines during April, but in most plants the level of employment remained unchanged. Automobile and allied industries have reached a high rate of operations and are reported as employing additional skilled and semi-skilled workers.

New York Industry Active.

Rubber industries continue very active, with a number of plants operating overtime and increasing their forces. Operations in some mills and plants of the iron and steel industry in New York showed a slight recession in April, but a majority of the metal industries were found running at capacity.

In the larger cities of New York State factory labor, male and female, was reported well employed and the demands for farm help increasing. Plants manufacturing electrical equipment and the radio factories were busy, with labor fully employed.

The demand for unskilled labor increased in practically all sections of the State. The building industry showed a marked advance in April. In New York City manufacturing activity was reported as "slowly but steadily progressing toward nromal in several important lines, with a slight increase in employment during April."

Construction programs in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania were characterized as particularly large. In the course of a review of the plans in New York State this comment was made:

"Due to extensive building operations in connection with important public projects and the advent of an early Spring, employment in construction lines has increased. Unskilled hands out of work during the Winter months are rapidly finding employment.

"The State road program for 1925, now under way, includes 400 miles of new roads costing approximately $18,000,000, 300 miles of reconstructed roads to cost $15,000,000 and 275 miles of unfinished roads from the 1924 program costing about $15,000,000.

"The volume of State road work expected to be under way and completed during the coming months of 1925 will aggregate 600 miles, costing approximately $25,000,000.

"Appropriations have been made for preliminary work on the new tri-borough bridge in New York City connecting Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens, which will cost approximately $30,000,000; another bridge will span the Hudson to New Jersey at 178th Street and a $3,000,000 bridge will cross the tracks of the New York Central Railway system at 238th Street and Webster Avenue.

"In the Bronx fifteen public schools are in course of erection or terminal market at a cost of $7,000,000 is under way, and sewerage, street paving, water development and park improvements are going ahead.

"Municipal improvements in the boroughs of Manhattan, Kings, Queens and Richmond, consisting of sewerage construction, street widening and repaving, schools, hospitals, water development projects and several public buildings are under way, costing several millions of dollars.

"An extensive construction program is under way in Buffalo and vicinity."

Fewer New Homes Built in 1924.

Statistics collected by the Bureau of Labor Statistics for cities having a population of 25,000 and over show that of 269 cities reporting in 1923 with a population according to the 1920 census of 37,158,648, provided new dwelling facilities for 459,471 families, or at the rate of 123.7 to each 10,000 of population.

In 1924, the 274 cities reporting had a population, according to the 1920 census, of 37,329,841 and new housing accommodations were provided in these cities for 456,786 families, or at the rate of 122.4 to each 10,000 of population.

If the population for the specified year is used the ratio per each 10,000 of population was 115.7 in 1923 and 112.1 in 1924.

"It will be seen that fewer families were provided with new quarters in 1924 than in 1923," says the bureau.

"In 1924 permits were issued for new one-family dwellings to house 47 per cent. of the total number of families provided for in that year. In 1923 this percentage was 46 in the same 269 cities.

"There is a contrasting falling off in the percentage of families to be housed in apartment houses in 1924 as compared with 1923. Only 39.6 per cent. of the total family quarters planned for were in apartment houses this year, compared with 30.6 per cent in 1923."

The following figures on the number of families accommodated in new buildings during the past two years are given for four New York cities and Jersey City and Newark:

Mt. Vernon	470	1,316

GLENN FRANK TO HEAD WISCONSIN UNIVERSITY

Century Editor Will Give Up Magazine Work—Silent on Policies.

Glenn Frank, editor of the Century Magazine, announced last night through The Associated Press that he would accept the position of President of the University of Wisconsin.

He said that he would give up his position as editor of the magazine within a short time. He would not discuss what policies he would pursue in his new work. No definite time for his inauguration as President of the University has been set, nor has any successor on the Century Magazine been selected, he said.

Mr. Frank gave his acceptance to John Callahan, State Superintendent of Public Instruction of Wisconsin, and M. B. Olbrich of Madison, a member of the Board of Regents, who had been in New York for two days in consultation with him.

In declining to discuss policies of the university at this time Mr. Frank said that "the day has gone when the policies of a free university should be determined by the secret processes of the mind of a President. The policies of a free university must ultimately come from a sincere and sustained collaboration between the President, the members of the Board of Regents, the members of the Faculties, the students and, in a very real sense, the whole people of the State and all those who represent them. A really great State University must both express and serve the deepest needs of the last man and woman and child in the State. Such universities come out of a vast cooperative enterprise in which the whole State shares."

Mr. Frank said that he would be loyal to "the proposition that sound policy must grow out of honest and unhampered investigation of facts."

Since he is 38 years old, Mr. Frank will be one of the youngest university heads in the country. He succeeds Dr. Edward A. Birge. He has been Editor in Chief of the Century Magazine since 1921. A graduate of Northwestern University, he was for four years assistant to the President of that institution.

GET $100,000 IN HOLD-UPS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 20.—In two sensational raids in Loop office buildings today armed bandits obtained nearly $100,000 in jewelry and cash. One police theory is that the same "mob" committed both robberies.

After one of the robberies a bandit was captured by unarmed civilians following a chase down eleven flights of stairs, which ended in a desperate hand-to-hand encounter on a crowded sidewalk in front of the Heyworth Building, 29 East Madison Street.

The captured robber, who said he was Frank Monacco, 26 years old, was taken only after he had charged full tilt into an angry crowd of bystanders who were fighting with a second member of the bandit gang.

This second robber, who clutched in one hand a stolen wallet containing $30,000 in gems, managed to stagger to his feet and escape with the loot under cover of the excitement.

The victim of this robbery was Philip Altschul, a diamond broker, who has an office with Joseph Ed Fox and Wallace Langton in the Heyworth Building.

Monacco, with two companions, entered the office and inquired of Mr. Fox if Mr. Altschul was in. As Mr. Fox indicated Mr. Altschul by a wave of his hand the three men drew revolvers and ordered "Hands up!"

The robbers snatched one of two wallets filled with gems from Altschul's desk, and hastily through the pockets of the three men, getting $85 from Mr. Langton, and then began a retreat, holding their victims at bay.

C. F. Plowaty, a salesman, who happened to be in the office, suddenly struck one of the robbers who was trying to rifle his pockets, and with a startled yell the thief dropped his revolver and fled toward the stairway, his companions racing after him.

Four bandits entered the office of a jewelry merchant in the Capitol Building this morning, bound and gagged four men and escaped with $55,000 worth of uninsured, unset diamonds and a small amount of cash. Charles P. Goldberg of 93 Nassau Street, New York, was the heaviest loser. The raiders took $50,000 in gems belonging to him. A. Heinsius, in whose office the hold-up occurred, was robbed of $5,000 in jewels.

Boy, 10, Demands Long Pants As Witness in Murder Trial

The principal witness in a murder trial in the Kings County Court is a boy 10 years old, Joseph Santucci, of 187 Hester Street, who will testify for the prosecution about the slaying of Antonio Chisnesi, who died of a bullet wound in the home of Dominick Cerullo at 39 Withers Street, Brooklyn, on Jan. 16. Cerullo is being tried for the murder. Eleven jurymen were obtained yesterday before Judge R. L. Haskell.

The boy was the only person who saw the shooting, said Assistant District Attorney William Geoghan. He and Chisnesi visited Cerullo and the shot was fired soon after they entered a room. No motive for the crime has been discovered. The youthful witness made one condition for his debut in court. He asked the prosecutor to induce his parents to put him in "long pants" and his request was granted.

FAVOR ABOLISHING TRADE COMMISSION

SAY POLITICS RULES BOARD

Commissioner, Defending Secrecy Policy Before Business Men, Promises Fight in Court.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP).—Strong indications that an effort will be made at the next session of Congress to abolish the Federal Trade Commission came quickly today after Commissioner W. E. Humphrey had delivered an address challenging the right of the Senate to direct the commission to make investigations for its information.

Mr. Humphrey delivered his address before the United States Chamber of Commerce. Senator Borah, commenting on it, declared that "it seems to me that the best thing to do with the Federal Trade Commission is to abolish it."

Citing several Senate resolutions directing investigations not directly relating to alleged anti-trust law violations, Commissioner Humphrey announced that "the question of our jurisdiction" under such resolutions had been submitted to the Attorney General and that his opinion would be followed "until reversed by the courts."

Defends Change in Rules.

The Federal Trade Commission's recent changes in its rules of procedure were defended by the Commissioner, who appealed for the approval of the Chamber of Commerce. Opposition to the changes, which sharply restrict publicity to be given the commission's procedure and permit settlement of cases by stipulation without issuance of a complaint, was declared by Mr. Humphrey to come from "those who believe that these changes will prevent them from using the commission for personal and political purposes."

The changes in the commission's publicity rule have been consistently opposed by Commissioners Thompson and Nugent, Democratic members of the commission. Their opposition was based chiefly upon their belief that to restrict publicity in the commission's procedure would lead to "star chamber" proceedings and would give protection to dishonest business at the expense of those who wished to deal fairly with their competitors.

Mr. Humphrey declared that the Trade Commission act provided that the commission should have power, "upon the direction of the President or either house of Congress, to investigate and report the facts relating to any alleged violations of the anti-trust acts by any corporation."

Recalling that the Senate, but not the House, so far as he knew, had directed the commission to make certain investigations, he declared that "some of the resolutions that have been passed by the Senate, it seems to me, have gone far beyond our jurisdiction."

He spoke of resolutions by Senators La Follette, Republican, of Wisconsin; Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, and Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, of Minnesota, and asserted that "it is clearly apparent that the primal motive in all of them is political—to advance the personal fortunes of some person, party or class."

"However commendable such purpose may be," he added, "Congress in its infinite wisdom has not made it any concern of the commission, and neither does Congress in its boundless generosity put one penny of funds for such work.

"If the commission must respond to every resolution of either house of Congress, then it is entirely within the power of either house to control the commission's activities. Indeed it would be entirely within the power of either house to use the commission absolutely as a publicity bureau to spread such propaganda as the whim of the hour might dictate."

Borah Assails the Commission.

"It seems to me," he continued, "that these resolutions are about as wide as the English language and inclusive as the imagination. I do not very well understand how the commission can proceed to investigate everything under the sun that relates to a great industry, when no specific charges are made or evidence submitted, and when there is nothing that would give us reason to believe that such investigation would lead to the discovery that there was violation of the Anti-Trust act. Certainly, we have no power to compel the production of evidence under such resolutions.

"If I am right in my contention, then such resolutions are not within the power given by the act of Congress to the commission, and an attempt to carry them out would not only be without authority but would be in violation of law. It would be illegally expending public funds and an act that would be official misconduct, sufficient to warrant our dismissal."

Norris Favors Abolishing It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Coincidentally with Senator Borah's declaration today in favor of abolishing the Federal Trade Commission, Senator Norris of Nebraska also declared himself in favor of such legislation. The commission, he said, no longer serves the purpose for which it was created and can be of "no further benefit to the people of the country."

Senator Norris declared that, operating as a secret body, the commission cannot but fail to function in the interest of the people generally. He said that he would support at the next session of Congress any measure, the purpose of which will be to repeal the law creating the commission. The Nebraska Senator agreed with everything Senator Borah said and stated that the final blow at the commission was the nomination by President Coolidge, and the subsequent confirmation by the Senate, of William E. Humphrey of Washington to be a member of the commission.

It was Mr. Humphrey's appointment, Senator Norris declared, which made possible the change of policy which has been approved by Commissioners Van Fleet, Hunt and Humphrey, the Republican members of the commission, and protested by Messrs. Thompson and Nugent, the Democratic members.

The move to abolish the commission will have the solid support of the progressive and radical forces in the Senate and also, it is contended, a majority of the Democratic members. If this be true, a bill to put the commission out of business would appear to have a fair chance of passage in the Senate. Whether such a bill could clear the House is doubtful, however, as the Administration appears to have its forces well in hand at that end of the Capitol.

One-fourth of Trees in Central Park Dying; As Many Need Saving Quickly, Say Experts

There are no completely healthy trees in Central Park today except very young ones, those planted within two or three years, Park Commissioner Gallatin was informed yesterday by the staff of the Davey Tree Expert Company, which has been making an examination for a week or ten days. Moreover, the experts reported, the difficulty with the park trees was not the presence of poisonous gases, such as those from automobile exhausts, but simply lack of nourishment. The vitalizing elements of the soil have been consumed for several generations and nothing has been done to replace them.

The tree experts said signs of damage by gases were always plain, and they had found none of them in Central Park. They said sulphur dioxide was the gas which did most harm to trees, and their tests showed there was not half enough of it in the air to do harm. This gas, they said, is ten times more harmful than carbon monoxide, of which they could find no damaging traces. They said, however, they would continue tests to determine accurately just what is in the air of the Park.

The Davey men estimate there are about 10,000 trees in the Park. Excluding those recently planted, they say 50 per cent. of the park trees are on the borderland of decay, 25 per cent. can only be saved by heroic treatment, and 25 per cent. are in a stage of decay where nothing can save them.

Commissioner Gallatin has given the experts entirdy free rein to conduct their tests and suggest remedies. They selected yesterday 100 trees in various parts of the Park which have begun to decay and put them under treatment. They will take out the dead and decayed parts and by pruning will restore the balance between the tops and the roots. Then they will turn up the soil about them and begin to administer the nourishing elements needed for revival. They say results should begin to show within thirty or sixty days of the time they begin treatment.

The trees under special treatment are marked with a three-inch metallic disk carrying a number, located about twelve feet from the ground, on the south side of the tree. The experts in charge of the work are James A. G. Davey, Vice President of the company and brother of Congressman Davey of Kent, Ohio, its head; Professor C. M. Scherer, plant pathologist, and D. O. Grove, tree surgeon. They have seven of their own men with them, and Commissioner Gallatin has turned over to them a squad of park laborers.

The test comes as a result of Congressman Davey's recent declaration that Central Park trees were dying and could only be saved by immediate efforts. He has volunteered to demonstrate on the hundred selected trees what can be saved. Whether any further work will be done by his organization or any other depends on the attitude of the Park Department after the tests.

WOMAN ABDUCTED, HER AUNT WOUNDED

POLICE DOGS ON THE TRAIL

WINTHROP, Me., May 20 (AP).—A hound tonight went on the trail of a man who shot and wounded Mrs. Emma Towns early this morning, abducted her 35-year-old niece, Miss Aide Heyward, and then fired their Summer cottage on the shore of Maranacook Lake. The dog picked up the tracks of a man and a woman, which led to the top of a hill along Stanley Road.

The dog led the searchers to a barn attached to a house by a long shed. The house is located at the top of a hill on the Stanley Road just above the camp that was burned to the ground. State police were working on the theory that the girl's abductor took her to the barn, then to an automobile believed to have been waiting nearby.

An automobile seen on the Stanley Road this morning at about 4:30 o'clock with a girl asleep in the hood was found to belong to an insurance man, and it was proved that he had no connection with the crime.

A cap also was found near the cottage, and a name in the crown written in ink indicated that its owner might be an employe of a Mount Vernon dance hall. It also was learned that the name in the cap was identical with that of a prominent man in Boston financial circles.

And F. H. Moulton of Lexington, Mass., brother-in-law of the abducted woman, has telegraphed to this man asking if he had ever given such a cap to any one while on a vacation trip to Maine. Mr. Moulton has offered a reward of $1,000 for the rescue of Miss Heyward "dead or alive."

According to the story told by Mrs. Towns she and her niece returned late last night from Winthrop Village, and as they entered the door two shots were fired from within. Both bullets struck Mrs. Towns. She fell on a couch in a half-conscious condition and later heard the voice of a man telling Miss Heyward that if she would accompany him on a journey of fifty miles, no harm would come to her. She heard Miss Heyward ask:

"But what if my aunt should die?"

The man then came over and looked at her as she lay on the couch, Mrs. Towns said. Afterward he went upstairs and she heard him speaking of money. The next she realized was that she was alone in the house and it was on fire.

The fire was discovered about 3 o'clock this morning. Tracks were picked up, those of a man and a woman, and were followed over a hill for about a mile to Stanley Road where automobile tracks showed that a car apparently had been stopped at the side of the road.

WAS PROMISED $18,000 TO WED, SHE ASSERTS

Divorced Wife of C. H. Pope Sues, Saying He Failed to Meet Pre-Nuptial Agreement.

An agreement to pay his wife $18,000 a year as a consideration for marrying him, is alleged to have been made by Charles H. Pope, a cotton goods merchant, in a suit filed against him in the Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs. Sybilla R. Pope, who divorced him in Westchester County in 1922. She says that the sum sued for is due.

Mrs. Pope states in her complaint that the agreement was made on Oct. 12, 1909, and that on the following day they were married in London. She says a second ceremony was performed the following year at Stamford, Conn., and that although Pope's agreement to give her $1,500 a month was in writing, she has lost it and is unable to attach it to her complaint. She asked for no alimony under the Westchester County decree.

Prior to his marriage to the plaintiff, the merchant was divorced by Mrs. Florence Meagher Pope, who was married to Donald Brian, actor, in 1910. Mr. Pope filed a petition in bankruptcy last December, listing debts of $1,079,512 and assets of only $233. The chief liability, listed at $1,007,500, was a debt to Mrs. Pope on a contract made in 1922 to buy stock of C. H. Pope & Co. for which a receiver was appointed last October.

Detective Testifies Neuropath Accused Man Now on Trial.

The taking of testimony in the trial of John A. Vollmer, bankrupt radio dealer, charged with the murder of George A. Nielson, a neuropath, in his home at 140 Belleville Avenue, Newark, on May 6, 1924, began in the Criminal Court in Newark yesterday. Nielson was found in his home with his head badly battered and died in the City Hospital four days later. Vollmer, who was living in the house at the time, was arrested after a sledge hammer was found in the house. He was sent to the State Insane Asylum in Trenton, where at the end of seven months he was declared sane and returned to Essex County for trial.

The last witness of the day, Detective William Thomas, testified that on the day of the assault he went to visit Nielson in the hospital and asked him who attacked him. He said that Nielson answered "John," and that when he asked if Nielson meant Vollmer the injured man nodded his head in assent.

Mrs. Bertha Nielson, widow of the slain man, said that when she left for the country the day her husband was attacked she left Vollmer alone with him.

The State will rest its case today after introducing photographs of the room in which the attack took place.

NEW ARREST MADE IN SHEPHERD CASE

NEW GRAND JURY MEETS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 20.—An arrest and direct charges tonight followed several hours of investigation by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe of reported attempts to tamper with men called for jury service in the trial of William D. Shepherd on a charge of murdering his millionaire ward, William Nelson McClintock, by administering typhoid germs.

Mr. Crowe said at midnight that some one connected with the defense is attempting to fix the jury even before the members of it are selected. The charge was based on the assertions of Philip Barry, one of the veniremen.

The man arrested is said to have been a police investigator under a previous Administration and to be employed now by a law firm and a detective agency. The prosecutor's office withheld the man's name until the talesman who had named him could be brought down to face him. The talesman, Philip Barry, told the prosecutors that the man he named asked him to get on the jury and to use his influence for Shepherd.

"You look like a good fellow and we want you on the Shepherd jury," Barry quoted the man who had approached him as saying.

"This case is a cinch, anyway; it's going to blow up, and there will be no chance for your getting any trouble over it. We'll make it well worth while for you."

Barry, who formerly was with the Bureau of Identification of the Federal Department of Justice in Chicago, was excused from service on the jury this afternoon on the ground that he had formed an opinion concerning the case.

The arrest was made by Lieutenant Charles Egan. The men detained have been to the Criminal Courts Building on Tuesday, the day Barry said he was approached.

One was Arthur Byrne, an organizer for the Order of Owls and a special investigator for Stewart & O'Brien, Shepherd's lawyers.

Before he went into the jury room Byrne said that he had gone last Thursday to see Robert White, the State's witness whose disappearance brought on the inquiry when Mr. Crowe discovered it late yesterday. Byrne said he arranged for White to interview O'Brien. At this interview, Byrne said, a stenographer was present and took down a long statement from White. White disappeared on Friday.

Mr. Crowe said that he will investigate the entire Shepherd defense methods.

John E. Jones of the Jones, Inc., Detective Agency, 227 South La Salle Street, which has figured in the alleged attempt to kidnap Dr. George Fosberg, another of the State's witnesses, some time ago, was questioned.

Mrs. Sylvia Adams said White talked of a $25,000 bribe and a bungalow in Florida, which she said White said he had been offered if he would get out of Chicago until the Shepherd case should be tried.

Mrs. Adams alleged that White and his wife called at their home several weeks ago; that White told of the bribe offer before both herself and her husband. Her husband will testify tomorrow.

Meanwhile the court preliminaries went on. When the end of the day came twelve more men had been excused from jury service for cause.

Three more are now tentatively accepted by both the State and the defense. A fourth is under questioning. The four men are Ralph H. Sedgewick, 607 North Ninth Avenue, Maywood; Samuel E. Turley, Alfred Hera and A. Ross Hoyt.

Most of those excused today were rejected because they had a fixed opinion concerning the guilt or innocence of Shepherd.

PARIS, May 20.—The General Confederation of French Production in its monthly meeting today directed its representatives in the International Chamber of Commerce to submit to the Brussels Congress of that body next June the problem caused by the refusal of the United States customs authorities to admit the products of French firms which have refused to open their books to American customs agents.

Complaints made by members of the confederation describe the steps taken to acquaint the Foreign Affairs Ministry with its view that "intervention of foreign functionaries appears abusive and contrary to the principles of State sovereignty over its territories."

DUELL IS INDICTED IN LILLIAN GISH CASE

24 SEPARATE ACCUSATIONS

Charles H. Duell, lawyer and head of the motion picture producing concern of Charles H. Duell, Inc., was indicted yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury on charges of perjury alleged to have been committed by him during the course of the injunction suit instituted by his company against Miss Lillian Gish, the movie actress.

In the bill were three counts and twenty-four separate accusations. It is alleged that these numerous acts of perjury were committed in making false statements in the complaint in the injunction suit filed on Jan. 29 last, in affidavits submitted to the court and in testimony given by the defendant during the course of the trial.

Colonel William Hayward, former United States Attorney in this district, counsel for Mr. Duell, was notified on Tuesday that the indictment was coming and he was on hand with his client at noon in Judge Hand's court. Mr. Duell, well dressed and debonnaire, appeared to pay small attention to the proceedings. Colonel Hayward asked that the bail be small because his client was penniless and said that his services had been retained by the American Legion, which had asked him to conduct the defense. Bail was fixed at $1,000, which was agreed to by United States Attorney Buckner.

The statement that Mr. Duell was penniless caused some surprise, because he was supposed to have controlled much capital since launching Inspiration Pictures, Inc., which afterward became Charles H. Duell, Inc. The salary of Miss Gish, it was known, was $2,500 a week, and other players employed by Mr. Duell also were well paid.

May Not Be Tried Until Fall.

Explaining the financial condition of his client, Colonel Hayward said that in three years Mr. Duell had made Miss Gish and others rich and that later they turned upon him, drove him from the position as a successful producer of pictures, and deprived him of his business and his fortune.

Colonel Hayward said that he would be ready to go to trial as soon as he had an opportunity to study the mass of testimony taken at the trial of the injunction suit and the other papers in the case. Mr. Buckner said it was not to be a law firm case, but a detective agency. The prosecutor's office withheld the man's name until the talesman who had named him could be brought down to face him. The talesman, Philip Barry, told the prosecutors that the man he named asked him to get on the jury and to use his influence for Shepherd.

"You look like a good fellow and we want you on the Shepherd jury," Barry quoted the man who had approached him as saying.

"This case is a cinch, anyway; it's going to blow up, and there will be no chance for your getting any trouble over it. We'll make it well worth while for you."

CITY COUNCIL OPPOSES ROAD

New Rochelle Board Against Broad View Boulevard.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., May 20.—The New Rochelle City Council went on record today as being opposed to the construction of the Broad View Boulevard, which is one of the roadways to be established in lower Westchester County by the County Park Commission in promoting its $21,000,000 park extension program.

When the commission disclosed its plans a few weeks ago to construct the boulevard, extreme opposition materialized in the Wykagyl section, the Summer home of several wealthy New Yorkers, who own many large estates in the vicinity of the proposed improvement. It was pointed out by opponents of the boulevard that to permit its construction would mar the beauty of the neighborhood by establishing an outlet for traffic between Glen Island and New York.

Imprisoned for Bankrupt Plot.

Federal Judge A. N. Hand sentenced Moses Schipe, formerly President of the Myley Electrical Supply Company, to a year and a day in the Atlanta Penitentiary yesterday, after he was convicted of a conspiracy to conceal assets valued at $70,000. A few weeks before the Myley company became bankrupt the concern, it was alleged, issued a financial statement showing a surplus of about $75,000, and that large purchases were made within a short time of the bankruptcy. Judge Hand, in imposing sentence, said that the acts charged against the defendant indicated an intent to defraud creditors of the bankrupt corporation.

Boy Bags Rhinoceros On Hunt in Africa

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. King and their son, Ernest King Jr., 11 years old, of Winona, Minn., who have returned from the wilds of Africa bringing with them 400 cases of big game specimens for the University of Minnesota and the American Museum of Natural History, told yesterday of their adventures. Chief of these was the bagging of a rhinoceros by the youngest of the hunters. The youngster carried a Springfield 30-30 rifle and said he shot several of the important specimens.

Mrs. King, who killed several lions, is the champion shot of the American Northwest, having won many trophies at trap shooting.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Miss Agnes Simnick, 28 years old, of Riverdale, Ill., died this afternoon of wounds inflicted Tuesday night by a high school girl. The latter charged that Miss Simnick had stolen the affections of her father. The girl, Lucille Wunsch, 16, was questioned tonight by Coroner Wolff. An inquest has been called for tomorrow morning.

Miss Wunsch was arrested by Chief of Police Frank Stieman of Riverdale following the shooting and held at his home. The chief allowed nobody to talk with the girl pending the arrival of the coroner. Miss Wunsch was said to be hysterical.

Her parents, William Wunsch and Mrs. Bertha Wunsch, both were slightly wounded after the shooting of Miss Simnick. Both, however, declared their wounds were inflicted by an accidental discharge of a revolver while the father struggled to take it from his daughter.

For several months rumor had connected the names of Wunsch, who is employed by a manufacturing concern at Harvey and is a village trustee of Riverdale, and Miss Simnick. Mrs. Wunsch said today that she had warned both her husband and Miss Simnick.

Mrs. Wunsch said she and her daughter had discussed Miss Simnick, and Lucille told of being twitted by school companions. Mother and daughter agreed that Miss Simnick should be beaten in order to end the affair. Wunsch refused today to say he was in love with Miss Simnick.

Feared His Wife and Daughter.

Wunsch said that on his way home from a village board meeting Tuesday night he saw Miss Simnick and offered to take her home. Instead of going directly home they went joy riding, he said. After he had left her at her home he went to his own home and found nobody there. Fearing that his wife and daughter were seeking vengeance, he ran to Miss Simnick's home, he added.

As he neared the Simnick home, he heard shots, Wunsch said. He met Lucille, carrying the smoking revolver in her hand. Mrs. Wunsch was with her. Wunsch said he struggled with Lucille to get the revolver and it was fired, inflicting a flesh wound in his leg. The same bullet wounded Mrs. Wunsch in one foot.

The killing of Miss Simnick reunited Mr. and Mrs. Wunsch, both declared today at their home, a short distance from where Miss Simnick lived. They will act together now, they say, to help their daughter fight her case in court.

Lucille was not a seeker of the gay life of the village boys and girls, Mrs. Wunsch said. The girl, who was in her second year in Thornton High School, was popular among the students, it is said.

FOR 14TH TIME HEADS PLAYGROUNDS LEAGUE

National Association Re-elects Joseph Lee, the 'Father' of Its Movement.

Joseph Lee of Boston was elected President of the Playgrounds and Recreation Association of America for the fourteenth time yesterday at the annual meeting of the association in Town Hall. Mr. Lee is known as "the father of the playground movement." Others elected were Dr. John H. Finley of New York, First Vice President; William Kent of Kentfield, Cal., Second Vice President, and Robert Garrett of Baltimore, Third Vice President.

Among those who took part in the meeting were Mrs. Thomas A. Edison of West Orange, N. J.; Otto Mallery of Philadelphia, Pa.; Hugh K. Landon of Indianapolis, Miss Rosalind Wood of Boston, Mrs. Samuel McComb of Boston, Mrs. Harry Wilcox of Mount Vernon, John Cullen of Yonkers, S. H. Jackson of Barre, Vt., and Hugh Frayne and J. C. Walsh of New York.

S. H. Jackson, President of the Granite Association of the United States, told what he said was a hitherto unpublished story of the activities of Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison and John Burroughs. He said they came to a mine foreman one day several years ago after the mine had closed, and told him one of them, John Burroughs, wanted to take a rock specimen from the bottom of the mine. The foreman told them it would be risky, but one of them, whom Major Jackson identified as Thomas A. Edison, said:

"Oh, what's the difference. There will be exercise, and science may be benefited."

Thereupon, Major Jackson said, they "swung out over eternity and descended into a deep granite mine in a grout-box suspended by a treacherous cable." They got their specimen.

In the discussion it was urged that physical education be made compulsory in the schools of all the States. Only thirteen now have it on that basis, although thirty-three have voluntary systems.

WELLESLEY PUNISHES 32.

Will Not Permit Girl Smokers to Go Outside Until Term Ends.

WELLESLEY, Mass., May 20 (AP).—Because they broke the College Government Association edict against smoking, thirty-two Wellesley College girls are on parole and will not be allowed outside the campus limits until the end of this term.

Two weeks ago the association, composed of students and several faculty advisers, appealed to the student honor system and demanded that all girls who had been smoking report themselves.

One entire dormitory, where the evidence of smoking was said to be strongest, was placed on probation until the smokers confessed. Of them thirty-two admitted breaking the rule; five confessed to smoking inside the college limits.

EDGE BACKS M'CRAN FOR GOVERNORSHIP

PRAISES HIS RECORD

Attributes Insidious Efforts to Defeat Him for Nomination to Prejudice.

Making his first appearance as a stump speaker in the campaign for the selection of a Republican candidate for Governor of New Jersey, United States Senator Walter E. Edge said at a dinner of the Ward Republican Club in Jersey City last night that he thoroughly approved of the candidacy of Thomas F. McCran, former Attorney General.

Declaring that the first interest in the campaign for Republicans was the selection of a man who would be elected as a Republican Governor, Senator Edge ridiculed reports of "Edge dictation."

Turning to the qualifications of the candidates for the nomination, he said:

"My best judgment, freely and unqualifiedly expressed, is that Thomas F. McCran is the strongest candidate that the Republican Party can, at this time, present to all the voters of New Jersey. Of course, if I had expressed the opinion that Mr. Whitney (another candidate) was the strongest in the field; I would in certain circles have been hailed as the most astute party leader on record."

Referring to the necessity for firm leadership with the battle on, the Senator said: "A word about our candidate. To me this is the most remarkable campaign in which I have ever participated. McCran's strongest opponents admit his superior qualifications. You can't talk to any man or woman in the State, some of them apparently bitterly arrayed against McCran, and ask them if his service to the State of New Jersey from the day he was elected to the Assembly in 1910 until a year ago when he finished his term as the highest law officer in the State, has been exceeded by another public servant without receiving their unhesitating answer 'No.'

"Then why should there be any question of his nomination? In my mind there is not any question of his nomination, in view of his unchallenged record, but the insidious efforts made to defeat him, for reasons they dare not publicly state, are contemptible and indefensible and will be triumphantly resented by the red-blooded citizenship of New Jersey. This is no time for prejudice."

The remarks of the Senator on "insidious attacks" against McCran were understood to have been made with reference to veiled attacks on McCran because of his religion.

BLUE-EYED SUSPECT HELD.

Said to Have Robbed Two Women of Jewelry.

Robert Wolfeld, 23 years old, who said he was the son of a well-to-do furrier, was held without bail for examination tomorrow by Magistrate Edward Weil in the Morrisania Court yesterday on suspicion of having robbed two women in their homes. The young man, who was arrested in the presence of his bride of four months in their apartment at 807 Riverside Drive the night before, was said by the police to have been identified as the "man with the peculiar blue eyes" who had held up Mrs. Birdie Schneble and her maid in the Schneble apartment at 100 Washington Avenue in the afternoon and escaped with $3,000 in jewels after locking Mrs. Schneble in a closet.

Detectives McCoy and Ornstein who arrested him, said that Wolfeld had admitted the Schneble hold-up and was wearing the band of a $3,800 diamond ring, which Mrs. Schneble said the robber had forced from one of her fingers. He had admitted, they said, selling the diamond of the ring for $1,650, which was found in his pockets.

The detectives added that Wolfeld likewise confessed to the theft of jewelry from Mrs. Bertie Haber in her home at 640 West 180th Street on April 21. Wolfeld, however, pleaded not guilty.

RAID NETS $6,000 IN OPIUM.

Federal Agents Arrest Six Men After Buying a Can of the Narcotic.

Six men were arrested and twenty cans of opium, valued at $6,000, were seized last night by two Federal Narcotic Squard agents in a raid on the house at 186 Ninth Avenue after the agents had bought one can of opium from a man said to be a member of the gang.

The opium, according to the agents, was brought here from Germany on the yacht America, which, they said, was formerly the property of the German Kaiser.

Detectives Manning and Pacetta, the Federal agents, said they had negotiated with Karl Parker of 186 Ninth Avenue for the purchase of $20,000 worth of opium and that in accordance with an agreement he brought them one can as a sample for $140. He was followed, the agents said, to the Ninth Avenue house, and after he was arrested the detectives went there and got five other men and the twenty cans of opium.

PARIS, May 20.—The most brilliant musical social event of the Paris season occurred tonight at the opening performance of the American-Italian-French Opera Company under the direction of Paul Longone. The opera given was "Amore Del Tre Re," by Italo Montemezzi, orchestra conducted by Roberto Moranzoni.

Mary Garden sang the rôle of Fiora, her first appearance in Paris in seven years, and was obliged to respond to countless curtain calls by an enthusiastic audience of the American and Italian colonies and French society. Miss Garden shared the honors with Virginio Lazzari and Fernand Anseau, while the composer sat in a box.

America is represented in this company, whose season here will be three weeks, by Mary Garden, Charles Hackett, Queena Mario, Lucille Chalfent, Yvette Rugel, Irving Jackson and Vanda Nomicos and Conductor Henry Weber. Following the performance a large reception was given at the Ritz Hotel by Mrs. Florence Millhiser. Among the guests were Miss Louise Van Dyke, Mr. and Mrs. Berry Wall, Nesimova, Lucretia Bori, Elvira Hidalgo and Giuseppe De Luca.

VIENNA, May 20.—Mme. Jeritza figured in another unpleasant episode at the opera last night, but there were no casualties. The diva, after the culminating scene of "Cavalleria Rusticana," became displeased at Piccaver's manner and refused to appear a second time before the curtain. Piccaver thereupon appeared alone and the outburst of applause was much stronger than before. Jeritza considered this a demonstration against her, which it probably was.

When Piccaver returned behind the curtain Jeritza greeted him with sarcastic remarks, but he simply said: "With me you won't pick a quarrel." He then locked himself in his dressing room, and when Manager Schalk sent for him he said: "I can't supply a pretext for my discharge."

Jeritza bitterly complained to the director that Piccaver had sabotaged her success by not giving cues and not throwing her down, as the rôle demanded.

Most papers comment unfavorably on Jeritza's irritability. Piccaver has left the Vienna opera to go to America on account of the quarrel.

CONCERT GIVEN IN A GARDEN

Fine Program Under Auspices of Society for the Control of Cancer.

The American Society for the Control of Cancer gave a concert yesterday afternoon in the garden at 277 Park Avenue. A representative audience filled the chairs in the centre of the enclosed garden and listened to a capital program of music. It began with a number by two Scotch pipers, led by Major Angus Fraser. Then came a selection of Russian songs by the Kilpatrichi Russian Choir. Miss Dorothy Hoyle was much applauded for her violin group, and Miss Helena Lanvin's fine voice carried splendidly in two French arias.

Dr. Howard C. Taylor, President of the society, gave a short talk on the society's work, the prevalence of cancer and its cure. During the intermission tea was served and the Scotch pipers entertained the guests.

The second part of the program introduced Robert O'Connor, pianist; Miss Helen Stover, a charming soprano, and Rafael Diaz, tenor of the Metropolitan, who delighted his hearers with an operatic aria and lesser numbers. The Russian choir and the Scotch pipers closed the musical portion of the afternoon.

SOTHERN TO ACT AGAIN.

Will Be Under the Direction of David Belasco Next Season.

E. H. Sothern, it was announced yesterday, will return to the stage next season under the direction of David Belasco.

"I consider Mr. Sothern," said Mr. Belasco, "the leading exponent of the drama of the legitimate school. He approached his stage humble as a student and let nothing turn him aside from his great ambition. Now he stands at the top of his ladder, talented—at the height of his power—and fitted as few are ever fitted to give his public a true interpretation of any rôle he essays."

Mr. Sothern's plans, Mr. Belasco said, will be announced within a fortnight.

Adesdi Chorus Sings.

The Adesdi Chorus, directed by Miss Margarite Desseff, appeared at Chickering Hall last evening. Miss Angela Diller was at the piano and Franklin Fitzsimons, Benjamin Sunlin and Louis Kaufman were the assisting artists. The chorus of women's voices made an excellent impression in several numbers, among them Palestrina's "Crucifixus," three sacred songs by Brahms, four romances by the same composer and a three-part accompanied "Motette," by Mendelssohn, and two songs by Elgar.

The voices were fresh and tuneful and they followed the beat of the conductor with earnest attention to detail. Franklin Fitzsimons, bass, was heard in a group of German Lieder.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Mah Or Devil" opens at the Broadhurst Theatre tonight.

Marie Saxon, of the cast of "My Girl," and Sime Silverman, son of Sime Silverman, publisher of Variety, will be married on May 31, at the Hotel Roosevelt.

"Abie's Irish Rose" will reach its 1,824d performance at the Republic Theatre tonight, thus establishing a new long run record for America. The former record was 1,291 performances, held by John Golden's "Lightnin'." "Abie's Irish Rose" opened at the Fulton Theatre on May 23, 1922.

The proceeds of last Sunday's and the coming Sunday's performances of the "Garrick Gaieties" will be devoted to the Actors Fund.

"Charley's Aunt" will be revived at a theatre, whose name is as yet unannounced, during the week of June 1 by Herman Lieb.

Bobby Folsom, Tess and Betty Healy, Jed Dooley and Audree, Oscar Lafrain, Adele Neff, Dave Chasen and Kathryn Ray have been engaged for the cast of "Who Cares?" soon to be produced by Earl Carroll. The music has been written by Harold Orlob.

The run of Sheridan's "The Critic," at the Neighborhood Playhouse, will be continued until Sunday night, June 7.

SCREEN NOTES.

Three hundred crippled children from Bellevue Hospital were guests of the Mark Strand management yesterday afternoon, when they saw Johnny Hines in "The Crackerjack" and "Ballet's Race to Noise." Mr. Hines himself is to be present at the Mark Strand Theatre at 9 o'clock this evening.

Mrs. B. S. Moss and her daughter, Miss Beatrice Moss, are leaving aboard the Leviathan for two months' vacation in Europe. Mr. Moss was to have accompanied them, but he is held here by important business engagements.

Richard A. Rowland, general manager of First National Pictures, Inc., will give a tea dance tomorrow afternoon in Sherry's in honor of Corinne Griffith. Miss Griffith is in New York on a short holiday.

SAYS NEW YORK FAILS TO KNOW ITS NEGROES

Father O'Keefe, in Conference at City Hall, Declares Most of Race Worthy Citizens.

The second meeting of the sixteenth annual Conference of Charities and Corrections was held in the aldermanic chamber at City Hall last night with "Social and Economic Questions Among the Negroes in New York City" as its topic. Lawson Purdy opened the meeting and a letter of welcome from Mayor Hylan was read. Mrs. Willard Parker Jr., Vice President of the Federation of Agencies Caring for Protestant Children, presided over the meeting.

The speakers were Mrs. Gertrude MacDougal, assistant principal of P. S. 89, James H. Hubert, executive secretary of the New York Urban League, the Rt. Rev. Monsigner Thomas M. O'Keefe, pastor of the Church of St. Benedict the Moor, and Dr. Kelly Miller, dean of Howard University, Washington, D. C.

Father O'Keefe said the people of New York do not know their negro fellow-citizens because they judge the entire race from a few offensive members. Newspapers are offenders, he said, in helping spread the idea that the negro is "either a low offender against the laws of God and man or a good-natured buffoon." He said the majority of negroes are law-abiding, worthy citizens.

Dean Miller said the migration of the negro here will continue, as well as that from the South to the North, as long as he feels there are more satisfactory industrial and social advantages. He said he believed the negro was better off in the country than in the city, but that the race as a whole could not be persuaded of that.

"The negro in the Northern cities," he said, "has the advantage of educational equality, perhaps his most valuable privilege. He is taught in the schools under the best instruction provided for any one. I believe that will lead to the future leaders of the race arising in the North.

"The negro will never reach in the cities a number large enough to compete with white labor, and that will make his lot better."

Spark From Anvil Starts Fire That Frightens 200 in Fireworks Plant.

Two workmen were burned, one seriously, yesterday in a fire which followed explosions in four powder shacks in the plant of the Consolidated Fireworks Company at 1,208 Richmond Avenue, Graniteville, S. I. The explosions frightened 200 workers in the packing house of the plant, more than half of them women. Reserves were called to restore order.

The first explosion was caused by a spark from an anvil. Anthony Ganyn, 17 years old, of Port Richmond, was working at the anvil near the door of a powder shack. As he struck it with a hammer the spark flew in the door. There was a flash and a roar, and as Ganyn rushed in to try to put out the flames he was burned on the face and body.

The sparks scattered into the three other powder shacks near by and in quick succession came three more explosions and the shacks burst into flames. Archibald Esker of 84 Trask Avenue, Bayonne, who was working near one, was burned on the foot.

The sound of the explosions and the sight of the flames drove out the workers in the packing house. The plant fire apparatus meanwhile had been called into action and two fire alarms for the city apparatus were sounded. The crowd of workers hindered the fighting of the blaze until the police reserves arrived.

The firemen managed to keep the flames from spreading to other buildings and had them under control in about an hour. The damage was estimated at $40,000. The two injured men were taken to Staten Island Hospital. It was said that Esker would be able to leave the hospital today, but that Ganyn's condition was serious.

She Will Sail Saturday With Miss Belle Baruch—Will Seek Rest, Avoiding Receptions.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP).—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson will sail on Saturday from New York to spend the Summer motoring in Southwestern Europe. She will be accompanied by Miss Belle Baruch of New York, daughter of Bernard M. Baruch, wartime Chairman of the War Industries Board and one of the intimates of the late President Wilson.

Although Mrs. Wilson wanted to avoid public notice of her vacation trip, news of it leaked out when she got her passport today at the State Department. Although she has made all of her plans to motor leisurely through France, and possibly Belgium and Italy, as privately and with as little notice as possible, she will necessarily travel over much of the same ground where she witnessed stirring scenes with her husband when he made his notable swing of the allied capitals during the Peace Conference and was acclaimed with such remarkable demonstrations.

With the exception of a brief visit to Geneva, seat of the League of Nations, in August, there will be nothing in Mrs. Wilson's visits to give opportunity for any reception of even semi-official character, and it is her intention to carry out her vacation plan with the sole object of rest and recreation. She may visit England before returning home in the Fall.

Westchester Road to Abandon Line.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 20 (AP).—The New York, Westchester & Boston Railway Company was authorized to abandon its unconstructed route from White Plains to Danbury and Brewster in an order issued today by the Public Service Commission. At the same time the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company received permission to construct a new double track route from Larchmont to Mamaroneck for leasing to the New York & Westchester Company as part of its plan to extend operations to Port Chester.

HOLD FIRST RALLY FOR MONTICELLO

EXPECT 5,000,000 VOTES

Miss Bloomfield Leads With 45,000 in the Pilgrimage Contest.

Governor Lee S. Trinkle of Virginia addressed the first rally of nominees and sponsors in the campaign to make Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson, a shrine of patriotism last night at Town Hall.

Senator Royal S. Copeland also spoke, and Mary Brian, motion picture star, presented a bouquet of roses to Governor Trinkle, with a pledge that the young women candidates would "see it through." Paul W. Bartlett, the sculptor, who heads a committee of citizens in France organized by him to receive the delegates sailing from here on July 4 on the Jefferson educational pilgrimage, was present.

During the day the Virginia Light Infantry Blues of Richmond stopped off on their way home from a reunion in Hartford, Conn., and visited the Jefferson Centennial Committee at its headquarters in the Liggett Building. Franklin Simon, the Chairman, also gave a luncheon at the Mid-Day Club with Governor and Mrs. Trinkle and Stuart Gibboney, President of the Jefferson Memorial Foundation, among his guests.

Miss Myrtle Bloomfield still holds first place with 45,000 votes. Miss Marie G. Jones, nominee of the Department of Plant and Structures, rose from fifteenth place on the list of candidates to second on the list. The final tally of votes cast yesterday showed 52,355, or a grand total to date of 403,776.

Brooklyn organized yesterday to support the candidacy of Mrs. Kathryn J. Smith of the Department of Parks, immediately bidding for the title of "Miss Liberty," which will be conferred on the leader of the New York delegation on the pilgrimage.

Mr. Simon said yesterday he is positive now that five million votes will be cast before the pilgrimage election closes in June.

EDISON PESSIMISTIC OVER FUTURE OF RADIO

At Macy's Electrical Show He Says Static Never Can Be Eliminated —At Work on 30 Inventions.

Thomas A. Edison, who was one of the guests at the electrical exposition at R. H. Macy & Co., was somewhat pessimistic yesterday over perfection in the future of radio.

"Radio fans," he declared, "can never hope for the total elimination of static. It can't be tuned out, at least not until we can stop rainstorms."

The inventor, however, was more optimistic regarding the talking machine, which, he said, has not yet reached the maximum of development. But he saw no commercially profitable future for talking motion pictures and for color motion pictures.

"Talking takes away all the illusion and spoils many scenes that would otherwise be effective," he said.

Mr. Edison was accompanied by Arthur Williams, Vice President of the Edison Company, and seemed particularly interested in the exhibits of electrical household appliances. He disclosed he was at work on thirty new inventions, but none of them, he said, was a household utensil.

"They are so very easy to make," he said, "but there will be continued development in this and in all other electrical fields."

OBJECTS TO PROGRAMS, HALTS STATION WFBH

WFBH, the radio station conducted on the roof of the Hotel Majestic by the Concourse Radio Corporation, was put out of commission last night when Copeland Townsend, director of the hotel, who had objected to the station's program, had the electric current cut off, so that no further broadcasting could be effected there.

Mr. Townsend, through his attorneys, Hutchins & Todd, had served notice on the Concourse Radio Corporation, to which he rented space, that unless the programs were improved immediately the hotel would enforce the terms of its contract with the broadcasters permitting it to discontinue electric power.

The lawyers and Mr. Townsend pointed out that complaints against the station's programs had come from radio fans, who seemed to believe WFBH was operated by the hotel.

"The Hotel Majestic had nothing to do with the operation or management of station WFBH and had no interest in it whatever other than that existing between landlord and tenant," said Mr. Townsend. "We cut off the power when we got no satisfaction from the tenants."

Dr. E. John Dolan, President of the Concourse Radio Corporation, and Stephen J. Flynn, Secretary, were not at their offices last night, but the latter said Saturday that the hotel's objection related to the "House of Health" talks, to which, he said, the New York County Medical Association had objected.

DRIVE ON VILE MAGAZINES.

Prosecutors Act in Many Cities Throughout the Country.

CHICAGO, May 20 (AP).—A widespread drive against salacious magazines is indicated in reports from cities throughout the country.

Ten popular priced magazines were ordered withdrawn from sale in Washington last week. District Attorney Gordon acting as censor at the request of newsdealers after prosecution had been threatened.

County prosecuting attorneys of Washington State are planning a statewide fight against indecent publications and have called a meeting for Friday at Spokane to discuss the situation. Twenty magazines have been barred from news stands at Spokane.

At Omaha County Attorney Beal referred to Federal authorities complaints of high school teachers against salacious periodicals.

Acting on a request from Federal Judge J. H. Wilkerson at Chicago, James A. O'Callaghan, Assistant Federal Attorney, began a drive here to rid the mails and news stands of such publications. In a communication to the Postmaster General at Washington he named about twenty publications, with a circulation of nearly a million.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP).—District Attorney Gordon served notice today on Washington news stands owners that he had added sixteen magazines to his previous list of ten whose sale will be banned here. All of the publications are of the "humorous" and "art" types.

PARK MUSIC BACKERS TO BROADCAST WORK

The Citizens' Committee, which has led the fight for the restoration of the Goldman band concerts in Central Park, announced yesterday it had obtained headquarters in the Hotel Majestic, Seventy-second Street and Central Park West, which it will use for weekly meetings and other purposes, beginning next Monday night. In addition, radio Station WFBH, which is located on the roof of the hotel, will broadcast each Monday evening before the committee's meeting a review of the week's work for the park concerts and a forecast of developments in the movement.

The sponsors of the organization are indignant at statements that their work has a political aspect. They emphasized yesterday that it was made up entirely of music lovers anxious for the continuance of the Goldman concerts and that "they cannot be made into politicians."

In memory of Elkan Naumburg, donor of the music stand in the Mall in Central Park, his sons, Walter W. Naumburg and George W. Naumburg, have donated four orchestral concerts this Summer for that place. Announcement was made of these concerts yesterday by the Park Board as supplementary to the program already announced by the Mayor's Committee on Music. The elder Naumburg's custom of donating orchestral concerts on holidays will be adhered to, the dates set being Decoration Day, July 4 and Labor Day, with July 31 added as the anniversary of Mr. Naumburg's death. The first two concerts will be played by Hugo Riesenfeld's orchestra and the second two by Franz Kaltenborn's orchestra.

Three Dances in the Autumn.

Mrs. E. Roland Harriman, Mrs. Henry J. Whigham, Miss Beatrice Gordon Pratt, James A. Blair, Jr. and Frank Crowninshield, organizers of a proposed set of late-season dances, found that so many of their friends were going abroad or leaving for country places that it would not be practicable to proceed with arrangements. Therefore it has been considered best to hold the dances, three in number, in the Autumn. They will take place in the tapestry room of the Park Lane. The dates chosen for the Spring meetings were May 25, June 1 and 8.

WIDE BONDHOLDING CALLED A BULWARK

E. H. H. Simmons, in Texas Speech, Welcomes Distribution of Business Shares.

Stock Exchange Head Emphasizes the Menace These Have for Sound Business.

Special to The New York Times.

HOUSTON, Texas, May 20.—Public participation and ownership in the large units of American business is its best bulwark, E. H. H. Simmons, President of the New York Stock Exchange declared in an address today before the Texas State Bankers' Association convention here.

Two thousand bankers heard Mr. Simmons. They represent rural small towns and big city banks of the State as well as security houses. In addition, many of the most prominent bankers in the country are here.

Speakers today held out a promise of the greatest era of prosperity in history for Texas, dwelling particularly on farm, oil and manufacturing development and the improvement in the cattle industry. Mr. Simmons, in his talk, declared that apparently we are coming into a period when the average American will be a capitalist and security owner as well as an employe.

In part Mr. Simmons said:

"In recent years a very fundamental and remarkable change has been going on in the actual ownership of the major business corporations of this country. Year after year the number of their shareholders has been rapidly increasing, the large holdings of their stock by individuals have been diminishing, and their shares have been more and more widely distributed among the American public. So far, in fact, has this tendency toward public participation and ownership in the large units of American business proceeded that today it would be absurd to voice the fears of the growing size of our corporations which many far-sighted Americans expressed only twenty years ago.

Increase in Bondholders.

"Last year the largest American utility corporation, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, was owned by something like 350,000 different stockholders; our largest industrial company, the United States Steel Corporation, was similarly owned by about 100,000 separate individuals; and one of our largest railway companies, the Pennsylvania, had on its books some 140,000 different stockholders.

"There is every indication, too, that this same process whereby the stock in large American corporations is being each year distributed among a greater and greater number of people, is still continuing and will continue with, if anything, increasing force.

"Twenty years ago it used to be possible to speak of the 'bloated bondholder,' since bondholders at that time were so few that their average wealth was very high. Today, almost everyone has become familiar with bond investments, and the total number of bondholders in this country has multiplied enormously. The significance of this much wider distribution of corporate securities is that finance no less than business in this country has been vastly democratised and that the ownership of our large business enterprises has been distributed through all classes and all sections of our population.

"There have been several fundamental causes for this rapid and widespread distribution of corporate securities over the last ten years. As bankers, I have no doubt that you are all thoroughly familiar with them. Today I merely wish to stress the dependence of this movement upon the efficient marketing facilities of the New York Stock Exchange as the principal capital market of this country, and in some respects of the world.

"It has not, of course, been due primarily to the Stock Exchange that our present class of small American investors have been created. Yet without the machinery and the services made available to the public by the Stock Exchange, as well as the many protective features afforded the investor by the Exchange, the astonishing diffusion of security ownership in the past ten years would have been impossible of achievement.

Threat of Financial Fraud.

"Speaking of the eradication of financial fraud, Mr. Simmons said:

"One basic reason for the need of stamping out financial frauds of every sort is because they so constantly and so gravely threaten our public and private credit, as well as the entire credit machinery of the country.

"I need not remind this audience of bankers that most financial transactions have long since ceased to depend upon payments in specie or even paper money, and that the deposit-credit transferred by check and issued by our banks has become to a very large extent the actual currency of the land. The far-sightedness with which American bankers have developed this economical and efficient practice of paying by check is in strong contrast to the old-fashioned methods still followed in Europe, where for such purposes actual bank notes are generally used. * * *

"As it stands, our credit system more or less supposes that all men are honest and will not attempt to abuse it. Indeed, were this not the situation in the average case, as I have pointed out, no such system could have been developed or could be long maintained. Unfortunately, the fact remains that not all men are honest, and in consequence possible misuses and perversions of the many existing forms of credit must be seriously reckoned upon and as far as possible obviated, especially by those of us who are professionally engaged in the almost exclusive business of buying, selling and handling credits.'

The swindler injures not merely the credulous and the uninformed in financial matters. He strikes a deadly blow at the entire basis of our necessary and indispensable business. Whether we desire it or not, we occupy the highly responsible though unofficial position of trustee for the credit conditions in this country, and neither for our own sake nor that of the nation as a whole can we afford to allow the trickery and dishonesty of the financial swindler to long keep any foothold in the financial business of the United States."

The directors of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Company, meeting yesterday at Cleveland, declared the regular quarterly dividends. SEES MENACE TO GAS COS.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 20.—Henry L. Doherty, speaking at the twentieth annual meeting of the Natural Gas Association today, said that the increased used of artificial gas for house heating is creating a serious problem for gas companies under present operating conditions.

The Winter demand for gas, he declared, is sometimes four times as great as the Summer consumption, with a fluctuation as great as 25 to 33 per cent. from day to day, making the operating problems difficult and expensive.

"We must get this house-heating load under proper conditions and with customers paying for whatever demand they occasion," he said. "Under our present rate system, however, and uncontrolled, this load is becoming a serious menace to the gas companies."

WANTS TO TAX PIERS.

Hoboken Mayor Would Return Them to German Lines.

Nearly one hundred municipal and court officials who inspected the Hoboken waterfront yesterday morning were asked by Mayor Patrick Griffin during a luncheon aboard the S. S. Muenchen of the North German Lloyd Line, to cooperate in urging Congress to restore the Hoboken piers to the German steamship lines, which owned them before the war.

Mayor Griffin declared that the City's finances were in a "lamentable state" because of the loss of taxes formerly derived from the steamship piers. Much additional revenue formerly derived from persons landing from German steamers in Hoboken was also being lost, he said.

The inspection was made by the party as guests of twenty-four members of the Grand Jury in Hoboken, who were recently charged by Supreme Court Justice James Minturn to investigate conditions on the piers.

FISHER'S ISLAND PROJECT.

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 20.—The Fisher's Island Corporation, the outgrowth of the Fisher's Island Farms Company, is being heavily financed by M. M. Buckner, Vice President of the City Bank and Trust Company of New York.

The $1,000,000 project will include not only new golf links and a 300-room hotel but also a new wharf and harbor facilities for the use of pleasure yachts and the building of good automobile roads across the island.

It is said that the minimum value of residences to be constructed in the new development will be $20,000. It is planned to have the links and hotel completed next Summer.

About 150 workmen of the Connecticut Engineering and Construction Company of Norwich are engaged in preliminary work.

To Dedicate City Cancer Institute.

Commissioner Bird S. Coler, Dr. Isaac M. Levin and others will speak at the laying of the cornerstone of the new building of the New York City Cancer Institute of the Department of Public Welfare, on Welfare Island, this afternoon at 4 o'clock. This is the first building erected by any municipality for the sole treatment of patients suffering from cancer.

Stresemann Organ in Merger.

BERLIN, May 20 (AP).—Foreign Minister Stresemann's personal organ, Die Zeit, will be merged with the Taegliche Rundschau on June 1. As the latter newspaper represents moderate Conservative tendencies, the Left wing of the People's Party will be without an active mouthpiece. As a newspaper enterprise Die Zeit failed to measure up to the expectations of its promoters.

GERMANY LEARNING TO DO WITHOUT BEER

FEWER USERS OF TOBACCO

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MUNICH, April 20.—There are very few Americans here and no English because traveling is too dear. The second-class fare is 3½ cents a mile. The majority of the people travel third or fourth class because they cannot afford the high rates for second and first. Hotel charges have become very high since the country went on the gold basis.

I have not seen a stout man or woman in Munich nor a woman, young or old, wearing make-up or using a powder box in a public place or conveyance. Women dress simply but neatly, with skirts rather high to save material. They walk through the streets quickly and there are few dawdlers. The bicycle has become popular since the war and hundreds are to be seen in the streets. Boys and girls ride machines with wooden wheels and frames. The riders take delight in getting among the surface cars and automobiles in the main avenues, to the great annoyance of the policemen who are supposed to regulate traffic.

The passport examinations at the German frontier have been much simplified during the last twelve months and everywhere officials are obliging.

Dr. E. Simon, President of the Munich Chamber of Commerce, informed me yesterday that business conditions in Germany were not good. "The chief reason," he explained, "is that there is very little money in the country. Those who have capital will not invest it at the present time when materials have to be imported at high prices. Our steel mills are working on short time because the Government cannot give the private concerns any orders for railways, locomotives and public works. They had orders which were canceled by the management of the State railroads for economy and to pay the moneys stipulated in the Dawes plan.

"The steel industry is 2 per cent. better than last year and the textile manufacturers are having a little boom in spring goods after several weeks of depression. The big retail stores have to sacrifice their goods frequently at a loss to pay their taxes. They have not sufficient capital to carry them over, and that is the trouble throughout the country. In the County of Munich, which includes a radius of fifty miles, there are 43,617 males and 1,390 females unemployed at the present time."

"Do you think that the Dawes plan has been beneficial for Germany?" he was asked.

"Well, it was a basis to start upon to stabilise the currency. Things are better in Germany since the mark was brought back to the gold standard. If Germany could borrow sufficient capital at a moderate rate of interest to invest in merchandise or raw materials and making loans to the manufacturers I feel confident we should be able to go ahead and start regaining our trade. Two Powers want us to purchase goods of all kinds from them, but will not do anything to help Germany in return. Russia and the Balkans were big buyers in our markets and now are practically closed to us. Beer was exported from Munich in shiploads to all parts of the world before the war. Today the trade is very small, as the Balkan countries, Italy and Holland have acquired the art of brewing their own beers, and the United States and Russia, two of our largest customers, do not import any at all.

"It is very difficult to say just what is going to happen in the near future. Europe is short of money. That is the great trouble which has to be faced by the various Governments, and the question will be how to keep their people clothed and fed sufficiently well to prevent the spread of the Soviet doctrines which are being circulated everywhere by the agents of the Communists sent out from Moscow, who are well supplied with gold for the purpose of bribery. The masses of the people in Europe at the present time are undernourished, which will have its effects on the coming generation. The United States is the only country that has the money to save Europe financially, commercially and politically."

When asked if he thought that Germany would meet her reparation payments he replied that the people were willing to do so, but it was impossible to raise such enormous sums of money annually for thirty-two years. He did not think Bavaria would ever return to the monarchial form of government because the people had adopted democratic habits and liked them.

Robert D. Murphy, Acting United States Consul General, who has been here three years, was of the opinion that Bavaria would have a King again when the country was ready for it. At present, he said, the Bavarians were paying all their attention to business. The municipality of Munich had 400,000,000 gold marks invested in land values and 40,000,000 gold marks in reserve. Taxes at hotels and restaurants had been either reduced or abolished and the Government was making every effort to get Americans to visit the country.

The German people have become accustomed to going without their beer to a large extent. They have also cut down their use of tobacco, cigars, pipes and cigarettes because of the increased cost. The falling off in the use of beer and tobacco is most noticeable to travelers who knew Germany in pre-war days when a glass of good beer could be bought for 2 cents and what was known as a good cigar for the same amount and even for 1 cent.

The Lowenbrau Keller is still flourishing, but is not so cheerful as it was in the palmy days of the beer industry in Munich. A stein which holds a full quart of beer costs 75 pfennigs. I was asked if I desired "gutes beer," and discovered that a slightly inferior brew could be had for 50 pfennigs a quart. The tables on the outside of the vast keller are waited on by aged women who have developed the muscles of professional strong men through carrying five or six steins of beer in each hand during the rush hours of the evening. They are widows of old employees of the noted brewery and look to be between 60 and 70 years old.

SAY MOTHER SET FIRE, IMPERILLING CHILDREN

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., May 20.—Temporarily irresponsible, according to the police, Mrs. Karl Dengler, 40 years old, wife of a chemist employed in a Passaic mill, attempted tonight to set fire to the bed in which she had been sleeping, while her three children, two boys and a girl, aged 14, 8 and 4 years, respectively, were asleep in adjoining cribs.

The crackle of the flames and the smell of smoke awakened Mrs. Dengler's sister, Hilda. She raised an alarm and John Dey, a neighbor, and others rushed into the house. The children, who were still asleep, were carried to safety and when Dey and the others attempted to carry Mrs. Dengler out she fought with all her might, the police said, exclaiming that she wanted to be left alone.

All four were taken to neighbor's homes and placed under the care of a physician but Mrs. Dengler's sister, distraught at the experience, became hysterical and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital.

NURSE WARNS OF FIRE.

She is Carried From Building After Tenants Escape.

Miss Mary Rose of 200 Second Avenue, a nurse, who ran into the tenement at 235 East Tenth Street to warn the tenants that the building was on fire, enabled every one who lived there to escape, but became confused in the smoke and was carried down three flights of fire escape stairs by a policeman.

Miss Rose was passing the building when she saw the flames, which had started over the front window framing of the store occupied by the Herts Knitting Goods Company on the ground floor, spreading upward. She ran up the three flights of steps, pounding on the doors to warn the five families in the house, and when Patrolman Peter Klipper, who saw smoke and turned in the alarm, arrived at the building he saw her breaking third floor window.

Klipper was climbing the fire escape when the firemen below cried to Miss Rosa not to jump. Then Klipper, wrapping his coat about her, carried her down the fire escape. She was cut about the face and hands by the broken glass, but after treatment was able to go home.

COURT IS UNSYMPATHETIC

Threatens to Send Him to the Workhouse if He is Held Responsible for His Actions.

Harry C. Moffitt, who recently came into public notice through the anonymous gift of a pair of jeweled bracelets to the daughter and niece of Judge Reuben L. Haskell of the Kings County Court, was arrested yesterday afternoon charged with disorderly conduct. The arrest was made at Court and Montague Streets, Brooklyn, where it was charged he pinched the cheeks of Miss Mete Reimels, 19 years old, of Cedar Lane, Woodhaven, Queens. Later Moffitt was sent to the Kings County Hospital to have his mental condition examined.

The street was crowded with men and women yesterday noon when the scream of a woman was heard. Policeman John H. Mooney pushed his way through a rapidly increasing crowd to find Miss Reimels in a state of collapse. Moffitt standing near by. Miss Reimels and a young woman with whom she had been walking explained that Moffitt had tried to kiss her. Moffitt was taken to the Popiar Street Station.

The prisoner wore a rose on the lapel of his coat, a pink silk shirt, a Panama hat, and carried a cane. He said he lived at 553 Second Street, Brooklyn, and was a clerk in the Board of Elections.

"I intended no harm," he explained, "I just saw a pretty girl and I admired her. I wanted to kiss her."

The prisoner's affectionate impulse met with no sympathy in the Adams Street Court. Magistrate Ellperin told him that Brooklyn should be cleared of men who annoyed women, and that if the Kings County Hospital found him responsible for his actions he would go to the workhouse.

This will be the second mental examination that Moffitt has undergone since the episode of the bracelets six weeks ago. He was sent to the hospital for being too demonstrative toward two young women in the Mineola, L. I., Court House. On May 12 he was adjudged sane after he spent ten days in the hospital.

LIFTS WATER EMBARGO FOR RIO GRANDE RIVER

Secretary Work Reverses Old Policy for New Mexico and Colorado as Illegal.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP).—An Interior Department policy of twenty-nine years standing was abolished today by Secretary Work, who ruled that the embargo, imposed in 1896, preventing the granting of rights for the storage and diversion of water on public lands along the Rio Grande in New Mexico and Colorado was illegal.

The Secretary's decision was a sequel to his recent action in granting an application for a 250,000-acre-foot water right for the Vega Sylvester Reservoir in Colorado on the Rio Grande River. A protest was filed with the department charging that the reservoir would jeopardize the Government's expenditure of $12,000,000 on the Elephant Butte irrigation project in New Mexico and violated a precedent of long standing that no water diversion rights or application be granted without giving the districts affected a chance to protest.

The Secretary replied by holding that the embargo establishing this precedent, which was laid down by Secretary David R. Francis and sustained by subsequent Secretaries, was in violation of a law passed in 1891. He held that under the law the Secretary of the Interior was required to grant applications, and redress should be obtained in the courts. His action, he declared, was based on the result of investigations by Government experts and constitutional lawyers familiar with land and water laws.

"The original purpose of the embargo," Mr. Work said, "was to prevent the building of dams, canals and other irrigation works on Government lands along the river, pending settlement of water rights with Mexico and construction of the Rio Grande reclamation project. After the conclusion of a treaty with Mexico and the completion of this project, the embargo was permitted to continue, notwithstanding it was in conflict with a law of Congress passed in 1891."

The Secretary declared he had approved the application for the Vega Sylvester project after thorough consideration and a finding by the Bureau of Reclamation that its approval would not interfere with the rights of the United States or water users under or in connection with the Rio Grande reclamation project.

"It has been suggested," he added, that a hearing be held, at which all who desire may appear and submit their views, but the facts are of record and could not be changed by argument. No legal rights of any nation, State, association or individual to water appropriated and used under State law would be defeated or changed by the action proposed. There appears, therefore, no reason for subjecting any one to the expense of attendance upon such a hearing."

FINDS TRADE BEST SINCE ARMISTICE

SAYS TAXES ARE UNFAIR

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 20.—E. B. Harshaw of Grove City, President of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association, said in his address here today before the thirty-first annual convention of that body in the Traymore Hotel:

"Business conditions throughout the country are fundamentally sound. There is certainly no reason for pessimism. At no time since the armistice has business been on a firmer basis, with every prospect, given a good agricultural crop this year, of continued improvement.

"The one disquieting thing is the prodigal expenditures of the State, County and Municipal Governments and the paternalistic tendencies of all governmental agencies. One of every twelve employed in gainful occupations is now on the Government payroll, and the per capita taxes have increased from $30 in 1913 to $70 in 1924.

"A plan of Federal taxation upon a nonpartisan basis along lines suggested by Secretary Mellon is most satisfactory. If Congress were to follow the sound advice of Secretary Mellon, tax laws providing sufficient revenue to run the Government and working no injustice to taxpayers, rich or poor, could readily be found.

"Mr. Mellon's guidance has meant much already by way of tax reduction, but it would mean much more if Congress should take his advice and adjust our taxation laws along more economic lines.

"Business men and organizations have been too reticent in expressing a demand for lifting the present burden of taxation from the shoulders of trade and industry. It is certainly time to impress the needs of business upor our lawmaking bodies.

"Director Lord reports that in 1921 Federal expenditures were 50 per cent. of the cost of all government, while the lesser divisions were responsible for the remaining 50 per cent.

"The Federal Government now takes but 33 1-3 per cent. of the public revenues, while the States, cities and counties take 66 2-3 per cent. Do the taxpayers realize this? It would seem not."

Mr. Harshaw declared that some system should be worked out to avoid duplication of inheritance tax, since with the present system "the States are driving persons of means to invent ways by which they can evade payment."

Referring to the Federal Reserve System, he said that all banks should become members. He opposed the tendency for national banks to surrender their charters and apply for State charters.

The foreign trade of the United States is in "flourishing condition and gives promise of continued prosperity," said Dr. J. T. Holdsworth of Philadelphia, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Trade of the association, in his annual report.

"The man who goes short on America will surely go broke," he declared.

JERSEY BANKERS ELECT.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 20.—Robert V. Whitehead of the Trenton Saving Fund Society was re-elected President of the New Jersey Saving Banks Association at its annual meeting this afternoon at the Trenton Country Club. W. D. Vanderpool of Newark was re-elected Vice President and Howard Biddulph, also of Newark, was again chosen Secretary and Treasurer.

Former Governor E. C. Stokes, as a member of the Board of Managers of the Trenton Saving Fund Society, officially welcomed the delegates.

Mr. Stokes explained the difference between saving institutions and banks. One is a commercial institution and the other one of investment, he said. He added that banks gather the idle funds of the community and make them available for credit and in this way build churches and schools and keep industry and business going. This, he said, could not be done if these sums remained in stockings and closets in homes.

Other speakers included James M. Wilcox, President of the National Association of Mutual Saving Banks and President of the Philadelphia Saving Fund Society, and Robert Monroe of New York City.

FESS WANTS FEWER LAWS.

CHICAGO, May 20 (AP).—The people of America should be taught that economic evils have economic remedies and cannot always be cured by legislation, Senator Fess of Ohio declared today in an address before the meeting of the International Association of Garment Manufacturers here.

"We are now nearly a Government by commissions," he continued, "and this bureaucratic movement of the last twenty-five years is the product of the demand for increased legislation."

The National Government, he said, has reduced taxes from $54 to $27 per capita, while States have increased taxes nearly 100 per cent. The order has gone out from Washington, he added, to effect economies which would reduce the next budget to $3,000,000,000.

Senator Fess said he has framed a bill to stop interstate shipment of prison-made merchandise and declared that the products of prisons should not be allowed to compete with free labor with private gain as the end in view.

SEEKS FOOD STORES' ASSETS

Referee Looks Into Federal Corporation's Affairs.

An examination of the financial affairs of the Federal Food Stores Corporation started yesterday by Edward C. McDonald, referee in bankruptcy, in the Federal Building in Brooklyn, is expected to disclose to the 200 creditors, including ten or more banks, the amount of assets available to meet their claims. Estimated schedules placed the liabilities at about $3,000,000, with assets exceeding $2,000,000. The examination yesterday related mainly to the warehouse business of the corporation in the receiving and storage of merchandise.

Indictments against some of the corporation officers and others have been returned in Manhattan and Brooklyn courts. Assistant District Attorney James I. Cuff of Brooklyn said that additional indictments were expected today from a Grand Jury in the Kings County Court. These, he said, would relate to loans made by two banks. The other indictments charged fraud in obtaining loans on duplicate warehouse receipts.

NEW YORK & HARLEM SHOWS DEFICIT IN 1924

The annual report of the New York & Harlem Railroad states that the deficit from operation of the company's surface lines in 1924 was $85,911, compared with deficits of $71,931 in 1923 and $15,540 in 1922. The total deficit from Feb. 1, 1920, when the surface lines were returned to the company by the late Job E. Hedges, receiver for the New York Railways, to March 31, 1925, was $467,409. The deficit for the first quarter of this year was $76,899.

Since the return of the lines the New York Central, which owns the New York & Harlem, has expended $484,012 on track work, office building, storage yard, machinery and tools and $207,738 for overhauling passenger cars and alterations in the Ninety-second Street car barn leased from the Second Avenue Railway Company.

During the last year counsel for the reorganization committee of the New York Railways Company offered the Harlem company 3,800 shares of preferred stock of the reorganized company in satisfaction of its claims against the receiver and estate of the railways company, provided the Harlem would turn over $43,468 received for overpayment of franchise taxes for 1912 and 1913. This offer was refused and efforts have since been made to settle these claims by negotiations.

The balance sheet shows investment of $21,851,535 in road, $237,536 in securities, current assets of $700,109, deferred and miscellaneous assets $2,672,304; total assets $25,461,484. The company's steam railroad property is leased to the New York Central, which pays the fixed charges and 10 per cent. dividend on the stock.

HELD IN ADVERTISING FRAUD

Defendant Made Contract Out of Harmless Letter, Court Is Told.

Pleas of not guilty were offered yesterday by John Hanley, 61 years old, of 138 Lawrence Street, Brooklyn, and James Harper, 57 years old, of the Mills Hotel, Seventh Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street, when they were arraigned before Judge McIntyre in General Sessions on an indictment charging forgery in the second degree. Judge McIntyre fixed bail at $1,000 for each man, pending trial.

They were accused of defrauding Charles E. Prout, Jr., advertising manager for the Gillis & Geoghegan Manufacturing Company, of $37 by means, it is said, of a contract, and not one of the simple kind, but one made by removing with acid the wording of a communication Mr. Prout previously had signed and substituting a form of contract for advertising. Horace A. Donnelly, Jr., Secretary of the National Vigilance Committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, who was in court, said that numerous frauds of the kind had been reported to his committee.

Ninety-five per cent. of the goods sold are made in America, the Secretary reported, and American manufacturers always receive preference where quality and price are equal.

GERMAN LOAN PLACED HERE

Coblenz Arranges First Financing in Hindenburg Regime.

A City of Coblenz loan, which attracted considerable interest in Wall Street because it was the first German financing to be arranged in the New York market since the election of Field Marshal von Hindenburg as President of Germany, has been placed with C. H. Richard & Co. The loan is regarded as the forerunner of others to be arranged here when Germany has demonstrated her stability and earning power under the Hindenburg régime.

Beyond confirming the transaction on behalf of C. H. Richard & Co. would say little about the loan. It is understood there will be no public offering. It was declared the loan was not large as such issues go, and that it was in the form of a short-term note.

Raw Silk Situation.

While a steady business has been done in raw silk, both at Yokohama and New York, the market shows comparatively little change from a price standpoint. Manufacturers are credited with still having to cover a large portion of their June requirements, and practically the entire trade is open to buy from July on. Crop advices from Japan, according to E. Gerli & Co., Inc., are that on account of cold weather the season may be from a week to ten days late. If this is the case, arrivals from the filatures to the export markets in Japan during June will be extremely small. In Canton there has been a greater willingness on the part of reelers to meet buyers, and a consequent softening in prices. Business offered at present is entirely based on new season silk. In Italy prices have been well sustained, the slight decline in lire exchange being offset by the higher prices asked by the reelers.

Issues Fall Fabric Book.

Evidence of the new developments in weave, finish and color treatment of Fall dress, suiting and coating fabrics is given in the semi-annual fabric book issued yesterday by the Forstmann and Huffmann Company. The book, intended for the fabric guidance of retailers, contains samples in all colors of the large variety of new weaves. The decided swing away from dull suede-like fabrics is amply brought out, all of the new materials having a lustrous bloom, together with a soft handle and fine draping qualities. Great stress is laid on the new coatings to replace the old pile fabrics. They are entirely made of cashmere and, instead of the plush effect of the old Marvella and Geronia, they have a velvety surface. Among these are three outstanding fabrics: Kashinora, having a distinct diagonal weave; Kashorette, showing a broken twill effect, and Kashmir needlepoint, which has the needlepoint weave from which it derives its name. The worsted fabrics, in addition to a wide range of dress and suiting numbers, contain several new qualities of extreme thinness and of silken appearance intended especially for dresses. Mirroleen is set forth as an outstanding example of this type. It is seven ounces in weight, the lightest ever made by the company, and is being used for lining and trimming purposes as well as for ensemble dresses.

Jewelry Sales Are Lagging.

Business continues dull with manufacturing jewelers in this market, but reports from various parts of the country indicate that the retailers have done better lately with the approach of the graduation and wedding season. At the moment, things are quietest in many quarters of the wholesale trade than at any other time since the slump that followed the post-war boom. About the only articles that are receiving any attention are bracelets, and these seem to be doing pretty well in all price ranges from the cheapest novelties to high-priced flexible platinum goods. One reason advanced for the present state of business is that the number of jewelry retailers has remained practically stationary for some time, while the number of jobbers and manufacturers has shown a material increase. This has tended greatly to increase competition and to reduce the sales volumes of the individual houses.

Consider Coat Outlook Good.

Indications continue favorable for a good separate coat business this Fall. Some of the early lines are about ready, and business has already been done with certain of the Pacific Coast stores. Flares and circular effects are outstanding features of the new lines, the upper portion of the silhouette being close fitting. The new cascade drapes are stressed for the higher grade merchandise, the so-called plumage shades meeting with a very favorable response. Incidentally, the flares and circular effects will probably call for a greater yardage consumption this Fall. One selling agent said yesterday that these might make as much as 25 per cent. added demand for cloth in re-orders.

Knitted Ties Sell Well.

Knitted ties are in good demand to retail at $2.50 to $3.50, according to manufacturers here. Fall lines are meeting with a better response than at this time last year, and the buying for Spring and Summer is described as having been very satisfactory. Open end knitted ties are the popular types as opposed to the rather heavy and bulky crocheted numbers, which are not moving well. Stripes and bright colors dominate, although there is also considerable interest in novel jacquard figured patterns. Knitted mufflers for Fall are likewise being shown. Fancy jacquard and stripe effects are featured in these in various color combinations, with grays, blues, black and white and pearl favored.

Rug Jobbers Filling In.

Jobbers of rugs in the metropolitan district are doing most of the business in floor coverings in this market at the moment, much of their purchasing being of a filling-in nature. In the orders they are placing axminsters have the call, with velvets also in demand. Tapestry rugs are proportionately less active. Salesmen have not been in their territories long enough to turn in sufficient orders to give a real line on how things will go for the new season, some of them are just reaching their respective sections of the country—but the indications are that a good business will be done. In the general business that has been booked to date, quite a run is reported on rugs with gold, tan and taupe grounds showing novel open-ground effects in bright colors.

Outstanding Colors for Fall.

Grays, blues, tans and black are described as standing out among the colors favored in Fall coatings and dress goods. Greens are also well to the fore, as are some of the new copper browns. The latter group has been expanded to include some of the darker shades, such as ones on the order of brown dove. Reds are by no means neglected, one of the leading selling agents reporting active interest in a red of a deep fiery tone. Purples are meeting with much more favor than is ordinarily the case, reflecting their strong style sponsorship abroad.

Silver Fox Shows Advance.

Despite the fact that the collection included more than 1,100 skins, silver fox featured the eighth day of the fur auction in the Masonic Hall here with a rise of 10 per cent. over the prices obtained at the Winter sale of the New York Auction Company, Inc. The best of the lot brought $330. Selling began with the American opossum pelts left over from Tuesday. They reached $2.08 for the best, and advanced 15 per cent. Gray fox, which was unchanged, brought a top price of $3.10. Fisher dropped 15 per cent., and the most that buyers paid for these skins was $145. Offerings today will be sundries, which embrace a number of small lots, 40,230 sundry fox and 185,671 skunk. So far sales have totaled about $5,000,000.

Burlaps Are Still Weak Here.

More inquiry was reported yesterday in the local market for burlaps than for several days, but it did not result in any volume of buying. This was attributed to the fact that prices, especially on futures, are now more in line with buyers' ideas of what they ought to be. They are still looking for lower prices, however, and this expectation is given some base by the further break of 10 points—$2 a bale—at Calcutta yesterday. Compared with a week ago, lightweight spots here are off 30 points, while heavyweights have dropped 35 points in the same period. These were the prices quoted here yesterday on standard 40-inch burlaps by C. E. Rockstroh & Co., Inc.:

June shipment	6.80c	8.85c
July, Sept. shipment	6.80c	8.55c

Gray Goods Slightly Firmer.

Although there was no real improvement in demand in the gray goods market yesterday the further rise in cotton had the effect of stiffening prices somewhat. In the printcloths there was trading in spot 38½-inch 60-48s at 9c and bands at 7¼ cents, with first hands asking that figure for June. For quick deliveries first hands asked 7¾ cents for the same goods. Some 38½-inch 64-60s were sold in the South by first hands at 6¾ cents. For quick goods of this construction 6⅝ cents was asked. Sheeting business for the day embraced first hand sales of 36-inch 5.50s at 7½ cents for contract deliveries and 36-inch 6.15s at 6¼ cents. Quick goods in both cases were held an eighth higher. Second hand offerings of 37-inch 3.95 drills were in the market at 10 cents, and it was reported that some first hands would entertain the same price on good-sized lots.

Would Regulate Interstate Buses.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of interstate operation of motor buses is proposed in a resolution adopted by the organization committee of the National Conference here of Motor Bus Operators. The committee also proposed that a national conference of representatives of various State motor bus organizations be held in Chicago June 17 and 18, to perfect a national organization.

ANTI-STRIKE DEAL SIGNED.

Men's Clothing Makers of Chicago and Union Renew 3-Year Treaty.

A three-year renewal of an agreement with labor in Chicago, designed to prevent strikes in the men's clothing industry there, has been signed between leading manufacturers of Chicago and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, according to an announcement yesterday at the New York office of Hart Schaffner & Marx, 200 Fifth Avenue. More than thirty firms and 30,000 workers in Chicago, it was said, are affected by the agreement.

It is expected, the spokesman of the company said, that the agreement will form the basis for negotiations between representatives of the union and manufacturers in New York, Rochester, Boston and other cities.

The agreement provides for arbitration of all disputes, including demands for increased wages by the union, or for a reduction, should such a proposition be advanced by the manufacturers. There is to be no change in the present wage scale during 1925, but changes may be considered at any anniversary of the signing of the agreement. Unemployment insurance is provided for, to lessen the evils of seasonal inactivity.

Caterpillars Ruin Jersey Trees.

CAPE MAY, N. J., May 20.—Farmers in Cape May County are fighting a losing battle against millions of caterpillars which are eating bare cherry, apple and other trees. FINANCIAL MARKETS

Speculative Stocks Rise Sharply in 2,000,000-Share Day—Sterling Above $4.86.

Wall Street's attention was perhaps converged on the rise of 8 points or more in a number of shares on the Stock Exchange, with total transactions exceeding two million shares for the first time in two months; but in the larger financial view the rapid advance in sterling to $4.86¾ was the event of the day's markets. That rate is only ¾ cent below actual par of exchange and far above the gold-export point, which is $4.8480 in transactions with New York. How the prospect at London of gold imports or exports in trade with other countries stands, will naturally depend on the course of sterling in those other markets, and yesterday's cables reported export of $96,000 gold to three points in the East. But only £10,000 gold was taken yesterday from the Bank of England, and even that was again offset by a large sum of gold paid into the Bank, amounting this time to £900,000.

The source of these gold receipts—which have now amounted to £2,510,000 within a week—seems still to be unknown; they may be Transvaal gold or, possibly, some kind of special deposit. The net gain of gold by the Bank, in the weekly period which will be covered by today's statement, will reach nearly to £1,800,000, as against its net loss of £2,124,000 in the two preceding weeks since the return to free gold payments. This is a much more favorable showing than was predicted even by financial London at the end of April. Taken along with the persistent rise of sterling, which should foreshadow smaller withdrawals of gold and possibly further deposits, the indication is that foreign capital is already moving to London in large amounts as a result of confidence in the maintenance of gold payments and continued stability of sterling at the normal rates. Early and unmistakably permanent success in the bold experiment with the British currency can hardly fail to have profound influence on the policy of Continental countries with their own currencies.

Yesterday's conspicuous advances on the Stock Exchange occurred almost exclusively in shares of the speculative description, nearly all of which advanced under heavy buyings. The main exception to the hesitant attitude of the seasoned investment shares was United States Steel, which rose a point further and closed at the highest, possibly in connection with the report of the weekly steel trade summaries that the company's new business is now running 2,000 to 3,000 tons per day above the rate of a month ago. There have in fact been numerous recent indications that curtailment in the rate of output has at length brought production fairly in line with a consumption which has maintained an unexpectedly steady volume.

The strength and activity in a good part of the stock market may perhaps be sufficiently explained by the evidence that continuing easy money is assured, and by the consequent readiness of speculation to respond to random talk of "mergers." But it is not possible to overlook certain signs that the trade outlook is definitely improving. The indications are of a kind that has been familiar enough, but they are growing somewhat more positive in character. Yesterday's statement of car-loadings on the railways in the week ending May 2 shows, like the figures for the preceding week, that a volume of freight wholly unprecedented for this time of year is now in motion. The total for each week has been nearly 20,000 cars in excess of the largest weekly loadings before the middle of May in any previous year. What is even more significant in yesterday's statement, the increase of 71,173 cars over the corresponding week of 1924 was mostly made up of the very substantial increase of 42,568 in cars loaded with merchandise and miscellaneous freight, the usual index to the volume of ordinary mercantile trade.

This certainly gives no suggestion whatever of a "set-back in general business"; it is not altogether easy to reconcile it even with the report of "slackness in trade" which the mercantile agencies repeat. There is nothing illogical in assuming that it reflects the unquestionably improved position which must have followed the harvests of 1924 and the subsequent prices for farm products.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 20, 1925.

Stock Exchange call money was easy, heavy supply effecting a drop in rate to 3½ per cent., the lowest in over a week. Rate started at 3¾ per cent., the decline coming at midday. Business, however, continued light, with quite a little left unloaned at the close. Time money was also a shade easier, maturities from two to four months' loaning at 3¾ per cent. and some small amounts for five-six months at the same figure, but there was not enough done in these later dates to establish 3¾ per cent. as a basis. The commercial paper market was quiet and unchanged.

ST. PAUL'S DEFICIT $1,868,606 FOR 1924

TRAFFIC GAIN NOW SEEN

The annual report of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company for 1924, made public yesterday, was apparently compiled before the directors had reached the decision to petition the Court for receivership. The only mention of the financial readjustment the road is undergoing is on a slip of paper pasted upon the first page of the pamphlet, which reads: "On March 18, by order of the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, H. F. Byram, Mark W. Potter and Edward J. Brundage were appointed receivers of the property and franchises of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company."

In the general statement for the benefit of stockholders, however, it is explained that unfavorable business conditions in some of the territory served, the continued decrease in passenger travel and the impossibility of meeting water competition through the Panama Canal, have had their effect in decreasing revenues, as they did in 1923.

Operations for the year show a deficit of $1,868,606, compared with a surplus for the previous year of $207,686 and with a deficit of $6,143,168 for 1922. During 1924, it is said, operating expenses were reduced $9,449,167 from 1923, but these economies were not sufficient to offset a decrease of $11,261,879 in operating revenues. A decrease in passenger revenues accounted for $2,467,721 of the $11,261,879.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1925, the report says, the company exercised its option under the terms of a contract with the Northern Pacific Railway Company, whereby its freight trains are operated over Northern Pacific track between Twin Cities and Head of the Lakes.

Anticipate Traffic Gain.

On account of the growing importance of Duluth a gain in coal and wheat traffic is anticipated and the contract will enable the road to handle business locally between St. Paul and Duluth, which prior to 1925 it was obliged to interchange at the Twin Cities with traffic from Duluth and other Northern Pacific points in the vicinity.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, it is said, has served preliminary reports on the company on its physical properties other than land and a preliminary accounting report. The road filed its objections to and criticisms of these reports with the commission.

The tentative valuation, it is added, which is made up from these reports, will probably be fixed the early part of 1926, when a formal hearing based on the protest to the valuation will be held.

At the close of 1924 the St. Paul had a reserve for accrued depreciation of $28,129,586, which represents the estimated depreciation of rolling stock from June 30, 1907, to Dec. 31, 1924. This is an increase of $3,075,176 from 1923.

The report of additions and betterments indicate that the road is in good physical condition, and the need of improvements should not delay the termination of the receivership.

Add to Equipment.

During the year the purchase was authorized and delivery made of 25 forty-ton steel frame automobile cars and 4 locomotive cranes, and 117 skeleton-type logging flat cars were constructed from material salvaged from box cars. Equipment rebuilding included 40 steam locomotives, 33 box cars, 1 single-deck stock car, 150 coal cars and 75 flat cars to skeleton-type logging flats.

Main track line improvements were made by replacing lighter rails with 35,850 gross tons of new 90-pound and 100-pound open-hearth rails. The construction of approximately 2.6 miles of industrial tracks to serve the Ford Motor Company at Iron Mountain, Mich., was also completed, as well as a considerable amount of new trackage to serve the Iron River mining district in Michigan. The only track abandoned during the year was four miles of city street railway in Bozeman, Mont.

STERLING ADVANCES TO 3-8 OF CENT OF PAR

OTHER CURRENCIES ALSO UP

Gains of One to Six Points Credited to Influence of Pound's Strength in Market.

Under strong buying, quotations on sterling exchange continued their climb in the New York market yesterday, reaching a new high record of $4.86¼, or only ⅜ of a cent from par. This rate represented a gain of ¾ of a cent over the previous day, when the close at $4.85⅛ established the highest quotation since December, 1914.

Much of yesterday's heavy buying was believed to have been done at the direction of London and by banking groups which have close connections with large banks in England. At the same time it was noted that sterling was particularly strong in the London market, reaching $4.86⅛ for cable transfers.

The purchase by the Bank of England of nearly £1,000,000 worth of bar gold assisted the rise of the rate in London, and the strong buying of sterling, both in New York and abroad, created the impression in some banking quarters that English interests would endeavor to push the rate on the pound up sufficiently high to attract gold to London. There is some uncertainty as to the exchange rate that would result in gold shipments to London, conditions have changed in so many ways since the pre-war days when the last of these shipments were made. It is generally believed that the gold shipping point now is somewhere between $4.89 and $4.90.

The stability of the foreign exchange market since the British return to the gold standard was again demonstrated yesterday. Fluctuations were mostly within a range of 1/32 of a cent, which marked a definite return to conditions that existed before the war when the value of the pound seldom varied. The steadiness of the rates is attracting attention also in view of the steadily mounting volume of the transactions. Recently a transaction involving £10,000 in sterling was regarded as fairly large, but in the present market there are frequent operations involving £50,000 and £100,000, which do not affect the stability of the market. A month or two ago transactions of this size would have resulted in violent fluctuations in the quotations.

The selling yesterday was attributed to longs who were realizing on their profits in the rise of the pound, and there also was much of what the market terms "real selling," that is, the negotiation of commercial and grain bills on London.

The influence of the pound's strength was apparent throughout the foreign exchange market. French, Italian, Scandinavian and Spanish currencies all showed advances ranging from 1 to 6 points in the New York market.

SEES AID TO BRITISH TRADE.

London Bank Predicts Greater Activity Under Gold Standard.

The advantages which are expected to accrue to Great Britain as a result of the return to the gold standard are discussed in the May review of Barclay's Bank, Ltd., of London, made public here yesterday. It reads:

"There can be no doubt that the present time is opportune for reverting to gold. Our national finances are in good condition and the exchange has been steady, with a buoyant undertone, for many months past, notwithstanding that during this period the Government has been quietly accumulating no less than $166,000,000 for the purpose of meeting this year's instalments on the British debt to America.

"While there is every reason for satisfaction that this country has reinstated the pre-war gold value of the pound and while the country may now look forward to stable exchanges and currency in terms of gold, it may perhaps be emphasized that the restoration of a free gold market cannot be regarded as a signal for reducing our efforts, for the consolidation of the gold standard must necessarily depend to a large extent upon the maintenance and development of our international trading position.

"In view, however, of the greater exchange stability which the return to gold will bring, and bearing in mind that a number of countries are now following, or will later follow the example set by Great Britain, the reversion to gold should in itself assist in re-establishing our overseas trade, especially as it will tend to eliminate much of the unfair competition with which this country has in the past few years been faced as a result of the difference between the internal and external values of so many currencies."

Engineering Corp. Officer to Talk.

"Water-Cooled Furnace Walls" will be the subject of an address by H. D. Savage, Vice President of the Combustion Engineering Corporation before the American Iron and Steel Institute at the Hotel Commodore tomorrow.

CRUDE OIL ADVANCES 25 CENTS A BARREL

STOCKS SHOW ACTIVITY

Gains of One to Five Points Made in Some Issues—Production Shows Increase.

An advance of 25 cents a barrel in the various grades of Pennsylvania crude oil was announced by the leading purchasing agent in the Pittsburgh district yesterday. Reports that such an advance would be announced were circulated in the financial district earlier in the week. The increase follows an advance in Smackover crude announced on Tuesday. On the heels of these advances reports were circulated that an early advance in the price of mid-continent crude might soon be expected. This would be followed by higher prices for Wyoming crude, which were placed on a parity with the mid-continent product early in the year. Higher prices also are expected in Texas.

This change in the oil price situation resulted in increased activity in oil shares yesterday, both on the Stock Exchange and in the outside market. Pan American was the leader among the independent issues, while Humble Oil and Refining, Standard of Indiana, Prairie Oil and Gas and South Penn Oil were the leaders among the Standard Oil issues. Gains of one to five points were recorded among the oil shares, and trading was more active than on any day since the January-February advance in these stocks.

Under the new schedule of prices, Pennsylvania crude produced in the Bradford district is quoted at $3.65 a barrel and Pennsylvania crude produced outside of the Bradford district is now quoted at $3.55. These prices re-establish the level posted prior to April 17, when a reduction of 25 cents a barrel was announced. The following Eastern grades were advanced 15 cents a barrel to the prices quoted: Cabell $1.20, Somerset medium $2.30 and Somerset light $2.45.

Commenting on conditions in the petroleum industry, Colonel Robert W. Stewart, Chairman of Standard Oil of Indiana, who sailed yesterday to make an inspection trip of the properties of the British-Mexican Petroleum Company, said: "I look for higher crude oil prices soon. The market for crude oil the last two weeks has changed from a buyers' to a sellers' market. Light crude in the mid-continent is getting scarce, and there may possibly be a shortage. Conditions certainly show all the earmarks of higher crude prices. Gasoline stocks are being heavily drawn on. Our refineries are working at 100 per cent. capacity."

In the gasoline situation prices continue firm in the mid-continent. Refiners in that section are asking 12 cents a gallon in quoting to jobbers and other marketers of this product, and no contracts are being made for forward delivery on the assumption that higher prices will prevail during the Summer months. The Gulf Refining Company yesterday, however, announced a reduction of 2 cents a gallon in its tank-wagon price in New York City, to meet the price now quoted by the Texas Company. The Gulf Refining Company recently advanced its price to meet that quoted by Standard Oil Company of New York, but at the time the Texas Company failed to meet this advance on the ground, it was said, that its chief competitors in this district continued to sell favored dealers at from 1½ to 2 cents a gallon below their published prices.

Production of crude oil in the United States last week again increased as a result of the prolific yield of the deeper sands in the Smackover field. The Oil and Gas Journal estimates the daily average production at 2,294,271 barrels last week, an increase of 54,620 barrels compared with the previous week. The heavy oil output in Smackover increased from 358,785 barrels in the week of May 9 to 401,427 barrels in the week of May 16. Light oil production increased 7,535 barrels last week, bringing the total 16,657 barrels above the low point reached in the week of May 2.

ANGLO-AMERICAN PAYS 20%

Directors of the Anglo-American Oil Company, Ltd., at a meeting in London yesterday declared a final dividend of two shilling, six pence, free from income tax in the United Kingdom, payable out of the net earnings for the year ended Dec. 31, 1924, according to a statement issued yesterday by the Guaranty Trust Company, fiscal agents for the company in the United States. This dividend, according to the statement with the interim dividend of one shilling six pence declared Dec. 3, 1924, will make a total dividend of 20 per cent. for that year.

The dividend will be paid on and after May 25, by the National Provincial Bank, Ltd., at its head office in London or at any of its branches, or by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, at the equivalent of $4.86 per pound sterling, to all holders of share warrants to bearer issued by the company in exchange of coupons No. 29, attached to such warrants.

Another meeting of stockholders is scheduled for June 5, at which time a resolution will be voted upon to declare a 33 1-3 per cent. stock dividend from the reserve account.

McKINNEY STOCK OFFERED.

A syndicate comprising the Union Trust Company of Cleveland and Clark, Dodge & Co. of this city is making a public offering today of $7,250,000 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of the McKinney Steel Holding Company at 99½ a share, to yield a little more than 6 per cent. This is the first time that the securities of this company have been offered to the public. In connection with the proposed financing the company issued a financial statement as of Dec. 31, 1924, which showed capital and surplus account of $45,596,882 and net current assets of $8,804,754. The company has no funded debt.

The McKinney Company was organized recently in Delaware to acquire a controlling interest in the capital stock of the McKinney Steel Company. The capitalization of the holding company, upon completion of the current financing, will amount to $7,250,000 6 per cent. preferred stock and 10,000 shares of outstanding common stock. The preferred stock is redeemable in whole or in part at 105 and accrued dividends. As of March 31, 1927, a sinking fund will be put into operation for the retirement of the preferred shares.

SELLS RAILWAY HOLDINGS.

The United Light and Power Company has sold its holdings in the Grand Rapids, Grand Haven & Muskegon Railway Company to Sydney L. Vaughan, Vice President and General Manager of the road, and a group of other Grand Rapids men. The railway company operates a highspeed interurban railroad between the three Michigan cities. Its gross earnings for the twelve months ended March 31 were $329,784, and its net $81,821.

United Light and Power stock advanced to a new high in the trading here yesterday at 69¾, a gain of nearly 3 a share. The company is reported to have substantial holdings in American Light and Traction Company common stock, which itself is up over 30 points from the year's low level.

AUTO INDUSTRY NEARS CAPACITY PRODUCTION

All Grades Sharing Prosperity, Says Trade Journal, With Dealers' Stocks Low.

Conditions in the automotive industry have improved so rapidly within few weeks that practically capacity production will be attained soon. In summing up the situation in the industry, Automotive Industries, a trade journal, says:

"The throttle is open wide at the automobile factories and predictions are freely made that April's new high production record of 420,373 cars and trucks will be exceeded by about 20,000 in May. Demand in virtually all sections of the country is proving ample to absorb this production. Stocks in dealers' hands are still low, and in the case of the most popular makes, shortages continue to be the rule.

"All grades of cars are sharing in the prosperity. Several makers of low-priced vehicles are behind in their orders, and at least one manufacturer of high-priced automobiles is more than thirty days late in making shipments. The shortages are mainly in closed cars, due to delays in receiving bodies from the equipment manufacturers. Several of the larger body-building concerns have expansion programs under way.

"The prospect is that production will continue at approximately the current rate until about the middle of June, when a slump in consumption is looked for. The expectation of a need for curtailment of operations at the automobile factories is reflected in a slowing down of orders placed with original equipment manufacturers for delivery after the first two weeks of June.

"The industry never was in better position to curtail production. Virtually all buying of raw materials and equipment has been on a hand-to-mouth basis, with the result that stocks are negligible. Inventories of finished cars are at a similar level. Yet at the present rate of output it is realized that a sudden and serious slump in demand might quickly turn shortages into surpluses, and the sales situation, consequently, is being watched most carefully."

SPIEGEL'S HOLDINGS IN THEATRES SOLD

Auction of Securities Brings $133,188.97—Producer Failed for $1,000,000.

The security holdings of Max Spiegel, the theatrical producer who recently failed for $1,000,000, were sold at the auction salesroom on Vesey Street yesterday for $133,188.97. The securities represented holdings in theatrical enterprises. Twelve separate groups were listed for sale, but only eleven of them were sold. The first group, made up of 750 shares of the Sheridan Theatre Company, Inc., common, was withdrawn from sale.

There was lively bidding for the securities, a number of agents representing theatrical interests and bankers being on the floor of the exchange. A. W. De Baun of Montclair, N. J., connected with the banking firm of Arthur J. Rosenthal, 111 Broadway, succeeded in making the heaviest purchases, taking five of the listed items for $122,562.50. Mr. De Baun asserted that the securities were purchased for his own account, and represented an investment.

Harry Wolff, lawyer, of 52 William Street, was another who took a sizable part of the Spiegel securities, making a purchase of 87½ shares of the Mitchel H. Mark Realty Corporation, preferred, at $102.75 a share.

ADD TO ENGINEERING STOCK.

Shareholders of International Corp. Ratify Increase.

Stockholders of the International Combustion Engineering Corporation yesterday ratified the recent proposal of the management to increase the authorized capital stock from 450,000 shares to 750,000 shares of no par value. All retiring directors were re-elected.

George E. Learnard, President of the company, stated that the Board of Directors had no intention of selling any of the proposed increased capital stock at this time. The increase in stock was requested to enable the management to take advantage of opportunities which may arise from time to time. Only a small part of the stock will be used to acquire a small company in which International Combustion is interested in at this time.

Commenting upon business conditions, Mr. Learnard said, "Our business has been growing in a most remarkable way. In April alone total new business signed up by this company and its subsidiaries amounted to approximately $4,000,000. It is expected that in the current month we will do some $2,000,000 of new business in the United States alone."

SEES PROGRESS IN BOLIVIA.

Tax Collections Larger, Budget Ample, Equitable Trust Co. Says.

The approach of the International Centennial Exhibition, which will be held at La Paz, Bolivia, during August and September, brought forth a statement yesterday from the Equitable Trust Company outlining the progress being made by that country. Its budget for 1924 was ample to meet all loan requirements and to care for all national and departmental obligations, the bank says, adding:

"Total collections from the pledged taxes on profits of mining companies amounted to 24,328,075 bolvianos for 1924 and 18,900,801 bolivianos for 1923. Conversions into dollars were made at the rate of .3086 per boliviano for 1924 and .3063 for 1923.

"It is thought that the Bolivian Railway from Tupiza in Bolivia to La Quiaca on the Argentine border will be completed about the time the International Centennial Exhibiton opens. The road will give continuous transportation between La Paz and Buenos Aires and should greatly facilitate business by way of the East Coast."

Barnsdall Corp. Completes 2 Wells.

The Barnsdall Corporation announced yesterday the completion of two new wells in the Rosecrans field of California. Robert Law Jr., President of the corporation, stated that the outlook in the oil situation is particularly good.

BUSINESS IMPROVES IN IRON AND STEEL

EARLY ESTIMATES REVISED

General improvement was shown last week in the iron and steel industry, according to trade reviews which appeared yesterday. The Iron Trade Review comments that more movement is shown in various quarters of the industry and that the renewal of buying has gathered further definite, although not large, momentum.

"Apparently the market is swinging away from the dead centre which has held it in a virtually static and listless position for some weeks," it says. "Buyers seem to have readjusted their point of view to expect a continuing healthy and stabilized condition of business, in place of one of sweeping expansion, which seemed in prospect at the beginning of the year. Sentiment generally is more composed and cheerful."

In summing up the situation Iron Age says:

"It now appears that the Steel Corporation, following its policy of the early months of 1923, though not to so great an extent, made more ingots and semi-finished steel in the first 3½ months of this year than it put through its rolling mills. The result is that its output of rolled steel is now running about 10 per cent. in excess of its ingot production.

"At the same time blast furnace operations, which can be readily decreased or increased, are being slightly reduced, the corporation taking off two furnaces in the Chicago district and one at Pittsburgh. An independent steel company furnace at Johnstown and one near Pittsburgh have also gone out.

"Thus far in May the Steel Corporation's new business has been from 2,000 to 3,000 tons a day more than for the same period in April, a rate which, assuming the present operating percentage, will bring the May decline in unfilled orders well below that of April.

"Reports in several directions of more numerous orders for finished steel relate chiefly to the activities of smaller buyers who rarely buy far ahead. Inventories of large buyers are apparently decreasing, but such consumers are waiting for a definite demonstration of a stiffening market."

PRAISE FROM DR. MORALES.

Panama Finance Minister Tells of View on United States.

Dr. Sr. Don Eusebio Morales, Finance Minister of the Republic of Panama and formerly Panama's Minister to Belgium and the United States, was the guest of honor yesterday at a luncheon of the Pan-American Society at the India House.

Introduced by Severo Mallet-Prevost, President of the society, Dr. Morales, in Spanish, said there was a growing conviction in Central and South America that the United States was endowed with a profound sense of justice toward its neighbors in the south and that this feeling, together with a knowledge of this country's growth and financial power, made for increasing admiration for the United States. He alluded lightly to "certain defects" which he attributed to the United States, but which he explained to be the result of the tremendous and rapid growth of the nation.

Dr. Morales is in the United States in connection with the negotiations at Washington for a new treaty between the United States and Panama. He was instrumental in negotiating the 1914 and 1923 loans to Panama in the United States.

HAVANA UTILITY'S GROSS UP

The Havana Electric Railway, Light and Power Company, a New Jersey corporation, serving the Cuban capital and vicinity, issued its annual report yesterday, showing gross earnings of $14,357,901 for 1924, compared with $13,458,064 in 1923. Net earnings were $7,264,002, and the balance for the common stock after depreciation and preferred dividends was equal to $11.17 a share. This compares with $13.16 a share in 1923 and $6.54 in 1922.

The report called attention to a utility stock which has not been traded in here for years, with the result, guarding against other possible developments affecting the company, that the common spurted nine points yesterday to a high of $130 a share. Less than 150,000 shares of the stock are outstanding.

The company's balance sheet shows cash on hand as of Dec. 31, 1924, of $6,676,392. Corporate surplus was $6,775,637. Reserves of all kinds, including corporate surplus, totaled $20,709,311.

ASKS SECURITIES EXCHANGE

The Transit Commission held a hearing yesterday on the New York Railways Corporation's application for permission to exchange $1,250,000 of its 6 per cent. income bonds and 7,500 preferred shares of no par value for $3,000,000 in bonds of the Columbus & Ninth Avenues Railway Co. The holders of two-thirds of the bonds have agreed to the exchange, it was disclosed.

Commissioner John F. O'Ryan asked what would be the status of the owners of the remaining bonds if they did not agree to the exchange. He was informed that they would be total losers. Under the reorganization plan the bonds must be deposited on or before June 15.

The Columbus Avenue line runs from Fifty-ninth Street to 110th Street and is regarded as an important link in the recently reorganized surface railway system. A group of bond holders, it was said, would be unlikely to agree to the reorganization plan because they would prefer to abandon the surface tracks and rely on the sale of their car-barn rights and duct franchise for reimbursement. The hearing was adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock.

ARGENTINA TO EXPAND LOAN

Will Seek Long Term Bonds Up to $20,000,000, Wall Street Hears.

The Government of Argentina loan, which has been discussed in Wall Street for several weeks, will, it is now believed, be an issue of from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 of long term bonds and will be concluded within a month. Argentina has $10,000,000 of notes of a New York issue maturing this year, and has begun tentative negotiations for their refunding.

New York financiers, it is reported, have adopted a receptive attitude regarding the Argentine proposals, and the new financing is expected to be for an amount considerably larger than is called for in the refunding operation. Present conditions in the bond market, with money plentiful and a strong demand both for domestic and foreign issues, are understood to have caused the decision to increase the amount of the offering originally planned.

Federal Reduces Sugar Price.

The Federal Sugar Refining Company yesterday announced a reduction of 5 points in the wholesale price of refined granulated sugar, making the new quotation 5.55 cents a pound.

RUTLAND RAILROAD REPORT.

Net Operating Income of $799,607 in 1924 Is Drop of $68,535.

The annual report of the Rutland Railroad Company, a subsidiary of the New York Central, shows net railway operating income of $799,607 in 1924, compared with $868,143 for 1923, a decrease of $68,535. The year's surplus carried to profit and loss was $407,309, against $463,909 in 1923.

The road moved 2,175,239 tons of revenue freight during the year, a falling off of 366,866. The principal cause of this decrease was a drop of 359,123 tons in anthracite and bituminous coal. Unusual conditions in the coal fields in 1922 and 1923, it is said, make it necessary to go back of those years for a normal coal movement. Comparing coal handled in 1924 with that in 1921 there is only a slight decrease.

The condensed balance sheet shows current assets of $2,176,013 and current liabilities of $722,073, decreases respectively of $309,884 and $24,075.

ROAD'S EARNINGS DROP.

Kansas City Line's April Income Was $1,642,760.

Railway operating expenses were $1,186,021, compared to $1,309,563 for the year before. Railway operating income was $344,008, compared to $384,069 for 1923, a decrease of $40,061.

For the four months ending April 30 the road reports gross earnings of $6,509,546, a decrease of $420,805 from the $7,020,331 reported last year. Operating expenses were $4,666,473, against $5,009,313, and operating income $1,490,617, against $1,575,856.

SINCLAIR OIL SALES SHOW A 65% RISE

ALL FACILITIES ACTIVE

Consumers Made Heavy Inroads in Winter Storage Supplies—Directors Elected.

Harry F. Sinclair, Chairman of the directors of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation, told stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday that due to the favorable conditions now prevailing in the petroleum industry, the company's facilities and capital are operating at full capacity for the first time in the organization's history. Based upon present indications, he said, the earnings of the company are running at a rate of about $30,000,000 a year and probably will show an increase above that amount.

"There have been times," said Mr. Sinclair, "when the company was engaged in constructing new facilities at a cost of from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000, which were not operating. Now all of the company's facilities are operating, and under normal conditions we ought to show a very fair profit. During the past four years the oil business has been rather poor, but so far in 1925 there has been a big change for the better. This general improvement has helped the whole oil business and Sinclair in particular.

"As an instance of this our gasoline sales show a 65 per cent. increase for the first four months of this year, compared with 1924. Our sales through bulk an service stations increased 63 per cent., while our production of gasoline was 24 per cent. more. Our production of lubricating oil increased 42 per cent. The output of refineries as a whole advanced 20 per cent., but since then there is a larger gain in output because of some new installations. Included in these are the new refinery at Marcus Hook, Pa., and some additional cracking stills. All refinery facilitaties are now running at 100 per cent.

"Usually during the Winter months we store gasoline to be ready for the heavy consuming season. We were able to store some gasoline in December, January and February, but the consumption was so large that our storage was decreased during March and April instead of being increased.

"The Sinclair Company's crude oil production gained considerably compared with the last few months, owing to several important discoveries. The most important was the discovery of the new deep sand in the Garber Pool of Oklahoma. This well was completed about forty days ago, and has produced about 100,000 barrels of oil sold at $2.50 a barrel. Higher prices, representing a premium, is due to this oil being of high gravity. We control a large percentage of this Garber pool. We also just completed a 2,500-barrel well in the South Liberty Pool in Texas.

"The large production coming in in the deep sand in Smackover, where drilling is cheap, is difficult to estimate. There is an emulsion of water coming in with this oil and it is all run into storage. There is no definite idea of how much oil is being produced."

At the annual stockholders' meeting A. C. Veatch was elected a Director to succeed R. T. Wilson, and Sheldon Clark was elected a Director to succeed C. A. Braley, deceased. Other directors were reelected. Sixty-seven per cent. of the company's capital stock was represented at the meeting either in person or by proxy.

WESTCHESTER GETS HIGH BOND PREMIUM

$2,995,000 in Six Issues Sold for About 100.80, Best for Municipals in Years.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 20.—The County of Westchester sold $2,995,000 par value bonds today for six improvements—the county hospital, parks, new court house site, Van Cortlandt Bridge, highways and Bronx Parkway.

The bonds all bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent. and were sold for $3,022,706, which is a premium thereon of $27,706. They were sold on a basis of approximately 100.80, the best price for which county bonds have been sold for many years.

The last sale of New York City bonds was for approximately $60,000,000. They were 4¼ per cent. bonds, but the price bid was at a rate of upward of 4 per cent. The Westchester bonds vary in maturities. Some of them, particularly the Bronx Parkway bonds, were sold under statutory due dates and run for nearly sixty years.

There were five bids—the First National Bank of New York with the First National Bank of Mount Vernon; the Guaranty Company of New York combined with several others; Harris, Forbes & Co. and others; Sherwood, Merrifield & Co., with others; and George B. Gibbons & Co., with other banks.

The bonds were awarded to the First National Bank of New York and the First National Bank of Mount Vernon. The premium of $27,706 means that the Westchester taxpayers will have to pay only about 3 4-5 per cent.

The issue of $2,995,000 Westchester County 4 per cent. gold bonds, due serially June 1, 1926 to 1965, is the largest bond offering announced for today. The syndicate headed by the First National Bank includes Dillon, Read & Co., Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., the Detroit Company, Inc., Redmond & Co., Foster, McConnell & Co., and Batchhelder, Wack & Co.

Henning Chambers & Co. and the Fidelity and Columbia Trust Company of Louisville, Ky., are offering $2,000,000 City of Louisville, 40-year-gold 4 per cent. sewer bonds due Feb. 1, 1965, at a price of 102 and interest, to yield better than 3.90 per cent.

A new issue of $1,910,000 City of Little Rock, Ark., 4½ per cent. refunding bonds, due Nov. 1, 1926 to 1950, is being offered by William R. Compton Company of New York and the Federal Trust Company of St. Louis at prices to yield 4 per cent. for 1926 to 1928 maturities.

The Guaranty Company of New York, Remick, Hodges & Co. and H. L. Allen & Co. are offering $1,196,000 City of Akron, Ohio, 4½ per cent. bonds, due serially Oct. 1, 1926 to 1955, at prices to yield 4.10 per cent. They are issued for sewage disposal and grade crossing elimination purposes and are payable from taxes to be levied upon all taxable property in the city.

The Detroit Trust Company, Eldridge & Co., Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank and Wells-Dickey Company are offering a new issue of $1,000,000 Multnomah County, Ore., 4 per cent. and 4½ per cent. bridge bonds. The yield at the offering prices is 4.10 per cent. for the 4½ per cent. maturities and 4.10 for the 4 per cents.

Taylor, Ewart & Co., Inc., will offer an issue of $1,000,000 South Bay (L. I.) Consolidated Water Company, Inc., first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent. gold bonds, Series A, dated May 1 and maturing May 1, 1950, at a price of 80 and interest, to yield over 5.80 per cent.

A. B. Leach & Co., Inc., are offering $510,000 City of Spartanburg, S. C., 4½ per cent. water-works bonds, due serially Jan. 1, 1948 to 1965. They are priced to yield 4.30 per cent.

Books have been closed on the offering of $3,000,000 Tyrol Hydro-Electric Power Company first mortgage 7½ per cent. bonds of 1955, the bonds having all been sold. Books also have been closed on the $1,500,000 Warner Quinlan Company first mortgage 7 per cent. sinking fund convertible gold bonds.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

On a volume of business that is swinging with the rising tide in value, sterling exchange yesterday sold up to $4.86¼, a gain of ¾ cent over Tuesday's final, and now within ¾ cent of parity of $4.86%. The turnover far exceeded that of Tuesday, but with it all there was no excitement or feverishness noticeable. The rise was slow and steady, from an opening around $4.85 5-16, until the top was reached in late afternoon.

Buying was chiefly for foreign account, transmitted through local banks. An interesting feature of the present rally in sterling has been the shaving of quotations between transactions to 1-16 of a cent, although buying orders have risen with the advance from an average unit of £10,000 to as much as £200,000 in a single trade. The supply came from those who retain a part of the purchases made before the rise, together with some offerings of cotton and grain bills.

Continentals were buoyantly higher with the rise in sterling, the French franc and Italian lire recovering from Tuesday's slump. Paris checks improved a point to 5.16 cents, and the Italian 2¾ points to 4.05¾. The Scandinavians were another strong group, heavy buying in these sending the Norwegian kroner to 16.83 cents, a gain of 13 points, while the Danish bill advanced 6 points to 18.81 cents. Spanish, Holland, Belgian, Swiss and Swedish documents were all strong nad higher. Far Easterns were heavy, but the South Americans all improved.

Do you know good cloth when you see it?

A good looking suit can be tailored from well-woven shoddy and only an expert could know on first inspection that it was not pure wool. But Time will not fail to reveal the difference to any buyer. Most men, therefore, not being specialists in textiles, place their confidence in a tailoring firm whose reputation is the assurance of quality.

Investing is much like buying a suit. It is, indeed, the cloth from which your future income is cut. Its fabric must have the virtue of durability.

The Rewards

Careful buying is always rewarded in terms of future value and satisfaction; not by cheapness of price nor, in every case, by attractiveness in original appearance. The well-informed investor follows that principle insistently in the purchase of his securities. He knows that here, as in buying any other article for immediate or future enjoyment, the reputation and experience of the Company he deals with are reflected in greater profit and protection to himself.

A Dependable Test

There is no more dependable test of the future safety and value of any security than a satisfactory answer to this question: "What is the character of the house that recommends it for the investment of MY funds?"

That is the first test that should be applied to every issue that is offered you, for present-day taxation, legislation and changing industrial conditions affect the individual's security problems as never before. Successful investing implies the highest degree of dependable investment house cooperation.

The booklet "Successful Investing" is a brief outline of our various facilities. It will well repay your sending for it. Write for booklet M-2.

COVERING STAMPEDE PUTS COTTON HIGHER

A flurry occurred in the cotton market yesterday owing to active covering by July shorts here and in New Orleans. The trade had been buying steadily during the past week and on a scale that finally produced a congested position. A stampede started in New Orleans that rushed prices there up three-quarters of a cent and covering of the local market carried July above 23¼ cents. Strength in near months dragged the new crop up half a cent at one time, but as compared with a closing gain of 40 points on May, December showed a loss of 4 points on the day. The weekly weather report reflected the prevalence of low temperatures during the early and latter part of the week ending yesterday. The distribution of moisture, however, was more favorable, though some replanting has been necessary, particularly in Eastern regions. This is the last weekly report before the condition is made up on May 25.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

WHEAT TRADERS TURN FROM MAY

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Outlook for the new Winter and Spring wheat crop is steadily coming to the front as the main influence in the market, and there was fairly aggressive buying of the deferred deliveries, especially the September; in the face of profit taking, the close was 1¼@2⅛c higher. Interest in May has fallen off, with a gain of 2⅝c.

Reports from the Oklahoma Grain Dealers' convention said that the condition of wheat in that State was steadily deteriorating. Strong interests are in the market and have been taking wheat on all soft spots for more than a week past.

The foreign situation is regarded as stronger, and cash wheat is being picked up. Export sales for the day in all positions were 750,000 bushels, including a carload to Greece late yesterday. There were sales of Springs, hard Winters, Manitobas, and some new crop Manitobas were worked. Bids for hard Winter at the Gulf were 24 cents over Chicago July for the last half of June, the highest so far.

The Daily Trade Bulletin reports a decrease of 80,681,000 bushels of wheat in the world's visible supply in April, compared with 48,022,000 in April last year. The total supplies are 278,074,000 bushels, compared with 358,755,000 April 1 and 311,640,000 May 1 last year.

The big reduction last month was in Australia, United States and Canada. Supplies in the United States are 86,220,000 bushels, against 118,769,000 April 1 and 93,757,000 May 1 last year. Canadian stocks are 58,594,000 bushels, a decrease of 12,000,000 from last month and compares with 96,333,000 last year.

The Department of Agriculture estimates that the area in twenty Northern Hemisphere countries shows a decrease of 1.5 per cent., as compared with last year, the total being 126,457,000.

Primary arrivals were 1,048,000 bushels; week ago, 553,000; last year, 406,000. Shipments were 1,313,000 bushels; week ago, 802,000; last year 433,000.

Country offerings of cash corn to arrive were larger, with 150,000 bushels bought by local handlers and 100,000 by Omaha. The close was ¼@½ cent lower.

GROWING CROPS HAVE A PRETTY GOOD WEEK

The weekly weather report of the Department of Agriculture issued at Washington yesterday in part follows:

"There were further beneficial rains in the central and eastern portions of the cotton belt and considerable seed that had lain dormant for some time has now germinated. It was too cool, however, in the northern cotton districts, especially in the northeastern portion of the belt where the deficiency in temperature was rather pronounced. The temperatures were generally favorable in the southern half of the belt. In Texas, cotton made very good advance, except where it continued too dry in some southern districts. General rains would be helpful over the southern half of the state. Planting progressed very well and the late planted is germinating satisfactorily.

"In Oklahoma the week was only fairly favorable for cotton as warmth and sunshine were needed for proper germination; early stands were generally good, but late stands were rather poor. Cotton is well cultivated in Arkansas and advanced favorably during the week, although the latter part was rather cool. The weather conditions were excellent in Louisiana; squares are appearing on the early plants.

"It was too cool for the best results in Tennessee, Virginia and North Carolina but in most other sections east of the Mississippi conditions were favorable and the crop did well. The rain in this area has brought up much late cotton but stands are still poor in some places, particularly in Georgia; some replanting will be necessary.

"Corn planting has advanced to the more northern states and cultivating has begun as far north as the Ohio Valley. Seeding is well advanced in the principal producing areas but in general warmer weather is needed, both for germination and good progress. There has been considerable damage by cut worms and wire worms in Iowa, and by cut worms in Kansas and some replanting is being done in these States. Condition of early planted corn in the Gulf and South Atlantic States ranges from fair to very good, except in Texas where it is only fair. Later plantings are coming up to good stands.

"Wheat generally has made good advance during the past week, except in the eastern portion of the Winter wheat belt, where progress has been poor because of dry, cool weather. The Hessian fly has done considerable damage to early sown Winter wheat in Illinois, where this crop has deteriorated somewhat. The progress of Spring wheat has been slow because of low temperatures, and there has been some damage by frost. The condition of this crop continues mostly satisfactory and it is heading locally in parts of the Pacific Northwest."

Plans now under consideration call for the laying of two submarine power cables between Staten Island and the Jersey mainland to connect. It was learned yesterday, the Staten Island Edison Company with the Public Service Electric and Gas Company, a subsidiary of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey. Thus, instead of depending upon one cable, equipment and materials for which have already been purchased, a double connection between the New Jersey company and the New York utility is under consideration.

The first of the power cables to be laid will be from Tottenville, S. I., to Perth Amboy, N. J. The second will be from the island to Bayway, N. J. At both New Jersey points junction will be established with the Public Service Company lines, enabling the companies to draw on each other for power supplies when needed.

showed remarkable foresight when he purchased the truly magnificent block front on the east side of Broadway from 58th to 59th St., overlooking Columbus Circle and Central Park. He purchased this property in the days when the Circle Building site was vacant land, long before the U.S.S. Maine and Columbus Monuments were erected. He held it intact during the life of the Manhattan Skating Rink and Durland's Riding Academy on the Circle Building site. He owns it still and it is becoming each day more valuable.

Since Mr. Ehret's purchase of this "preferred" piece of real estate the "Bloomingdale Road" and "Boulevard" of a generation or so ago, at 59th St., has become one of the busiest traffic centres in the world, and New York's newest commercial centre.

BROADWAY

since has become the "Great White Way" and the best-known thoroughfare in the World. One of the best and only available blocks on Broadway between Times Square and Columbus Circle is the on the east side, from 55th to 56th St., and containing approximately 30,000 sq. ft., where stores have a 12 to 18 hours a day sales value, which helps to make for increased values. This property at present comprises the Sonoma and Rockingham Apartments and the Thorndyke Hotel, and is known as the Commonwealth Hotel Block.

Manhattan's Changing Streets and Avenues

The recent Central Park West "Boom" resulting in the transfer of millions in property was born of the plans to make it a part of the new subway building program, and to develop it, modelled after Paris, into a Boulevard which would be practically a part of Central Park.

Real estate operators were quick to capitalize the comparatively low Central Park West real estate and apartment rental values, and bought accordingly. Many of the more important corners and apartment buildings have passed to professional operators at prices ranging from 25% to 50% more than a year ago.

The fact that Central Park West has all the advantages of location enjoyed by Fifth Ave., overlooking the Park, while not being restricted in building height, would seem to justify the higher valuations.

Although there is a marked difference between land and rental values in Fifth Ave. and Central Park West, a number of the older buildings in Central Park West could be replaced with larger buildings of more modern type to produce incomes commensurate with the investment.

Along with the improvement in conditions in Central Park West, a buying and building movement of important proportions may be expected in the entire area west of the Park, where opportunities for profitable investment are limited only to the amount of property available, the supply of, and demand for apartments so favorably located in relation to the business, hotel, amusement, club and shopping districts.

Fast Electric Service To-Day

BABYLON'S DREAM COMES TRUE—and beginning to-day, after the official ceremony of yesterday attended by prominent civic, business and professional leaders, BABYLON RIDES ON FAST ELECTRIC TRAINS.

WHAT THOUSANDS HAVE WAITED FOR for years has happened. And if history repeats itself—and it usually does—Babylon should repeat the same astounding growth as happened when the Long Island Railroad was electrified to Jamaica. Perfected transportation means increased population; increased population means demand for land, and the greater the demand, the higher the price. This is not an opinion but fact.

Ride on the Current of Prosperity

If you have long wanted to have "one of those chances" to get in on the ground floor of a real estate opportunity, study the situation at Babylon. Base your opinion on what is likely to happen at Babylon by what has happened at Jamaica. In 1910, before electrification to Jamaica, there were 3,919 commuters. Last year, in 1924, there were 25,657 commuters to Jamaica. That's what electrification meant to Jamaica.

What ELECTRIFICATION Did for Jamaica
Electrification Should Do for BABYLON

Only the future can answer this, but common sense and foresight can give you a pretty good idea right now. The home seeker and the investor naturally want to buy their real estate at the lowest prices. I am selling some of the most desirable property in Babylon at absurdly low prices. Absurdly low because it seemingly was beyond any question that the minute electrification became a fact values would automatically increase.

Prices Are Not Advanced

But I bought the property of the former R. G. Dun Estate before electrification was a fact. It was in the future, and because I did buy it then I was able to put low prices on the property. My customers benefited by these low prices, and my customers will continue to benefit by them. It will not make any difference how general property prices jump in Babylon—my prices are not increased. The profits that are to be made by the home seekers and the investor will be their profits.

You can buy a building plot for a business location or a residential location. You can buy lots in the former R. G. Dun Estate close to the Babylon Railroad station and just north of Argyle Park and Lakes, Babylon's most beautiful residential section, or Liberty Farms, where I am selling ¼, ½ and 1 acre plots for those who want a little farm where they can live and work and play and make money; or Babylon Shore Front waterfront plots, right on the Great South Bay, where you can moor your motor boat, sail boat, canoe or rowboat right at your front door. And you will pay for it only the same low price that every one else has paid.

I am doing at Babylon exactly as I have done in all the other communities which I have helped develop during the past 25 years. I have made it possible for the home seekers and the investor to realize the profits that enhanced value means. This opportunity is awaiting you at Babylon. It is up to you to grasp it.

Finding a New Home

It would be easy to find a new home if all the vacant and available houses and apartments were on one street.

The New York Times Real Estate pages form such a street. In the Real Estate and Apartments to Let columns are long lists of modest and pretentious houses and estates, offered for sale or rent, located in and around New York City.

Small and large apartments are advertised, classified by location, enabling a selection adjacent to transportation lines, near schools or churches.
